VATICAN SPURNS ROTARY'S PLEA TO REMOVE BAN

Taint of Masonry Is Pinned on Clubs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 22.—The Rotary clubs have definitely lost their battle for withdrawal of Vatican disapproval. The failure of strenuous efforts to secure a reversal of the papal ban on the international organization which had its birth in America, was indicated today by an article in Osservatore Romano, the official vatican organ.

The article upheld the charges previously made against the Rotary clubs.

To those behind the scenes who know how the Rotary clubs through their international president, himself a Catholic, have been pulling strings in the last two weeks to persuade the vatican to retract the unfavorable pronouncement, the meaning of the article appears clearly. It is a final refusal of the highest authority of the Catholic church to remove the ban levied against the booster organization.

Called Branch of Masonry.

The trouble originated in June last year when a Jesuit paper accused the Rotary organization of being a branch of Freemasonry, to which the Roman church is hostile. The archbishop of Toledo, Spain, supported this charge when asked for a ruling on whether priests could join a Rotary club.

The shock of the papal ban was felt heavily by the organization, which has branches in many Catholic countries. J. Sutton of Tampico, Mexico, the international president, who happened to be in Rome on business, immediately took up the matter with Cardinal Gasparri and other important personages of the holy see. At the opening of the negotiations the prospects appeared bright for an explanation of the decision which would absolve the Rotary club from censure.

Mr. Sutton said at that time that the Vatican deemed it unwise for priests to join the Rotary club, not because that organization was anti-Catholic, but because the Rotary club is strictly a lay group outside the field of interests of the clergy. Mr. Sutton hoped for some such public explanation.

Raised Money for Y. M. C. A.

One of the principal accusations against the Rotary is the fact that the Mexican group helped raise money for the Y. M. C. A. in that country. Mr. Sutton countered this charge by stating that although individual members of the Rotary were active in the Y. M. C. A. drive, the organization as a unit took no part. Osservatore Romano considers it proved, however, that the Rotary's interest was definitely with the Y. M. C. A., and points out an even more serious breach in the organization's message of friendship to former President Plutarco Elias Calles, whose rôle in Mexico was associated with the stern repression of the Catholic church.

"We have judged the merits of the case principally on information emanating from your own United States, from your own moral code, from declarations of the most respected Rotarians in the United States and other countries, beginning with those of the president," the Vatican paper says. "From sources it finds, indicate that the Rotary's ideals are certainly those of Masonry."

Supports Jesuit's Charges.

Assuming point by point the argument in which the Osservatore says Mr. Sutton "repeats like a scholar the lesson sent from Chicago," the Vatican journal gives full approval of the action by the Spanish church in prohibiting the faithful from belonging to the organization and indorsing four charges leveled against the Rotary by the Jesuits. These are: One, the Rotary's origin, Masonic; two, in many countries the Rotary is sympathetic with the Masons; three, it has often shown hostility to Catholicism; four, the Rotary's philosophical basis is identical with Masonry.

Youth, Chased by Cops, Loses Clothes; Wins Race

Hurling his overcoat, gloves, and finally his shoes in order to increase his speed, an unidentified Negro youth outdistanced three policemen in a chase through Rogers Park streets last night. Several shots fired by the officers only hastened the fugitive on his way. A few minutes earlier he had snatched a purse, containing several dollars in change, from Mrs. Corine Brashear, 330 North Austin boulevard, Oak Park, in the vestibule of an apartment building at 1353 Chestnut avenue.

Fear Murder Witness Is Kidnaped

SEIZE SUSPECTS AS NEW CLEWS ARE DISCOVERED

BULLETIN.

Loyal D. Tacker, a dentist with offices at 2530 North Clark street, a witness in the gang massacre investigation, was reported by his wife to be missing from their home in the Sheridan Surf hotel, 425 Surf street, this morning, and fears were expressed that he may have been kidnaped and taken for a ride. According to his wife Tacker identified a photograph at the detective bureau as that of a man for whom he recently pulled a front tooth. Witnesses described the driver of the death car as having a tooth out in front. Mrs. Tacker said her husband left home last night at 9:30 o'clock on business. Police squads began a search for him.

New names were brought into the Moran gang massacre investigation last night. Trails leading from the garage where the slayers' automobile was discovered were found to be converging. Each report of a detective crew assigned to a certain task, following the finding of the car, contained names of men who were said to be affiliated with a gang in process of formation and seeking territories in which to operate.

As the bureau squads ran down the new lead the history of the Cadillac car used by the executioners became known step by step. The car was originally purchased by County Commissioner Frank J. Wilson. He turned it over to the Kavanaugh Motor Sales, 7922 Irving Park boulevard, as part payment on a new car, the police learned.

Car Sold and Resold.

The Kavanaugh concern sold the car to Irving H. Reger, 4836 North St. Louis avenue. He in turn handed it over to the Northwest Cadillac Sales company, Irving Park boulevard and Crawford avenue, when he purchased a new sedan. The Northwest company passed the car on to the used car department of the Cadillac company at 22d street and Michigan avenue. From there it was sold late last December to a man who gave his name as Morton and his address as Los Angeles, Cal. He paid $350 for the car.

Assistant state's attorneys at work on the case said last night they did not know whether to attach much significance to the fact that the car ended up in the hands of a man named Morton. Paul Morton has been known as the head of a liquor syndicate of his own, but officials pointed out that enemies of the Morton band might well have given the name of Morton to throw suspicion from themselves toward a rival booze organization. Morton recently has declared himself "out of the racket."

Hunt New Gang Chief.

Lines of inquiry last night led to orders to arrest a set of men whose chieftain is said to be Danny Vallo of Valley gang notoriety.

It developed that the death car garage at 1723 North Wood street rented two days in advance of the gang execution of the seven Moran followers on Feb. 14—had formerly housed a miniature brewery. That gave the detectives a new starting point. They connected the brewery with Tony Capimio, owner of the Circus cafe at 1857 West North avenue, next door to a machine gun gang nest at 1859 North avenue. This address was given by the man who rented the garage two days before the massacre.

Then came the story: Claude Maddox, once arrested at No. 1859 with a machine gun drum in his possession, Raymond Schulte and Capimio had been seen last Monday wearing overalls which were covered with grease, as though they were working on an automobile. Police were investigating to determine whether these facts had any connection with the murder car, which was discovered dismantled on Thursday night in a fire that had apparently been started to speed the wrecking.

Schulte was connected with Rocco

Executioner of 140 Slayers Slays Himself

Auburn, N. Y., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—John W. Hulbert, 59, up to three years ago state executioner of New York state, New Jersey, and Massachusetts, took his own life in the cellar of his home this afternoon. Hulbert fired two shots from a .38 caliber revolver into his body. Coroner's Physician Dr. William E. Walsh issued a certificate of death by suicide tonight after an investigation.

Grief over the death of his wife last September and ill health are ascribed as the reasons for the suicide. Hulbert recently had told a neighbor that he "would not be around very long."

Hulbert's body was found lying on the cellar floor by his son, Clarence Hulbert, 23, shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Rumors spread thick and fast about Auburn that Hulbert might have been the victim of a revengeful relative of one of the 140 murderers he had executed in the electric chair, but the finding of Hulbert's own gun near his body, with two shots fired from it, dissipated that theory.

Won Sinister Fame.

Hulbert achieved nation-wide notoriety at his grewsome profession of executioner. Beside the electrocutions of Auburn and Sing Sing and other points in the east he had executed murderers in Kansas.

Hulbert, in 1903, was appointed electrician at Auburn prison and frequently assisted former State Executioner Edward Davis in operating the electric chair. On retirement of Davis in 1913 he was given the position.

Hulbert was silent and taciturn. He had few intimate friends or associates. He absolutely refused to give out any interviews regarding his sinister experiences. He was never photographed, although hundreds of camera men tried to snap him.

Quit Job Suddenly.

In October, 1925, Hulbert let it be known that he intended to retire on pension the following June. This announcement was followed early in January, 1926, by his sudden resignation on the eve of the executions of Ambrose Ross and John J. Slattery for the murder of Ernest Whitman, bank clerk of Bellmore, L. I.

Hulbert's sudden resignation gave rise to rumors that he was prompted by fear of reprisals at the hands of friends or relatives, but the executioner gave no explanation. He retained his post as electrician at Auburn prison, which he had filled all through the period when he was serving as official executioner.

For each execution Hulbert was paid $50 until 1919, when the fee was increased to $150. In the fiscal year ended June 5, 1925, he received $2,100 for the execution of fourteen men.

MYSTERY POISON PERILS WOMEN; TWO NEAR DEATH

Two young woman, stenographers for Swift & Co., were reported in critical condition early this morning at Wesley Memorial hospital as the result of some form of poisoning. A third girl, also a Swift employé, was seriously ill.

The two whose condition was regarded as dangerous are Miss Katherine Whaley, 21 years old, and Miss Lucille Cummings, 19 years old. The other is Miss Wilhelmina Hackel, 18 years old. All live with a fourth girl, Miss Clara Mendenhall, in an apartment at the Kenwood apartment hotel, 6318 Kenwood avenue.

The three young women became ill Thursday evening and were hurried to the hospital, where physicians at first believed they were suffering from botulism, a form of food poisoning. Antitoxin serum was rushed to the hospital by plane from the University of Illinois at Champaign after only enough to treat one patient had been found in Chicago. This was supplied by the University of Chicago.

Although Miss Hackel rallied after administration of the serum, physicians last night were inclined to believe that some other kind of poisoning may have caused their illness. It was pointed out that Miss Mendenhall, who had the same meal as the others, did not become ill.

Robber Kills Policeman in Street Battle

Motorcycle Policeman Arthur Vollmar, 34 years old, father of two small children, was shot and killed in a revolver battle with a bandit at School and Clark streets last night. He was attached to the Town Hall police station and lived at 1942 Nebraska avenue.

Vollmar was touring his beat with Policeman Carl Pablowski in the side car. Traveling down School street, the policemen were hailed by a passerby who pointed to a man a block away who was running west on the street.

Policemen Start Pursuit.

"That man just held me up," the pedestrian shouted. "Get him." Vollmar and Pablowski gave chase. As he saw the policemen approach the fugitive attempted to flip a moving Clark street car going south. Failing in this he drew a revolver and fired at the policemen as he continued his flight.

The policemen opened fire in return. The fugitive stopped in his tracks, took cool aim, and fired again. Vollmar toppled from the motorcycle. The vehicle, careening across the street, grazed an automobile parked at the curb. Miss Hildegarde Westerholm, 3717 North Halsted street, was knocked down on the sidewalk by the motorcycle.

Pablowski took up the pursuit on foot. The fugitive had disappeared down a nearby alley. At the head of the alley the policeman emptied his revolver at the bandit, who dropped, but quickly regained his feet and escaped. Pablowski said he believed he had wounded the robber.

Doctors Find Him Dead.

Vollmar was taken to the John B. Murphy hospital, but was dead from a wound in his head when physicians examined him.

The pedestrian who hailed the policemen was Dr. Walter A. Birgerson, 1010 Belmont avenue. He told police the bandit had held him up in front of his home and robbed him of $8. After the robbery, he said, he followed the robber until he saw the policemen. The robber was a short, heavy set, bearded man, the doctor said. G. E. Blackow, 2707 Noyes avenue, Evanston, an eyewitness to the shooting, said he could positively identify the bandit killer.

Flames Destroy Big Sash Mill on Northwest Side

Fire early this morning destroyed the mill and yards of the Elston Mill Inc., window sash makers, 4543 Elston avenue, and did damage estimated at $100,000. The home of Albert Hansen, adjoining the mill, was burned.

Canal Trustees Boost Selves; Cost $120,000

The expenditure of $120,000 of taxpayers' money for the printing of what was obviously a campaign document is expected to lead to the indictment for conspiracy to squander public funds of seven members of the sanitary district board as it existed under the regime of Timothy J. Crowe as president. This announcement was made yesterday by State's Attorney John A. Swanson after a conference with his first assistant, Frank J. Loesch, who has gathered the evidence.

So confident is the prosecutor that Mr. Loesch has gathered sufficient evidence to warrant conspiracy indictments that he has already had Assistant State's Attorney John Elliott Byrne draw up the necessary indictment papers.

Issued Just Before Election.

The document on which the charges are expected to be based is what was termed the "Annual message of T. J. CROWE (in capital letters), president of the sanitary district." The report, dated Jan. 20, 1928, was issued just a short time before the primary election in April of last year.

The money was spent by the unanimous vote of the board as it then existed. Those to be held responsible, according to Prosecutor Swanson, are Frank J. Link, then the lone Deneen representative on the board; Crowe, John J. Touhy and James M. Whalen, Democrats; Lawrence F. King, John K. Lawler, and August W. Miller, known as Crowe-Thompson Republicans.

Trustee Henry A. Berger was not a member when the money in question was ordered spent and therefore is not involved in the present scandal. He was picked to succeed the late Michael Rosenberg, then Democratic chairman of the finance committee.

Paid Out in Small Sums.

The money for the pamphlet in question was spent with Kallis & Co., a printing firm of which Morton Kallis is the head. Kallis is a brother-in-law of Moe Rosenberg, who in turn was a brother of the late chairman of the finance committee. The entire $120,000 was paid out in sums of less than $500—usually $499.75.

Under the law all work costing $500 or more must be let by contract, wherein bids have been asked for. It is charged by the prosecutors that the evasion of the contract law by the deliberate spending of the money in dribs of $499.75 shows that the document in question was a deliberate use of taxpayers' money for campaign purposes.

Another Company in Deal.

The prosecutors have evidence, it is reported, that 800,000 copies of the message were printed by the Kallis company and a supposedly "Lee-Jack company." The money paid out to this concern eventually found its way into the treasury of the Kallis company, it is alleged.

The pamphlet contains on the cover a photograph in colors of the drainage canal system and is entitled, "What We Are Doing." Immediately inside the cover is a full page photograph of Crowe seated at his desk as president of the district. On the succeeding pages are photographs of the other trustees, as well as photographs of the different district projects, including McCormick road.

The president's personal message, containing a glowing account of what the district has done and expects to do with the taxpayers' millions, takes up six pages.

Cite Paragraph on Economy.

U. S. FRIEND OF BRITAIN, HE SAYS IN LAST SPEECH

President and Wife Honored by School.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—In veiled but unmistakable terms, President Coolidge, in his farewell public address at the commencement of George Washington university tonight, denied the existence of any cause of discord between the United States and Great Britain or any other European nation.

He sought particularly to brand as irresponsible and mischievous certain utterances on both sides of the Atlantic which represent America and Britain as drifting toward a state of unfriendliness, if not toward war, over the naval armament limitation controversy and questions involving commercial rivalry.

On Most Cordial Terms.

"I should like the people of the United States to know," said the President in his most impressive manner, "that at the present time there are no questions of importance awaiting settlement between our government and any of the European governments with which we have relations. Our government is on the most cordial and friendly terms with all of them."

By qualifying this pronouncement to apply to "European governments with which we have relations," the President excepted the Russian soviet government. With this nation, because of its refusal to deal fairly with our country and countrymen, the Coolidge administration has never established diplomatic relations. Mr. Coolidge also excepted Mexico, with which, though official relations are improved, there is still unsettled a controversy over the threatened confiscation of American properties.

Given Honorary Degrees.

The President spoke before a distinguished audience at the mid-winter convocation of the university in its one hundred and eighth year on the one hundred and ninety-seventh birthday of the founder of the republic whose name it bears. At the close of his address, the honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon the President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Though it was his farewell presidential address, Mr. Coolidge spoke no word of farewell to the capital or to the nation. Fifty-six years young, robust and vigorous, the President goes back to private life to be heard from often henceforth, if not to return to tenancy of the White House.

In no more fitting manner, however, could he have taken leave of his high office than in the tribute he paid in this address to George Washington, who, to Calvin Coolidge, was the greatest American, not even excepting Lincoln, and who has been the life-long idol of the thirtieth President.

Rebukes Colonial-Minded.

To Mr. Coolidge the farewell address of Washington is fraught with a wisdom and a counsel that are as applicable today to our situation in the world as when it was delivered. With the farewell address as a text, Mr. Coolidge rebuked the colonial minded among us, to whom he imputed an inferiority complex, and foreigners who still regard us a European dependency.

"Washington was one of the first, in a practical way, to conceive of the United States as an independent establishment," said Mr. Coolidge. "Before him it had been a province. After him it was a nation. Even following the revolution there were many people in this country who clung to the old thought that we were a European dependency. If we were not to look to England then we must look to France. It was the clear belief of Washington that we must look to ourselves.

"Habits of thought live on. There are still those among us who have an inferiority complex and there are still people in Europe who regard us as a province. He therefore warned us in his farewell address to beware of permanent and political alliances. The phrase entangling alliances is not from him, but from Jefferson.

Leaves Question Open.

"In the thought of that day an alliance meant the banding together of two or more nations for offensive and defensive purposes against certain other nations, either expressed or implied. It was a purely artificial creation. It had no reference to an association of practically all nations in an attempt to recognize their common interests and discharge their common obligations."

Whether Mr. Coolidge meant here to characterize the league of nations or had in mind some broader association

"While we should at all times defend our own independence," he went on, "and maintain our own sovereignty, we should not forget that all nations, as well as all individuals, have natural and inalienable rights 'of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness,' in the words of Jefferson, and, while we should fail disgracefully in our mission in the world if we did not protect those rights for ourselves, we shall also fail if we do not respect them in others.

Called France to Account.

"This principle was clearly understood by our first President, and, being understood, he did not hesitate to put it into operation. When the French undertook to interfere in our affairs in such a way as to threaten the integrity of our government he called them to account. When our own citizens, on the other hand, were resentfully refusing to recognize the rights of English subjects, Washington was equally insistent that our government and our citizens should faithfully discharge their legal obligations—even to our Tory enemies.

"The revolutionary war inevitably left many undecided questions pending between the United States and Great Britain. There was the question of turning over to this country certain outposts. There were also certain boundary disputes which were not adjusted until well into the next century. These in turn were followed by differences concerning fisheries.

"Of course every one recalls the difficulties under which we suffered as neutrals during the Napoleonic era, which resulted in the war of 1812. A like experience came to us in the world war. We have also had issues parley, sometimes of a serious and threatening nature, with many other countries. We had them during the early period of our national life and shall undoubtedly continue to have them in the future. Both foreign and domestic affairs will constantly produce new questions for consideration."

Seeks to Allay Alarm.

In this manner the President led up to the current issues between the United States and other nations, any alarm over which he earnestly sought to allay.

"Those who feel in a considerable state of alarm when they learn that there are subjects requiring diplomatic adjustments at the present time would probably be somewhat relieved if they would consider the history of our international relations," Mr. Coolidge dryly observed. "So long as we continue as a nation we shall have such relations. Because there are matters which require adjustment is no reason for grave concern. There are more and more methods by which the certainty increases that they will be composed.

"It is possible to say of our foreign relations at the present time that they have rarely been in a more happy condition. The uncertainties which existed south of the Rio Grande have been very much relieved. The domestic disorders in Central America are being adjusted with a satisfaction that is almost universal.

Reviews U. S. Relations.

"Even the mouths of those who would rather criticize us than have us do right have been stopped. The recent Pan-American congress held in Washington exhibited a spirit of friendliness and good will which was most gratifying. Competent and experienced observers have assured me that our relations with South America are on the most satisfactory basis that they have been for 25 years.

"On the far side of the Pacific our situation is equally satisfactory. We have no important unadjusted problem with the government of any European nation with the exception of Russia. Outside of that country all the issues that arose, even out of the world war, have been adjusted."

It was with ill concealed satisfaction that the President in these phrases dwelt on the successful issue of the Nicaraguan affair and other vexations in our foreign relations his course in dealing with which was at times severely criticized.

Rivalry Raises No Issue.

"Of course," said the President as a burst of applause died away, "of course, our citizens meet the citizens of other countries in commercial rivalry in the market places of the world. That will always continue. It is the natural and inevitable result of foreign trade. But it does not raise any issue between our government and other governments.

"We believe in a policy of national defense and maintain an army and a navy for that purpose. Other countries have similar military establishments. We are committed to the principle of limitation of armaments. The other great powers, through the public opinion of their people and the binding obligation of their treaties, are more firmly committed to this principle than we are."

At this statement that we are outdone by others in commitment to armament limitation ears were pricked up in the President's audience. He did not particularize, but it was evident that by treaty obligation he was referring to the league of nations covenant which commits the league powers, though not the United States, to restriction of armament.

There was applause at that inferential denial that there is any serious difference between America and Britain over the naval limitation question, the inability of the two nations to agree on which caused the failure of the Geneva conference of 1927.

Then, in measured utterances and

Capital Pays Tribute to Washington the Patriot

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—George Washington's greatness was acclaimed today by the highest and lowest of the national capital.

Thousands of citizens gathered at a score of patriotic meetings to honor the 197th anniversary of the birth of the nation's first President.

Government buildings were closed in observance of the national holiday, while members of the senate and house paused momentarily in their last minute rush to clear the legislative decks before adjournment to pay a tribute to Washington.

In the senate Senator James A. Reed [Dem., Mo.] raised the reading of Washington's farewell address above a mere formality, and breathed new life in the eighteenth century language of the document. On the house side Representative James M. Beck [Rep., Pa.] reminded his colleagues of the political sagacity of Washington, and asserted that the influence of the national hero is still a vital force, guiding the destinies of the American people.

Lewis Addresses Meeting.

Practically every patriotic, civic, religious and fraternal organization in the district participated in the anniversary program. A big municipal massmeeting was held at noon where former Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois was the speaker of the day. Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador visualized Washington as the strongest link in the chain of Anglo-American friendship at memorial services held by the D. A. R.

stressing every word, the President said:

"It seems desirable to mention this subject in order that the people of the United States may have my opinion concerning it. We have recently had a national campaign in which, of course, the opposition party was expected to criticise the foreign policy of the government and suggest that important unsettled issues were gravely interfering with the friendly attitude which we desire to cultivate abroad.

"In other countries there will be similar campaigns, where the parties out of power will criticise their governments in a like manner. There was nothing in our election to indicate that our own country took such statements seriously, and I therefore trust they will not be taken seriously abroad.

Not to Be Taken Seriously.

"For the same reason our people should not take seriously the campaign utterances of those who may be seeking to supersede the governments in power in other countries. Political utterances of this nature should be carefully differentiated from statements by responsible government authorities.

"I should like the people of the United States to know that at the present time there are no questions of importance awaiting settlement between our government and any of the European governments with which we have relations. Our government is on the most cordial and friendly terms with all of them.

"Because this is true there should be an attitude of kindness and good will between our people and all the European people. Wherever we see statements constantly made and seriously entertained concerning the conduct and intentions of our government likely to prejudice it at home or abroad, there comes a time when a candid presentation of the facts is required to promote a state of better understanding. Such an expression is entirely different from a constant attitude of fault finding and hostility toward everything that is foreign.

Bespeaks Friendly Spirit.

"The governments are friendly. The people and the press should be friendly. The respect and confidence of European governments is especially evidenced by the unanimous request, not to say insistence, that citizens of the United States should contribute their assistance and counsel in the effort to make a final adjustment of the problem of reparations.

"Of course, in past negotiations we have reached conclusions with them through the necessary process of give and take, but their actions have demonstrated that their governments feel that our conduct has been such that they can trust us. After all, the great measure of our standing in the world is determined by whether other nations turn to us for assistance when they have difficulties among themselves.

"Our very detachment puts us in the position where we are constantly rendering a service to the world which would not otherwise be possible. While we are not associated with any particular foreign group, in the last analysis they all know that they can apply to us when they are in need of friendly offices."

This is precisely the position which

CHICAGO HONORS WASHINGTON ON 197TH BIRTHDAY

Quietly, but with plenty of thought upon the legacy he left, Chicago yesterday observed the 197th birthday of George Washington. Flags fluttered from loop windows, schools, civic centers, and from the thousands of homes where children have been taught that honor is due to America's first President when his birthday comes around each year.

School children for the most part celebrated with plays and pageants and parties on Thursday, yesterday being reserved for a holiday. Many loop business houses were closed—the banks, Stock Exchange, the postoffice, and all federal building offices. It was among civic, church, fraternal, and patriotic organizations that the more elaborate observances were held.

Dry, but No Bigot.

A prohibitionist, but not a bigoted reformer, was the type of man Washington would be were he alive today, in the opinion of Dr. Hugh Kelso Walker, moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church. Dr. Walker addressed 500 Presbyterian laymen and clergy attending a convention of Presbyterian men at the La Salle hotel.

"George Washington was a man of high principles and believed in strict enforcement of the law," Dr. Walker said. "I am sure that he would favor complete enforcement of the prohibition law, but in that belief he would not be narrow-minded nor object to others who disagreed with his views."

Most of the celebrations were held last night. A modern view was taken at the dinner at the Hamilton club, where County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki put his cast of polling place actors through a play, "A Day at the Polls." The play was based on actual experiences which have occurred on various election days.

Guardsmen Hold Reception.

At the armory, 16th street and Michigan boulevard, the 131st infantry, 33d division, entertained at a dance and reception, and medals were presented to members for long and honorable service.

At Glen Ellyn, legionnaires from Cook county attended a celebration sponsored by the Glen Ellyn Methodist Men's club, at the Glenbard High school. Aerial bombs and fireworks and a parade preceded the program, where Howard P. Savage, past national commander of the American Legion, was a speaker.

Dean James Is Speaker.

"History has held no more striking example of an indispensable man than Washington," said James A. James, professor of American history and dean of the graduate school at Northwestern university, speaking last night before

"Washington wished his country to occupy," in the opinion of Mr. Coolidge.

"While he warned us against alliances with any, he was no less urgent in counseling the maintenance of friendly relations with all," the President continued. "As our strength has increased, as our power to maintain our independent position has grown, the wisdom of his warning and his counsel has become more and more apparent.

"Some nations are so situated that it has been and is now necessary for them to seek understandings with others in order to perpetuate their own existence. Others have interests so detached and territory so scattered that they can best protect themselves by some method of regional relations.

Cherish Our Position.

"Our situation is such that we are and can remain unhampered by any such necessities. We do not seek isolation for its own sake, or in order that we may avoid responsibility, but we cherish our position of unprejudiced detachment because through that means we can best meet our world obligations. If we became closely identified with any specific grouping of nations, however advantageous it might be to be, we could not hope to continue to perform that service.

"As we study the statesmanship of Washington, as we see it demonstrated in our domestic and foreign experience, he becomes a larger and larger figure. The clearness of his intellect, the soundness of his judgment, the wisdom of his counsel, the disinterested patriotism of his actions are constantly revealed to us with a new and compelling force. The reverence for his memory continues to increase."

The Day in Congress

SENATE.

An amendment to the naval appropriation bill proposing withdrawal of marines from Nicaragua was approved by a vote of 38 to 36.

Funds for commencing construction of naval cruisers were added to the naval appropriation bill, but the passage of the bill was delayed until tomorrow.

The Reed campaign funds committee filed an adverse report in the long pending case involving the seat of William S. Vare of Pennsylvania.

HOUSE.

Representative James M. Beck [Rep., Pa.], former solicitor general of the United States, was the speaker of the day in the house observance of Washington's birthday.

Agricultural and manufacturing interests clashed over a proposed duty on vegetable oils in the tariff hearings before the ways and means committee.

The house banking and currency committee shelved the Black resolution calling upon President Coolidge and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon for details of the alleged agreement between the federal reserve board and the Bank of England to regulate rediscount rates in this country.

Dean James described Washington as one of the first experimental farmers, as a contributor to charity, as a man, and a leader with confidence in Americans and faith in the destiny of America.

Mrs. Walter W. Speiner, 3760 Broadway, Evanston, exhibited a memento of Washington yesterday in a copy of the Ulster County Gazette, dated Jan. 4, 1800, which contained a report of Washington's funeral. The newspaper, Mrs. Speiner said, was preserved by her great great grandfather, Ezekiel Lane, who died in Chicago in 1848 at the age of 102.

BRITAIN AIMS AT FIRM PEACE WITH U.S.:CHAMBERLAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 23.—[Saturday.]—A new British offer to the United States on the question of naval armaments was foreshadowed by Sir Austen Chamberlain, secretary of state for foreign affairs, in a speech at Torquay last night.

"The government has been engaged for some months in a careful survey of all issues that have arisen in these discussions and which affect the future of our relations," the foreign secretary said.

"When this consideration and examination comes to a conclusion I am confident it will be within our power, as it is our wish, to make proposals to the United States which should place our friendship on that firm footing which is not only our desire and to our interest, but in the interests of the world at large."

COOLIDGE POLICY FOR NICARAGUA HIT BY SENATE

Withdrawal of Marines Is Asked on Roll Call.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

An amendment to the naval appropriation bill proposing withdrawal of marines from Nicaragua was adopted by a vote of 38 to 36 on a roll call. Ten Republicans, chiefly radical, and 28 Democrats voted for the amendment, while 6 Democrats and 34 Republicans opposed it.

Senator C. C. Dill [Dem., Wash.] offered the amendment, which was added to a section providing funds for the marine corps for the next fiscal year. It specified that "no part of this appropriation shall be used to maintain marines in Nicaragua or to transport marines to and from Nicaragua, except in cases of emergency arising there after endangering life or property, or both, of American citizens." Its effect was to require withdrawal of the marines from Nicaragua before July 1, when the appropriations become available.

Seeks Another Roll Call.

Senator Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.], in charge of the appropriation bill, gave notice that he would ask another roll call on the amendment in the senate proper, today's action having been in committee of the whole. Senator Hale had expected to obtain the passage of the appropriation bill today, but after meeting this rebuff moved to recess until tomorrow.

The roll call on the Nicaraguan amendment took place shortly before 6 o'clock, after the debate on the appropriation bill had run all afternoon.

The committee amendment providing $12,370,000 for commencing work on the construction of naval cruisers was approved by the senate after further attacks upon the program by the radical pacifist group. The amendment makes available $5,800,000 for construction and machinery, $6,000,000 for armor, armament and machinery, and $570,000 for improving and equipping navy yards for the ships.

$200,000 Immediately Available.

Of the $6,000,000 the sum of $200,000 is to be immediately available toward the construction of the first group of five cruisers, while of the $5,800,000 the sum of $800,000 is to be available in the fiscal year 1930 to start work on the second group of five cruisers.

An amendment by Senator W. H. King [Dem., Utah] to prevent the beginning of work on the second group of cruisers until January, 1930, was rejected.

"That the Association of Commerce continues to scrutinize the accounts and records of the sanitary district is a matter of gratification to the trustees, whose constant desire is that every means be taken to safeguard the interest of the taxpayers. In this regard the trustees have kept rigidly their pledge made to the Association of Commerce that there would be no increase in the cost and maintenance of the district's activities."

Turn to Signboards.

The 48 page document was widely distributed, it is reported, but the death of Trustee Rosenberg, then a candidate for reelection, spoiled it as a campaign document before the task was completed.

It was reported to Assistant State's Attorney Thomas D. Slusser and Otho Fasig that thousands of the books were shoveled into the district's furnaces after Trustee Rosenberg's death. It was after this that the self-advertising of the trustees up for reelection was turned to the huge district signboards. The names of the trustees were painted in large letters.

Should the contemplated indictments be voted and convictions obtained thereon, it was pointed out that the district would be without a full quota of trustees. Malfeasance proceedings could remove all but President Howard Elmore and Trustee Berger and Ross Woodhull.

WASHINGTON KIN DIES WHILE U. S. HONORS GENERAL

He was a great-great-grandson of Samuel Washington, younger brother of the first President.

John T. Washington came to California in 1852 and since has resided in this state and Nevada. For 26 years he was in the newspaper business and spent the last six years delving into his ancestry.

RETURN KIDNAP GIRL TO MOTHER; THREE ARE HELD

BULLETIN.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Charges of kidnaping were filed tonight against Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sharp and John A. Williams in connection with the disappearance last Friday of Doris Virginia Smith-Murphy. Police declared Mrs. Sharp admitted that she worked single handed in the kidnaping of the child.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP)—With her long eyebrows cut short and her clothing changed so as to greatly alter her appearance, little Virginia Smith-Murphy, 4, was restored to her parents today, just a week after her disappearance from a playground here. An intensive search had been conducted for the child.

She had been in custody of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sharp of San Francisco, who told police they had received her in the belief she was Mrs. Sharp's daughter Betty, born out of wedlock, and recently in custody of Mrs. Sharp's relatives in Los Angeles.

Doubt Couple's Story.

Police doubted the couple's story and took the Sharps to headquarters for questioning. At one time the authorities announced they would file charges of kidnaping against the Sharps, but tonight were still withholding action.

Mrs. Sharp at first told the police she had been summoned to Vallejo across the bay from here, by a note saying her small daughter, Betty, whose custody she had asked from relatives, would be restored to her there. She said she met at Vallejo "a dark man with a small mustache," who turned Doris over to her as her daughter. She said she believed the girl her own child, whom she had not seen for more than a year.

Repudiate Identification.

Mrs. Sharp identified John A. Williams, employe of the mint here, who has been under arrest as a suspect, as the man who gave her the girl, but under questioning repudiated the identification, and said she had received the child at the Ferry building here instead of at Vallejo.

GOVERNOR SURE ONLY HIS GAS TAX CAN BE PASSED

He Sees No Hope for Alternatives.

BY PUTNEY HAIGHT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—In the face of the gathering tempest of Chicago opposition to his proposed 3 cent gas tax measure, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson left the executive mansions this noon determined to stand or fall with the terms of the draft submitted. The test will come Wednesday when the bill is brought to the floor of the house.

The governor is to be an interested observer, but asserts that he will not lift a finger in behalf of the measure in the legislature. He assumes the position that, with aid of his advisers, as nearly a perfect bill as can be conceived to meet the state's motor traffic necessities has been formulated and that it has the practical virtue of having possibility of passage.

He is skeptical in regard to the practical value of any alternative proposition thus far presented by opponents to his bill, and ventures the belief that none of the other suggestions could muster the necessary votes.

Three Plans Proposed.

Thus far three different plans have been discussed. The first is that the 1 cent levy be distributed "one-one-one," or a third to the state, a third to the counties, and a third to the cities. This plan has the support of metropolitan communities in the state, but in the governor's opinion would be summarily executed by the down state representatives.

The motor clubs favor a straight 2 cent tax, with a provision for the state widening of radial arteries in the most congested metropolitan regions. The governor sees no hope for passage of such a measure.

The rural element stands for a 2 cent tax with a division of one and a half cents to the state and one and a half cents to the counties, and no widening or improvement of existing radial highways whatever. Such a measure, he believes, might find sufficient support for passage, but because it does not take into consideration the admitted necessity for wider highways in metropolitan areas, the governor does not regard it favorably.

Meets Election Pledge.

In the measure he submitted, which allots 2 cents to the state and 1 cent to the county, Gov. Emmerson believes he has met the definite pledges of both his primary and election campaigns, as well as the pledges of his democratic opponent in the elections. These pledges, he points out, specifically promised administrative effort to fulfill the terms of the last bond issue law by providing finances with which to carry out the construction of designated highways and to provide means for the widening and otherwise improving radial highways of the state system converging in congested metropolitan areas.

By the terms of the administration bill, he declares, both these pledges are redeemed. He also wants it made clear that he appreciates similar pledges made by Floyd E. Thompson, the opposing candidate, and has framed his proposals to cover the latter's pledges also, thus vindicating the campaign declarations of both, that road building is an economic rather than a political issue.

Bid for County Support.

In view of the care with which the bill has been drawn in regard to its quality of acceptability in all quarters, it is concluded that the 1 cent for the counties is largely for the purpose of attracting formidable forces of support, as it actually amounts to a county tax for county road purposes.

Levied in connection with the state tax it becomes less painful and meets the problem of scores of tax increase resisting communities.

Gov. Emmerson permits it to be known, however, that he is not unalterably adamant in his position supporting the administration measure, but is of open mind, providing some better proposition can be devised. He believes, though, that to date no suggestion has been offered which might have any chance of passage that comes as near to meeting the situation as the bill submitted. He expects that next week the document may be riddled with amendments from the groups proposing other means, but feels confident that the variance of ideas possessed by these groups will defeat themselves. As one of experienced Illinois politics, he predicts favorable action on the measure by both house and senate.

CHICAGO TO MOBILIZE

Public officials and civic leaders will assemble this noon in the county board chambers to organize their fight to obtain for Chicago a share of the revenue from Gov. Louis L. Emmerson's 3 cent gasoline tax bill.

At present there are many and varied proposals for amending the bill so that Chicago, which will pay approximately 40 per cent of the state's tax, will receive something in return. The administration plan would give nothing for Chicago streets and little for Cook county roads.

This afternoon, when the meeting adjourns, it is hoped that Cook county's legislative delegation will have agreed to put all of their strength behind one amendment.

Chicago Fighting Odds.

"Even united," said Representative Michael Igoe, house minority leader, "we are far outnumbered by the downstaters, because of the failure of the legislature to reapportion the senatorial districts in accordance with the constitution. So we cannot hope to get anywhere unless we all pull in the same direction."

Officially the assembly will be a session of the county board's legislative committee. Unofficially it will be a meeting of all interests, public and private, to save Chicago from paying $5,400,000 a year without getting any return for its streets.

All of Cook county's state senators and representatives are expected to attend. Mayor Thompson and a committee from the city council have been invited. The Chicago Motor club, the Association of Commerce and other civic organizations will be represented. James Simpson, president of the Chicago Plan commission, has been urged to take part.

Many Proposals Advanced.

A variety of proposals will be discussed. First there is the bill, as sponsored by Gov. Emmerson, with its provision for giving 2 cents to the state highway department, 1 cent to the counties, and nothing to the cities, including Chicago.

The Civic Municipal league urges a division of 1 cent to the state, 1 to the county, and 1 for cities and villages in proportion to the number of their registered automobiles. This would give Chicago approximately $2,800,000 for street work and Cook county slightly more for roads.

Representative Elmer S. Schnackenberg would give Chicago its equitable portion of the gasoline tax revenue and would also abolish the city's wheel tax and reduce the state license tax to $1. John Richert, of the city council finance committee, is opposed to this suggestion, because he estimates that Schnackenberg's gas tax would give Chicago between $3,250,000 and $4,000,000 a year, whereas the street repair fund now receives $4,500,000 a year from the wheel tax.

Superhighways for City.

Senator Roy Woods urges a distribution of the revenue from the gasoline tax in three equal parts among the counties, the state, and cities and villages. For Chicago's share, he would have the state build superhighways with two-grade crossings from the corporation limits to the loop.

The Association of Commerce has taken the stand that the governor has failed to show a need for any gasoline tax and that, until this showing is made, with a definite plan for expenditures, no gas tax bill should be supported.

The Chicago Motor club favors a 2 cent gasoline tax, with the state compensating Chicago for its collections here by widening the arterial highways in the metropolitan area outside of the corporate limits.

BARNEY BALABAN, MOVIE MAGNATE, TO WED TONIGHT

Barney Balaban, secretary of the Balaban & Katz corporation, operators of a chain of movie theaters, procured a license yesterday at Miami Beach, Fla., to wed Mrs. Tillie Urkov of Chicago, according to dispatches from the Florida city last night. The ceremony, it was announced, will be performed at 8 o'clock tonight by Rabbi Isreal H. Weisfeld of Congregation Beth David.

Mr. Balaban's age was given at 41, and that of Mrs. Urkov, who is the mother of two children, as 32. Members of the Balaban family in Chicago said last night that they had heard recently of the approaching nuptials, but they had been unaware of Mr. Balaban's intentions when he left for Florida several weeks ago with his father and mother on a vacation trip.

Two Men End Lives in Homes by Taking Poison

John Cowdes, 44 years old, 811 West 57th street, a chauffeur, was found dead on a couch in his home last night by his wife, Isabelle. Beside him were two empty bottles which police said had contained poison. His wife said he was in good health and earned sufficient to care for her and their eight children.

In another case Walter Heyser, 32, 8923 South Racine avenue, was found dead in the basement of his home by his wife, Mary. He had swallowed acid. He was a steamfitter and had been out of work, the wife said.

MOVIE FAILS TO WIN APPROVAL AS EVIDENCE

Washington Visions O. K., However.

Visions of a boy who said, "I cannot tell a lie," and the realities of modern motion pictures were called before twelve jurors in a Washington's birthday trial in the court of Judge William Fulton yesterday. The jurors were seeking the truth in a maze of conflicting testimony offered in a $50,000 suit for damages brought against the Checker Cab company by Frank Rodostiz, 4909 South Wells street, a railroad worker.

The visions were allowed to stand. The movies were thrown out as evidence.

The controversy centered on whether Rodostiz is permanently incapacitated as the result of injuries to his spine, suffered in an accident on last July 4, involving a Checker cab. Rodostiz said he is. Two witnesses for the cab company, questioned by Attorney Edgar A. Cook, told the jury they had seen the plaintiff stoop to pick up a penny and perform other acts inconsistent with his alleged disability.

Enter the Movies.

Then the movies were offered as defense evidence. Witnesses for the cab company and the film shows Rodostiz nimbly leaping from street cars in motion and snatching up a pocketbook dropped by a private detective.

Attorney A. R. Hulbert, representing Rodostiz, sprang to his feet. "I object," he said. "Your honor, I object to the introduction of this film as evidence in this case. There is no limit to what may be done with trick photography."

Judge Fulton sustained the objection, ruling that the presentation of the movie would be without legal precedent. "Perhaps science will some day aid in sifting the truth from lies," he said. "We realize the impossibility of such fortune until the human element is removed."

Calls on Washington.

The "cannot tell a lie" argument was introduced by Attorney Cook after his opponent had attacked the credibility of the defense witnesses. Mr. Hulbert charged that two of those who took the stand in behalf of the cab company had previously offered to testify for Rodostiz.

"These men are men of conscience," declared Cook. "Before you men of the jury I call upon the spirit of George Washington, father of our country, first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen—I call upon his spirit to witness the honesty of these witnesses."

CHICAGO TO FIND HOOVER FRIEND OF WATERWAYS

Engineer May Be His War Secretary.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—In facing its waterways problems Chicago and the middle west will find in President Herbert Hoover an understanding and energetic friend. It is not unlikely that the new secretary of war, who will be called upon to deal with waterways in many complex ways, will be an engineer. It was learned today that Mr. Hoover has had three eminent engineers under consideration for this appointment.

As President Elect Mr. Hoover is not ready to give any detailed cosideration to the waterways situation, Cleveland Newton, general counsel for the Mississipp Valley association, learned today after a short talk with Mr. Hoover on the general sitaution in the valley states.

Not Now Receptive.

Cornelius Lynde, one of the attorneys for the Chicago sanitary district, who has sought an interview with Mr. Hoover here and who proposed to take his troubles to Florida to present to the next President, was met with the same unwillingness to listen at this time to any matters affecting policy of legislation.

Mr. Newton, who is a former member of congress from Missouri and thoroughly acquainted with the situation in Washington, did not press for an interview at this time, but it is probable that he and William R. Dawes, president of the association, will see Mr. Hoover shortly after inauguration.

While Mr. Newton did not discuss cabinet appointments with Mr. Hoover, it was learned from other sources that he has had the idea of appointing an engineer to the war department post in view of this very situation which is arising and which the secretary will be called upon to handle.

Engineer to Be Civilian.

Maj. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, now chief of army engineers, is acquainted with all phases of the waterways development, and might be called upon for this job, but it is understood that the engineers that Mr. Hoover has considered are civilians.

Mr. Hoover's refusal to consider this question at this time is due largely to the fact that he has more pressing problems on hand. These are the cabinet, the special session, and the appointment of his fact finding prohibition commission.

While the waterways advocates are anxious to get started on new legislation on this subject during the special session and are urging it on the ground that it is an integral part of the farm relief program advanced by Mr. Hoover himself, the plans for the session now being made preclude consideration of any subjects but the federal farm board and the tariff.

Grange Program Presented.

Louis J. Taber, master of the National grange, presented the grange program for agricultural relief to Mr. Hoover today. He said that he thought Mr. Hoover would make a heroic effort to solve this problem. Tariff changes to equalize agriculture and industry are a large part of the grange formula.

Senator Burton of Ohio, Senator Nye of North Dakota, Ralph Williams, national committeeman from Oregon, and E. B. Clements, national committeeman from Missouri, also talked with Mr. Hoover today. Representative Porter of Pennsylvania was another caller.

In connection with the attorney general appointment, it now appears certain that Col. William J. Donovan of Buffalo will not be appointed. Three names of those under consideration by Mr. Hoover are Silas Strawn of Chicago, Judge Frank S. Dietrich of the Ninth circuit, who sits in Boise and in Montana, and Edwin B. Parker, a member of the mixed claims commission, who served as a dollar a year man during the war. He formerly practiced law in Texas and now has an office in Washington.

HIT BY ENGINE; KILLED.

Mrs. Maxine Stresenreuter Culver, daughter of Frank Stresenreuter of Chicago, was married yesterday to Harold C. Strotz, La Salle street broker, chairman of the board of the Chicago Stadium corporation and heir to the wealth of his father, the late Charles N. Strotz, vice president of the American Tobacco company. He is a member of the Onwentsia club polo team.

The marriage ceremony was performed by Judge Howard Hayes in his home, 4840 Kimbark avenue. The couple left last evening for Nassau in the Bahama islands. They will return about April 1 to live in the Stresenreuter town house at 1250 Astor street.

Mrs. Strotz was divorced from her first husband, Gene Gordon Culver, grandson of the founder of the famous military academy in St. Louis, Mo., on June 17, 1926.

Mr. Strotz was divorced from his first wife, who was Miss Eugenie Vanderveer of Taylorville, Ill., last October.

The youthful Mrs. Strotz was taken to Europe for extensive travel by her parents before she was sixteen. She was even then a great beauty and nobleman after nobleman wooed her, only to be told by the young girl that she intended to marry an American husband.

JURY ACQUITS 3 IN MURDER CASE; JUDGE AROUSED

Blame Refusal of Cop to Identify Pair.

A jury in Judge John P. McGoorty's Criminal court late yesterday acquitted Michael Reilly, William Clifford, and George Barker, alleged labor racketeers, of the murder of Albert Pratt, North Clark street garage attendant. The prosecution laid the not guilty verdict chiefly to the attitude of Policeman Walter Hoder, who refused to identify any of the defendants, although he previously had identified the photographs of Barker and Reilly.

Judge McGoorty, incensed by the verdict and the policeman's conduct on the stand, declared after the jury's decision was made that he would go through with plans to lay the question of dealing with such recalcitrant witnesses before a meeting of the Criminal court judges.

Policeman Shot Himself.

Policeman Hoder himself was the first victim of the three men who shot Pratt. He had been shot behind the ear and seriously wounded and the day following the same men went to the garage and shot Pratt, whom they killed, mistaking him for John Brown, another colored man who had been the only witness to the shooting of the policeman.

Persists in His Refusal.

Although he spent almost two months in a hospital recovering from the bullet that was fired with almost fatal effect into his own head, Policeman Hoder persisted in his refusal to identify the three defendants as the men who fired on him and killed Pratt. Thus the jury was treated to the unusual spectacle of the state refusing to vouch for one of its own witnesses.

MOTHER ADMITS KILLING HER DAY OLD BABY BOY

The body of a day old baby boy was found wrapped in rags and newspapers in an alley in the rear of 5501 Kenwood avenue yesterday afternoon. The infant had apparently been suffocated. Last night Hyde Park police arrested Mrs. Mabel Huson, 22 years old, 5519 Kenwood avenue. She admitted that she was the mother of the child.

The woman told police that she had been separated from her husband for the last two years. The baby, she said, was born Thursday. While carrying it downstairs, she said, the infant started crying and she stuffed a handkerchief into its mouth. She gave police the name of the baby's father but asserted she did not know where he is.

INVESTIGATEROLE PLAYED BY CATS IN N.U.FRAT RITES

An investigation was being conducted by the Humane society of Evanston last night to determine whether members of the Monocoans, a fraternity at Northwestern university, were guilty of cruelty to cats in their initiation ceremonies. The investigation arose out of complaints to the society that numerous cats which had been obtained by the fraternity men had mysteriously disappeared.

Harry Malmberg, 700 Linden avenue, Wilmette, who a few days ago obtained a cat from the Evanston Animal Shelter, declaring that he wanted the animal for his mother, was questioned Thursday by Fred Arndt, 1143 Hinman avenue, Evanston, president of the Humane society. Malmberg admitted that the cat had been used in connection with initiation ceremonies. He said, however, that it had not been harmed. The animal was later killed and used for dissection purposes in a zoology class, it is declared.

MIDOCEANWARMS YANKEES FLEEING COLD OF EUROPE

Steamer Travelers Bask in 60 Degree Sunshine.

ABOARD S. S. AQUITANIA: via Radio to the Associated Press, Feb. 22.—American bound tourists who for weeks had been shivering in the icy cold of the severe European winter, today experienced summer warmth in mid-Atlantic. The sea was calm as a mill pond, the temperature was above 60 degrees, the sun shone brilliantly and passengers sat about the open deck without overcoats or other wraps.

Germany Fears Floods.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Signs of a rapidly approaching thaw have led authorities to take extraordinary precautions against flood damage almost certain to follow this long, snowy winter, the like of which had not been experienced in 150 years.

The Vistula is frozen from Danzig to well beyond Warsaw. The Oder is solid between Swinemunde and Breslau. Only a few spots are open in the Elbe in Saxony and Czecho-Slovakia. The Weser is one sheet of ice from Minden to Bremen, and the Rhine presents unbroken ice for 60 miles.

A perilous situation will be created when these hundreds of miles of thick ice begin to move down the rivers. The question was raised in the reichstag today of how railway bridges might be protected from the menace. A request was forwarded to the minister of defense to have squads of engineers in readiness at danger points to blow up ice jams.

New Frigid Waves in Balkans.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Miseries of floods which followed severe cold in southeastern Europe as a consequence of a rapid rise in temperature have now been intensified by return to arctic conditions.

In Teraca, where at least a million acres are submerged, the intense cold has recurred. Such, also, is the case in Jugo-Slavia, Czecho-Slovakia and Hungary. Belgrade, center of the stricken area, reported a temperature of 17 below zero.

Heavy snowfalls were reported over wide areas, reaching far into Greece. Lack of food and coal, owing to disruption of railroad service caused great distress, particularly among the poor.

Cold Empties Austrian Treasury.

VIENNA, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The Austrian parliament learned today that the country, in a pathetic plight because of the unprecedented winter, has no relief funds available in the national treasury or in the coffers of the city of Vienna. Karl Seitz, mayor of Vienna, said the population of the city was living in the darkest misery with one man of every four unemployed and families of six or more persons forced to live in one room on a government dole of only $3 weekly.

"The municipal government is feeding 120,000 widows and orphans," he said. "Unlike other countries, where sunshine succeeds the darkness of winter, Austria seems doomed to perpetual gloom. I ask the federal government to give us $2,000,000 additional for the relief of the starving population. All our funds have been exhausted."

Dr. Joseph Resh, minister of social welfare in the cabinet, said the national government could not advance further relief funds from its depleted treasury.

60 Trapped 4 Days in Desert Blizzard Win Way to Safety

Rock Springs, Wyo., Feb. 22.—(AP)—A tale of suffering, impromptu military law and mutiny was told today by Herman C. Keiser of Carlsbad, N. M., leader of the crew of a fleet of 23 trucks, snowbound four days in the Red desert. The vanguard of the party of 60 reached Rock Springs late today. It consisted of five women and six children, led by Keiser, who later returned to aid in bringing out the rest of the party.

The trucks carrying the group from New Mexico to a construction job near here became stalled Monday when a blizzard whipped across the desert and piled five to six feet of snow upon the highway.

The plight of the party was relieved somewhat late yesterday when an airplane piloted by Edmund T. Allen dropped 1,000 pounds of provisions and blankets to the little camp where the storm sufferers had huddled about their stranded caravan.

Story of Suffering.

Keiser, his face nipped by frost and his eyes bloodshot and puffed from lack of sleep, told the story of the four days and nights of suffering.

"It was the wildest snow I ever saw," he said. "Until the airplane with provisions arrived last night we had only a little food, and that was being rationed out in two scant meals a day."

The temperature was far below zero during all of the time the party was stranded, and it was dependent upon the bodies of the trucks for shelter from howling gales that piled snow across the desert. Lumber that was loaded on some of the trucks was burned to provide warmth.

Keiser applied something similar to military law to the outfit.

"It had to be done," he said today. "Some one had to be in control and I assumed the position. Almost all of the men had been on my pay roll for several years, and they all were fine."

Mutiny Squelched.

A near mutiny occurred, however, when several of the men, after prolonged suffering from the cold, wanted to attempt to go on foot to the Union Pacific railroad tracks, some miles away, in hope of being able to stop a train.

"I realized the hazard of such a trip through an impenetrable blizzard, and squelched the plan, ordering the men to obey or accept the consequences. Forceful methods finally were necessary to quell the mutiny," he asserted. "I believe, though, that the men were temporarily insane from the suffering they had undergone."

Women and children were placed in the trucks, huddled together for warmth and with all available wrappings over them.

EXPERTS AIM TO KEEP GERMANY'S FINANCES SOUND

Annuities May Be Split Into Two Classes.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 22.—The subcommittee of five today submitted its recommendations to the plenary session of the Young commission regarding the procedure for revision of German reparations and the transfer clause. The report aroused such varied criticisms and suggestions that another adjournment was taken until Monday to permit Sir Josiah Stamp and his four colleagues to iron out the difficulties.

The subcommittee proposed to substitute a consultative transfer committee to replace the permanent transfer committee established under the Dawes plan. In case Germany feared cash payments would threaten or weaken its exchange, it could invoke the committee to decide whether to postpone the payments.

Objection was raised because it was proposed that Germany's appeal for such action by the consultative transfer committee must be public. It was contended that the fiscal economic situation was dangerous, would provoke panic and fear in Germany as well as among foreign creditors, thereby precipitating a drop of the German mark. The public would then attempt to get money outside the country.

Would Divide Annuities.

The subcommittee suggested the annuities be divided into two portions, one amount that Germany is able to pay without any doubt, and the balance subject to payment if the economic and financial situation permitted.

Although the Americans are not members of the subcommittee, Owen D. Young, J. Pierpont Morgan, and Thomas W. Lamont are keeping in close contact with the deliberations.

It is expected a final solution will be found Monday, by which the German government will be made entirely responsible and autonomous, so Berlin treasury officials can take whatever secret measures advisable to safeguard the mark and adjourn payments if the transfer of a huge amount annually threatens to weaken currency.

Americans Are Optimistic.

The coming week is expected to bring the experts face to face with the main job of fixing the amount of annuities and deciding on the number of years they must be paid. Despite the anxiety expressed by certain European delegations, the Americans continue to voice extreme optimism over the final outcome.

On the surface the delegations are taking things easy, living in luxurious hotels and being entertained elaborately at banquets and luncheons, with imposing menus and wine cards. The cold weather has interfered with golfing and most delegates are substituting motor rides or shopping tours with their wives and families.

NEW RULERS OF CHINA MENACED BY CHEFOO WAR

Charge Japanese Back Shantung Rebels.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 22.—Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, president of the state council, in hurrying from his home district of Chekiang province to Nanking tonight to handle the situation in Shantung, which is the most critical that has faced the Nationalist government since the eviction of the northern militarists last year. According to reports from Chefoo heavy fighting has been progressing for the last two days near that city. Gunfire is plainly audible and wounded troops are arriving in Chefoo.

The welfare of about sixty American missionaries in that area is not known here, but it is thought ample warning was given last week to enable them to reach Chefoo, where United States gunboats are stationed and where the light cruiser Trenton is expected to arrive Sunday evening. The Trenton left Manila yesterday, steaming directly for Chefoo, a distance of about 1,500 miles. It has a speed of about 400 miles daily.

Halts Parley with Japan.

The first definite effect of the Shantung situation has been the refusal of the Nationalist government to resume negotiations with the Japanese minister, Kenkichi Yoshizawa, over the Tsinan incident. Dr. C. T. Wang, Nationalist foreign minister, said, "I have not seen Mr. Yoshizawa and do not know when we will resume the parley."

M. Yoshizawa said he had notified the Nationalist government of the text of the new conditions and is awaiting the Nationalist government's action.

Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's spokesman here is indignant over the Shantung development. He admitted the Nationalist government's inability to send troops to the Chefoo or Tsingtao areas owing to the presence of Japanese troops along the Shantung railway.

He declared it is his belief that the new crisis is due to alleged Japanese resentment for a Chang Chung-chang comeback. He pointed out that Chang has been residing within the closely guarded Japanese zone of Dairen, Manchuria, hence it would be obviously impossible for him to depart from Dairen with an armed bodyguard of 150 troops without Japanese knowledge.

Claim Nationalists Are Victors.

CHEFOO, China, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The Shantung peninsula has been the scene of heavy fighting for the last two weeks between Nationalist troops and a large force of former northern soldiers under command of Marshal Chang Chung-chang, one time military governor of Shantung. Thus far the Nationalists, although greatly outnumbered, have been victorious because of superior arms and better organization, but they are seeking reinforcements, which at present are not in sight.

HAUGAN ESTATE TOTALS $1,500,000 IN INVENTORY

An inventory of the estate of the late Henry A. Haugan, who was chairman of the board of the State Bank of Chicago, shows assets aggregating approximately $1,500,000, with a wide distribution of small investments as well as a few large holdings.

Mr. Haugan, who died on Dec. 1 at the age of 50, owned 318 shares of stock in the State Bank of Chicago, which, at current quotations, are worth $281,430. Cash on deposit in an account at the bank is listed at $221,656.

The inventory was filed yesterday before Leon Edelman, assistant to Probate Judge Henry Horner. The will, filed a few weeks after the banker's death, bequeathed the bulk of the estate to his widow, Mrs. Blanche Caroline Haugan, 2600 Lake View avenue, and their son, Henry A. Haugan Jr., 19 years old.

TWO AMERICANS FOUND SLAIN BY MEXICAN BANDITS

Murdered After Kidnaping for $50,000 Ransom

BULLETIN.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 22.—(U. P.)—Bodies of two United States miners who had been kidnaped by Mexican bandits and held for ransom reached the city of Guanajuato tonight, according to dispatches to the newspaper Excelsior. The names of the men were given as C. C. Austhrope and J. M. Undersod. They apparently had been shot. Federal troops had found the bodies and taken them to Guanajuato, the advices said. They were held in a hospital there pending arrangements for their disposal.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 22.—Two Americans, J. M. Undersod and C. C. Austhrope, both of the Guanajuato Reduction and Mines company, were kidnaped late Wednesday night at Bustos, state of Guanajuato, according to a dispatch from Guanajuato today. The kidnaped men are said to be part owners of the company and wealthy. The former is superintendent and the latter manager of the mines.

A huge force of bandits, led by a former employé of the mines, surrounded the houses of the Americans. The leader of the bandits, with a guard of a dozen, entered the houses, brought the Americans out, mounted them on horses and set off for the nearby hills with them.

Apparently the kidnaping had been carefully planned and executed. The kidnapers, who worked quietly and made a quick getaway, left word behind that they wanted $50,000 ransom.

Scarcely had the kidnapers left Bustos in the direction of Santa Ana when word was telephoned to Guanajuato reporting the kidnaping. Troops attempted to head off the kidnapers. The governor of the state kept the wires going all night in an attempt to warn every town, village and hamlet in the state to intercept them. It is feared the lives of the Americans might be in danger should federal troops follow the trail, as it is a habit of bandits here to kill prisoners to prevent them giving information as to the parties involved in the kidnaping and as a warning to others kidnaped not to inform the authorities.

Prendergast Assails 42nd Ward Conditions; Demands Police Quit Snooping for Drinks

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Concentration of the police force upon the old police job of chasing crime instead of specializing on the pursuit of the booze and other rackets was advocated last night by Richard Prendergast, candidate for alderman in the 42d ward. Speaking at North Side Turner hall, Mr. Prendergast, who is running against Ald. Dorsey Crowe with the support of the Deneen group and the nonpartisans, and the backing of Frank J. Loesch, assistant state's attorney in charge of the special grand juries, tore into conditions on the near north side in the precincts where rackets and privileges abound.

"This ward," said Mr. Prendergast, "has been turned over to racketeers for the last eight years. You know that. Who is responsible is for you to tell. I'm not here to accuse.

"The police department asked for 1,000 more men. I'm not here to criticize. But you and I know that if the 5,000 men now on the police force were as interested in suppressing crime as in collecting tribute from booze, vice, and gambling, crime would not have the upper hand in Chicago.

Criticizes Wholesale Raids.

"Some weeks ago we had a comic opera raid of hoodlum hangouts. The papers were filled with the arrest of some 3,500 persons, mostly poor men picked up on the street corner.

"Did they find any real criminals? The real criminals don't hang around poolrooms and street corners. The real criminals are living in luxury in some of our best hotels. Prohibition has made crime pay. A real criminal drives around in a high priced car.

"Take the police department out of the enforcement of the prohibition law except for a squad of 250 or 300, and put the rest of the police back on the job—not snooping around, interfering with the liberty of innocent citizens—but back on the old job and we'd have a police force that could protect us against some of these criminals."

"Here's Joe Saltis leaving the Bridewell," he said, "The prince of Wales couldn't have had more royal treatment. Here at Joe's side is Mr. Curran, superintendent of the Bridewell. Saltis has finished sixty days and Curran is sorry to see his old friend go.

"This great citizen, this distinguished bootlegger Polack Joe Saltis goes away, one police car ahead, another behind. It's like visiting royalty making through the city."

A heckler interposed, but was ushered out. Mr. Prendergast drew out a manuscript—a speech made forty years ago from the same platform by his father, who was then county judge and was campaigning for the presidency of the sanitary district. The elder Prendergast was attacking corruption and gangsters and ballot box stuffing and pay roll padding on the sanitary district—it was not so far different from the campaign today.

"Forty years ago, the same pollution was in government," said Mr. Prendergast. "I can only say it is time for honest citizens to get together to make conditions better."

Loesch Recalls History.

Mr. Loesch recalled to the audience that 41 years ago he stood on the same platform and presided over a congressional convention.

"Something fundamental is lacking in government," he said. "An alderman is the most useful official we can vote for. We need more who are not rubber stamped, who have an opinion of their own. What we've got to have is a better city council."

Municipal Judge Herbert G. Immenshausen presided at the rally.

Asserting that Ald. Titus Haffa before his conviction had ambitions to be a second Al Capone, Edward R. Litsinger last night ripped into the alderman of the Forty-third ward as "the outstanding disgrace of the aldermanic election" next Tuesday.

Litsinger addressed a massmeeting in Prudential hall, Halsted street and North avenue, which wound up the campaign of former Alderman Arthur F. Albert, who is seeking to regain the seat he lost to Haffa two years ago. Mrs. Kellogg Fairbanks also appeared for Albert, citing his election as the critical test of the campaign.

"This man Haffa may be a bootlegger, but you've got to hand it to him for nerve," Litsinger declared. "He's going to Leavenworth for a two year vacation and must pay a $10,000 fine. Now he asks you to give him a two year job and $10,000 salary—just enough to clean the slate."

Up in the northwest of Chicago the Thompsonian issue blazed up in the 39th and 40th wards. Ald. Frank J. Rings [39th], styled a "Thompson follower with a poor record" by the M. V. L., was assailed from several quarters. Frank J. Reilly, nonpartisan candidate, charged Rings with being "a subservient henchman of the city hall machine."

The citizens' council of the ward, Walter W. Goralski, president, and Joseph C. Gaulock, secretary, indorsed Steve Adamowski, and took a rap at Ald. Rings.

Mrs. James P. Gross, chairman of the Feeder Bus Women of the Northwest Side, sent in a letter protesting that Rings's literature is claiming her as an ally. "He has used my name without my consent," she wrote.

Chapman Under Fire.

Up in the roaring 40th, Ald. John William Chapman was the target for a concerted attack from Dr. Joseph C. Ross and Dr. William D. McNally, who for twenty years has been coroner's chemist. "I charge Ald. Chapman and Erick Nelson Linn, ward committeeman, with breaking faith," said Dr. Ross at his night meeting.

Dr. McNally, who has the backing of Chief Justice Harry C. Olson of the Municipal court among others, tore into Albert R. Brunker's safety commission.

"We voters," said Dr. McNally, "would like to know why Brunker indorses Ald. Chapman, a simon pure Thompsonite, and in the next breath assails, ridicules and condemns all adherents to Thompson. We have repeatedly asked Brunker to debate this question, but have been ignored."

Predict Schiller Success.

Meanwhile J. A. Schiller, who was the city's sole representative in the expert fees case which resulted in a judgment of over two million dollars for the taxpayers, appeared at a massmeeting. Former Alderman Christ A. Jensen is chairman of the executive committee and Judge Peter H. Schwaba is head of the organization committee, and speakers declared that the ward canvasses indicate Schiller has rosy prospects of landing in the run-off election April 2.

An emotional pitch was struck by the fight against Ald. Louis B. Anderson, one of the Thompson floor leaders, in the Second. At a meeting at the Eighth Regiment armory, five ministers from prominent Negro churches spoke in behalf of Earl B. Dickerson. The audience remained until after midnight, and at times it was swayed with gusts of praying and hymn singing. Edward H. Wright, now the Deneen committeeman, wrote out a check for $1,000 and from the platform offered to bet even money that Dickerson would win without a run-off election.

In the 13th ward a brick was thrown through the windows of the headquarters at 2456 West 38th street of Fred B. Heiser, who used to be chief clerk to Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom. The supporters of Ald. Bryan Hartnett had been holding a meeting in a hall on the floor above.

MASSACRE QUIZ STARTS HUNT FOR VALLEY GUNMEN

Police Trace Owners of Murder Auto.

Belcastro—they had been arrested together on Dec. 6, 1928—and a statement was made that Belcastro had been seen driving a machine into the Wood street garage.

Inquiry brought out the names of their associates as Jack McGurn, known as a machine gunner and an enemy of the Moran gang, members of which are said to have tried twice to kill him; George Bousk, alleged beer salesman and collector for Vallo's agency; Sam LaVerde, who was under arrest and was said to be a good man in operating a still or setting up a miniature brewery.

And then came a report that another of their pals was Tony Florentino, whose description was given as 5 feet 2 inches, 140 pounds, the description of the man burned in the explosion and fire that resulted in the discovery of the automobile.

It was from W. G. Rohmer, 2214 Argyle street, dealer in carbonic acid gas, that the police obtained their first information regarding the garage having been a brewery. Tanks at first believed to contain acetylene were left behind in the garage when the fire sent the suspected killers scurrying, bore Rohmer's name, and he said they were delivered to Roy Eckman, who now lives at 918 North Francisco avenue. Eckman was arrested by Lieut. Christy Hughes.

Eckman said he and Pat McGoldrick, 4029 North Richmond street, had established a brewery in the garage but couldn't get it in proper shape and finally became frightened and abandoned it. Admitting some interest in beer hauling, Eckman said he was legitimately employed under the supervision of Dominick Capizzio, brother of Tony, whose Circus café was made a headquarters by Vallo, McGurn and their growing gang.

This was considered as making it possible for Tony Capizzio, through his brother, to learn of the small brick building in an alley that would make an ideal place for a hideout when needed.

Find Another Gang Lair.

Detectives then found another hiding place of the gang Vallo was said to be forming and with which he was reported ready to wage war against the Moran gang for control of the north side.

This was a real estate office on the east side of Ashland avenue, south of Division street. One man was arrested there whose name was given as Moore and who was formerly a bartender in the circus.

Next the detectives, under the leadership of Lieut. William Cusack, started a search for a picture of Florentino which they wished to show to Dr. James Galloway and Mrs. Merda Engles, nurse at the North Avenue hospital, a block away from the Wood street garage. Mrs. Engles said an Italian came there at the time of the fire Thursday night and said he had been burned in a still explosion. He would not wait until the doctor finished with another patient, but hurried away, apparently fearful a report would be made to the police, the nurse said.

Witnesses Scan Photographs.

Those who used the garage had been seen by several persons who said they would be able to identify them. The witnesses were scanning numerous pictures, but if they identified any one the police refused to divulge the information.

"There is no doubt in our minds about the car," said Assistant State's Attorneys Harry S. Ditchburne and Walker Butler, in charge of the investigation. "It was the car used by the murderers of the Moran gang and with this fact established, the theory that the car so often described as looking like a detective bureau squad car was in fact a squad car is materially weakened."

Haven 2 Miles from Death Scene.

Prosecutor Butler pointed out the relative locations of the scene of the massacre at 2122 North Clark street and the place where the car was found burning Thursday night.

"It is less than two miles from the place of the killing to the place of concealment of the car," he said. "This could be driven in five minutes in a Cadillac equipped with a siren and having the appearance of a police car.

"The killers apparently had planned on a nearby haven in case unexpected pursuit occurred. Speeding south in Clark street to the beginning of Ogden avenue, thence southwest to either North avenue or Cortland street, they could have reached the hiding place and thrown off pursuers with little difficulty. A longer drive might have been dangerous if the alarm had been given quickly. No matter how well planned the murders were, they seem to have realized that they might have trouble in their getaway.

"What would be more natural than to have the nearby place in which to get rid of the car and the machine guns they carried? There also, it seems likely, the two men wearing police uniforms made a quick change of clothing.

"And this much seems certain: They would have abandoned the car in some lonely spot unless they felt sure that ownership of it could eventually be traced to one of the murder band. Wherefore they decided to cut it into little pieces and destroy all the numbers and burn the combustible parts."

All the officials investigating the crime were elated at the discovery of the car. Police Commissioner William F. Russell said the killers had brought it on themselves. The massacre resulted in a great prohibition enforcement drive, and as part of it Commissioner Russell ordered a search of all garages for hidden liquor supplies, stills, and miniature breweries. He believed this order hastened the killers' attempt to destroy the car and brought about its discovery as a result of carelessness in their hurry.

Several Arrests Made.

Several men were arrested in the vicinity of the address at 1859 West North avenue—just across the street from the former business place of Pasqualino Lolordo, who was shot to death in his home several weeks ago after he had taken over the local Sicilian leadership in place of his former chief, Tony Lombardo, who was killed last fall. The prisoners were Michael Farvia, 1155 West Ohio street; Samuel Laverde, 1550 North Kedzie avenue, and Albert Goldbaum, John Borcy and Charles Friedlander. The addresses of the latter three were not revealed. Their names were found in a book carried by Farvia.

The five were held in close custody all night and what they had to say was carefully guarded. Later Sergt. John T. Cunningham arrested a man named Napealian, 614 Noble street, who appeared at the Wood street garage yesterday morning.

Garage Owner Questioned.

Leo Joppet, 1808 Wabansia avenue, owner of the Wood street garage, said it had been rented on Feb. 12—two days before the massacre. Rogers, Joppet said, gave him $20 for the use of the building for a month. Joppet was being shown pictures of known criminals but what he revealed to the police was not revealed. Joppet, however, was kept in custody for his own protection.

In the garage yesterday was found a note that had been trampled on and soiled by moisture. But the writing on it could be deciphered as:

"Your rent is due. Please pay."

Inasmuch as Joppet had been paid in advance it was not believed the note came from him, and police were investigating to see if it had been written by the women who rented rooms across the street from the garage to lodgers now believed to have been spies watching for the time when the Moran gang would be all together in the Clark street rendezvous.

LOESCH HITS DEATH QUIZ

Frank J. Loesch, first assistant state's attorney, speaking before 500 Presbyterian laymen and clergy of Chicago at a luncheon given for him yesterday in the Hotel La Salle, said:

"When I undertook the work of crime investigation I made the statement that the people of Chicago were sitting on top of a volcano, which would erupt in wholesale and retail killings. No one need tell me that there isn't any one who can throw light on the gang massacre. There are at least 100 persons who know enough about it to be of some use in solving the murder.

"Two men killed that day—John May and Dr. R. H. Schwimmer, were not in the gang. Why were they killed? Because dead men tell no tales. If they had been left alive they would have been subpoenaed. Only the dog was overlooked by the slayers."

Refers to Mayor Thompson.

Referring to Mayor Thompson as "that man," Mr. Loesch went on: "As long as that man remains in the city hall we are going to have a serious obstacle in the program of breaking up organized crime. Say what you will, all lines of protective crime run to the city hall, and keep in mind that that man directs the policemen and the policemen do what he wants done."

Mr. Loesch was given a testimonial signed by the 500 men at the meeting.

NOTES THREATEN TWO WOMEN WHO SAW KILLERS

"Keep Still" Warning Sent Week Ago.

Threatening letters in which two women witnesses to the North Clark street massacre of the seven Moran gangsters were advised to "keep your mouth shut" were revealed to the police yesterday—six days after their receipt by the women through the mails.

One of the letters, both of which were purported to come from the murderers, was directed to Mrs. Alphonsine Morin, 2125 North Clark street, almost directly across the street from the garage in which the slayings were committed. The other, misdirected also to Mrs. Morin, was apparently intended to go to Mrs. Jeanette Landsman, 2124 North Clark street, next door to the murder garage, for its contents, addressed to Mrs. Landsman, were sent also to Mrs. Morin.

One Woman Flees City.

Mrs. Morin, upon receipt of the letters, fled from the city, going to stay with relatives in a distant city and another state, taking her two young daughters with her. Because the letter directed to her had been sent by mistake also to Mrs. Morin, Mrs. Landsman and her husband last night had not been informed of the missive the slayers intended for them.

"To whom it may concern," says the letter addressed to Mrs. Morin. "That's the best piece of work committed here for a long time. Lots more to follow."

The letter is signed "The Gang," and there is a postscript, designated as "S. P.," which adds. "You better shut your mouth."

The letter intended for Mrs. Landsman is superscribed with her correct address, 2124 North Clark street, but addressed to "Mrs. Joseph Morin." It is headed, "Chicago, Ill.," and continues:

"Mrs. Landsman: Please keep your mouth shut or you know what will happen to both of you; keep out of our troubles; don't forget. Chi. Boys."

Threats Bared by Police.

The threatening missives were discovered yesterday by Sergt. James Quirk and his detective bureau squad as the plain clothes men were once more, under orders, carefully going over the ground in the neighborhood of the murder garage and again questioning all the neighborhood witnesses.

Mrs. Morin is a witness who told the police she saw the murderers leave the garage after the slayings. She said she believed she could identify the driver of the murderers' automobile.

She also was one of the two women who believed they had rented rooms to spies and lookouts of the murder gang—men who remained in their rooms all day long under the pretext of sleeping while they purported to be working nights as taxicab chauffeurs.

Hears Roar of Guns.

Mrs. Landsman heard the rat-tat-tat of the machine gun as it dispatched its victims in the garage next door. She ran down from her home and into the door of the garage, saw some men leaving as she went in, and then came upon the bodies of the victims sprawled out upon the floor.

Sergt. Quirk and his men obtained the letters from relatives of Mrs. Morin, who told the detectives that Mrs. Morin, terror stricken, had left home almost immediately after the postman delivered the missives on Feb. 16.

GEST HERE TO CONFER ABOUT PLANS FOR FAIR

Morris Gest, producer of the "Miracle" and numerous other extravaganzas, arrived in Chicago last night from New York for a conference with Samuel Insull and other members of the World's Fair committee on important matters connected with the World's Fair.

"Before I return to New York tomorrow night, I may have some announcements to make relative to stage productions for the 1933 exposition," he asserted.

Alexander Moissi, European dramatic star who appeared in Chicago this winter in a German version of Tolstoy's "Redemption," will play "Hamlet" in English at a local theater during the coming year, Mr. Gest said. The actor is at present engaged in mastering the English language, according to Mr. Gest.

Cheaper Beef Appears Near for Consumer

Farmer, Packer Getting Less than Last Fall.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Beef producers have been wondering if their city customers are getting steaks and roasts at reduced prices in keeping with the lower prices paid farmers for live cattle. Recently farmers have been getting roughly from $35 to $50 a head less for their choice steers than they were paid when prices were high last fall. Packers are selling choice beef carcasses from these animals at from $25 to $35 a piece less than they got last September when cattle were at the highest point.

Since last fall beef consumption has fallen off. Marketing experts claim that distribution channels have been quite heavily loaded with beef during the last few weeks. Despite the cattle shortage on the farms and ranges, within the last few days word has been sent out from the local central market encouraging cattle feeders to withhold temporarily their shipments and give the packers a chance to unload their coolers.

Slight Changes in Prices.

These conditions indicate that consumers should be benefiting by a reduction in the retail price of beef. But the only change in retail prices of five common cuts—rib and chuck roasts, and round, sirloin, and porterhouse steaks—is that rounds and sirloins of the better grades are a few cents a pound less now than last September, according to current quotations in the National Provisioner.

Last fall when high grade steers were selling up to $18.40 a hundred and packers were wholesaling to retailers dressed beef from choice animals at $25 to $26.50 a hundred, butchers were retailing beef at the prices given below, quoted by the Provisioner during the last week in September, 1928:

Rib roast, heavy end, 16 to 35 cents a pound; light end, 20 to 45 cents a pound.
Porterhouse steak, 30 to 75 cents a pound.

Wholesale Beef Is Lower.

This week good to choice live steers were quoted at from $11.25 to $14, some grades selling as high as $15 a hundred. Dressed beef from choice steers sold to the retailers at $21 a hundred.

A shopping tour of the meat markets in suburbs, the loop district, and the south, west and north sides of the city made by THE TRIBUNE during the last few days reveals that there is a wide variation in the prices asked for beef by various butchers. A general comparison of these prices and prices prevailing last fall indicates that there is little change. By glancing below, housewives may compare their last fall meat bills with the prices asked this week in retail markets of the city and suburbs. The following prices are on the best grades, quoted in various shops, listed according to districts, showing the cents per pound asked for five common cuts of beef:

Suburbs	45-55	28-35	44-50	55-60	55-75
S. Side	38	25	32	35	45
W. Side	39-55	25-28	30-35	35-50	40-60
N. Side	36-45	29-30	48	35-50	40-65

All of the above figures are given just as they were quoted by meat cutters, who said that they would sell the best grade of cuts they handled at these prices. The prices are from stores of different classes, including some of the finest in the districts. Chain stores are represented in these prices.

President of Peru Denies Agreement on Tacna-Arica

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 22.—(AP)—President Leguia of Peru today expressed surprise at dispatches from Santiago, Chile, reporting final settlement of the Tacna-Arica boundary dispute between Peru and Chile and denied that this long pending problem was solved. He said he was unable to say if a plan sponsored by Alexander P. Moore, American ambassador to Peru, was acceptable or practical for Peru. This plan of the American ambassador, by which, in rough outline, Tacna would go to Peru and Arica to Chile, was along the lines which the Chilean dispatches have insisted represented the final settlement of the controversy.

PLENTY TO DRINK IN MY DISTRICT, TEXAS DRY INFORMS HOUSE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—A Texas dry invited a Wisconsin wet to come "down to my district" and meet the bootleggers "and I will see that you get all you want to drink" today on the floor of the house.

"And there are plenty of them," the Texan ended.

The invitation was extended by Representative Thomas L. Blanton, Democrat of the Lone Star state, to Representative John C. Schafer, Republican, Wisconsin, at the conclusion of a fiery set-to between the two.

Schafer declined the invitation, saying he did not drink.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Direct charges that Ivy Lee of New York, publicity adviser of the Rockefellers, is the paid agent of international bankers and European interests striving to influence the foreign policy of the United States, were made on the floor of the house today by Representative George Holden Tinkham [Rep., Mass.]. Cross-examination of Lee by a special committee such as is proposed in the pending Tinkham resolution would expose, the Massachusetts member predicted, "one of the grossest scandals which ever defaced political affairs in this country."

Lee's Activities.

Mr. Tinkham declared he will demand that Lee be summoned as the first witness if the investigation is authorized.

Mr. Tinkham pointed out that a few weeks ago when the Kellogg anti-war treaty and the 15 cruiser bill were pending in the senate Lee sent every member of congress "an elaborately printed publication containing two speeches of a foreign premier, the evident purpose of which was to influence the passage of the multilateral treaty and to prevent the expansion of our navy."

Rediscount Rates Cited.

"International bankers, it is said," continued Mr. Tinkham, "have repeatedly made as one of their conditions to floating the loans of some foreign governments in this country the retention of Mr. Lee by those governments at a high salary."

Earlier in the day the house banking and currency committee voted unanimously to shelve the Black resolution calling upon President Coolidge and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon for details of an alleged agreement between the federal reserve board and the Bank of England to regulate rediscount rates.

Apprised of the committee's action, Representative Loring Black [Dem., N. Y.], sponsor of the resolution, declared: The greater the efforts to block the inquiry, the greater the mystery surrounding the reserve board's subservience to the Bank of England."

STEUBEN CLUB OFFICERS GIVEN CONFIDENCE VOTE

Six hundred members of the Steuben club last night joined unanimously in a vote of confidence in the officials of the club at the club's annual Washington day dinner at the Morrison hotel. Rumors that a disturbance was to be caused by members of a faction who appear as complainants in a suit in Circuit court charging officers of the club with misuse of club funds caused Sheriff John E. Traeger to post ten deputies from his office among the diners.

Following a favorable report on the financial condition of the organization by Owen Moore, head of a firm of certified public accountants, a resolution commending the policies pursued by club officials was presented by William C. Scherwat, former assistant probate judge, and seconded by George R. Katman, south side furniture merchant. The resolution was adopted without a dissenting vote, although members of the opposing faction were present.

DRYS FALL OUT AND CALL NAMES IN HOUSE DEBATE

Wrangle Over Harris Bill and Bishop Cannon.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Promise of another partisan row over increased appropriations for Volstead enforcement was seen in the clash of Representative W. B. Bankhead [Dem., Ala.] and Representative L. C. Cramton [Rep., Mich.] in the house today. Mr. Bankhead accused Mr. Cramton and Representative W. R. Wood [Rep., Ind.], the house conferees, of violating a pledge when they refused to bring the Harris $24,000,000 proposal back from the conference committee for a vote of the house.

The Alabama member scored Mr. Cramton for criticising the activities of Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, in behalf of the Harris proposal.

Sees Change in Attitude.

"What a remarkable change an election will make in the attitude of men," declared Mr. Cramton, pointing to Mr. Bankhead. "The gentleman from Alabama has been a member of the house for years and, since the 18th amendment was ratified, his voice was never heard before in an appeal for money for enforcement. But, since Bishop Cannon showed him and fellow-Democrats how the south can be saved for the Democratic party, he has been eloquent for a huge appropriation without any plan for its expenditure or any request from the responsible department and bureau heads."

"And so far as Bishop Cannon is concerned, whatever else I may have said about him, I never called him a bigot nor a political preacher as certain well known southern Democrats—some of them from the gentleman's own state—did recently."

Proposes Some Real Remedies.

Representative Emanuel Celler [Dem., N. Y.], an outstanding wet, announced today that if the house passes the Jones "five years and $10,000 fine" maximum Volstead penalty bill, he will offer a measure to make "punishment of prohibition violators as barbarous and hideous as possible."

To "satisfy the fanatical cruelty of the professional prohibitionists, who are apparently drunk with power," Mr. Celler said, he would propose that violators should be punished by "hanging, the body to be cut down while alive, and the accused to be disemboweled, his head cut off and his body quartered."

UNKNOWN GIVES $3,000,000 TO JOHNS HOPKINS

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 22.—(AP)—An anonymous gift of $3,000,000 for the medical and surgical clinics was announced by Dr. Frank J. Goodnow, president of Johns Hopkins university, at the commemoration day exercises today.

The gift will make possible addition of 165 public beds to the hospital accommodations, and Dr. Goodnow pointed out that there would be an annual income sufficient to insure that the beds may be available to the poor without any restriction as to ability to pay.

An Appetizer Party Can Be 'Something New'

If You Aim at the Unusual, Why Not Try One?

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Four days ago one of the recorders of doings in society mentioned an "appetizer party" given at Palm Beach. What a fertile idea in that or either the imitator or the inventor! Most likely those who gave this party know well those restaurants in Paris that have made their fame by the great list of hors d'oeuvre they have at the luncheon or at the "a la bouchette" hour; the restaurant in Los Angeles that is Parisian in this respect, and those finer eating places in New York City at which are conducted roulette wheels of appetizers so perfectly that when they have been wrecked they still look trim and not unpleasant.

We do not do these things so well in Chicago. It is not because we have not the chefs who know the whole routine, but, as one food wise man explained to me, they have no assistants of intelligence enough to do their bidding. A sort of exquisiteness is necessary in this business. Pure mechanical work is futile if there is no charm. The makers of appetizers have to know many sorts of things other than what vinegar can be. Particularly they must know how great a romance is the "gousse" of garlic, the suit of sweet butter, the immaculate radish, with a green stem. By the way, public radish service is rarely top notch, and I have seen persons of intelligence nibbling slimy, stringy radishes.

A Home Appetizer Party.

With a Chinese dish of many sections, each with something different in it, a home cook can get up something—and well beforehand—that with sandwiches—dark bread preferably or toasty—and the ever imperative coffee can be made to serve any small party, such as the one of the weekly bridge, etc. And the mistress of a home of leisure, which happens to have the treasured silver casserolettes or little coquilles, can serve hot appetizers for her dinner parties that will go far to make the meal memorable. Yes, with no more than nice discs or fingers of thin toast on a heated bread and butter plate as a holder for "ye taste bits," the appetite, and even the eye, can be as well reached, though the esthetic emotions may not be quite as gratified.

And the one who would entertain her friends thus has but to look at food advertisements in the newspapers and in the layout of the magazines for sardines in special sauces, fillets of herrings or anchovies of special denominations, fancy sprats and all that. And sometimes the lady playing hostess could call her collection of appetizers by the Italian name of antipasti, or by the Swedish name of smörgåsbord, with due conformity to types served in Italy and Sweden.

Again we say, what a fertile idea is the appetizer party!

Other Parties of the Hour.

The other day I read through column after column about social doings over the country, to see what was doing in parties, bowing my head to the inevitable, as it were. At St. Augustine they were just about to celebrate Washington's birthday with a jungle party and charity ball, with banana trees, bamboo, etc., and monkeys and tigers in effigy. What glorious things one could do with piles of bananas for such a party if one had a training in decorative arts. Chinese stores have edible bamboo. Just let your imagination get busy! I do not dare let mine just here, because I want to talk of other parties.

In these columns read, of course there was mention of teas and bridge luncheons no end, but there was a midnight oyster roast, a fish chowder party [local specialty], and I remember back to those Nassau parties with oranges on a stick, and how on one of the keys between Miami and Key West the traveler gets fun and refreshment from cocoanuts. O, yes, we can find all sorts of ideas for tropical parties, and some of them might be of the Alice in Wonderland order, for the children call the cocoanut monkey face because of its three eyes. And suppose we could invite in the "Calling Crabs," which Charles Kingsley—the younger generation will have to look him up, but the older know—found so entertaining when he visited the West Indies and wrote:

"My eye fell, for the first time in my life, on a party of Calling Crabs, who had been down to the water to fish, and were now scuttling up to their burrows among the mangrove roots; and at the sight of the pairs of long-stalked eyes, standing upright like a pair of opera glasses, and the long single arms which each brandished, with frightful menaces, as of infuriated pygmies, I burst into such a fit of laughter, that I nearly fell out into the mud."

Crab meat is a party viand, but you see there is a good deal about crabs besides the meat that is entertaining, and worth remembering, while people who pamper their appetites wait patiently for the sand crab, and small deep brown fishermen of the tropics if these are not forthcoming.

Parties Wanted!

Buoyed Up by Letters.

Why did I go to these society columns to find out current party doings? Because of what happened immediately after my recent remonstrant article on parties, I bowed my head to the inevitable, as it were. To be sure, some people who read that article wrote me some delightful letters which set me up, buoyed me up, as it were, to an insight into tasks that might in hours of gloom be fulfilled. But those who did not read, and some that do not even subscribe to our paper, determined what these tasks must be. But in gloom I still declare I will not give out recipes to use for the first time at a party, making it "the dog."

It was a strange circumstance that immediately after writing that article I should get the most specific and inclusive requests for party menus I have ever received. Here was a group of quite young people who addressed me as impersonally as though I was a dictionary because they wanted to eat Hindu food. A commercial institution wanted me to get them up a luncheon menu because they were entertaining a branch of one of the best known national men's organizations. I did not, although it was an opportunity.

But I did write 300 words for a woman who could give but two courses for her evening bridge refreshments for eight, and wanted something Spanish. She gave me enough details to make me feel a personal interest in her problem.

Tribune Cook Book

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Sugar in Vegetables.

Sugar is today being exploited in quite particular ways, and I think a mistake is being made by the exploiters, because, in a way, they are imitating the old patent medicine men who extolled their products as a cure for every evil under the sun, and "then some."

It is exceedingly refreshing to have some foods that are not sweet, and it is exceedingly cloying to have a dinner with too much sweet in it. Sugar is a great food, greater, probably, than the world guesses, a great maintenance food, and a flavor, too, but let us not overwork it. Keep it in its place, and it can do wonders, but out of place it may become hateful.

Why am I talking thus? Just because an advertising firm of note writes to me in part thus: "We will appreciate it if you will advise us as to your reaction to and opinion concerning the use of sugar in the following vegetables." Following this they ask me about my ideas about sugar with inexpensive cuts of meat—my "reaction and experience"—and then any information I have available on these lines.

As a nearly complete list of vegetables was given, etc., here was a nice place for me to write three or four hundred pages on this cooking, but I had to say that circumstances altered cases, that I did not believe the housewife commonly used sugar in cooking vegetables unless she was a poor cook, because most vegetables have sugar of their own which should be kept in, and I inclosed an article on the cooking of turnip so that the sugar would be kept in. I might have added—and I think I would have been right, but I ought to consult some high authority before saying it—that the sugar naturally in vegetable is easier to digest than any we can add.

As to circumstances altering cases, there are such when we deliberately sweeten or candy sweet potatoes, glaze carrots, make celeri au jus, spiced beets, etc. But new cabbage is as sweet as sweet potatoes if cooked well, onions are almost incredibly sweet roasted, squash is naturally sweet, as are melons, and I do not want my greens sweet—spinach, endive, dandelion. To give us a bit of bitter is their glory. With seedling lettuce leaves I like sugar in the French dressing, but I know the very idea is hately to an epicure. Please do not sugar everything, I say. That is one reaction.

Clever Woman Always Ready for Guest or Two

Impromptu Meal Is Easily Assembled.

BY SALLY LUNN.

If you are the competent manager of your household that every housekeeper should aspire to be, you probably welcome the casual "dropping in" of your friends at odd moments and do your best to encourage them in the flattering habit. It is only the inefficient chatelaine who is upset by the arrival of unexpected guests, who apologizes because things aren't "just so," and who fusses so in arranging an impromptu meal that her visitors are made uncomfortable, tacitly deciding they will never repeat the call.

Of course, it is a fine art, this business of keeping your home machinery running so perfectly that nothing can upset its steady routine, but it is a woman's job. A mechanic is not expected to keep his hands clean while he is toiling with an oily motor, but his job is not a constant one. A good wife and mother should have the mechanism of her domain so organized that she can at all times present an unruffled appearance to the world.

Sunday Night Supper.

Sunday evenings, for example, if people wander in, you should be prepared for such an emergency and not have to scramble together a hasty meal from odds and ends eked out with supplies from the delicatessen store. And why not have an emergency table set for such occasions? Don't be the type who sets a stunning table for a party and then does things any old way at all when she isn't prepared.

With the infinite variety of artificial centerpieces that are available now, it isn't necessary to have flowers blooming continually on the dining room table. You may have a bouquet of glass or beads or feathers or shells, or you can have figurines, or fruit.

Have Simple Decorations.

For your preparedness outfit, have simple things, though. Don't get out the Dresden figures that you use for a formal dinner. Informality is the note of the occasion, and simple but colorful peasant china, pewter, or pottery china is appropriate. Tea sets that come with teapot, sugar bowl and creamer, and a half dozen plates, can be obtained in the wares suitable for this use.

The linen, too, should be of the less elaborate variety. Doily sets of hand made linen or crash are surely more appropriate than the best lace doilies. Even using candles that have been burnt before helps to produce the effect you want to attain, that of easy, comfortable hospitality.

It takes practice to produce this sort of scene with ease and nonchalance, but good arrangement and observations each time you are called upon to do it will result in additional laurels to your reputation as a hostess, and your friends won't say, "O, let's not go there. She always goes to such a lot of work for us."

Make in Ten Minutes Eatmor Cranberry Sauce

They came a-galloping to these sunrise feasts

The Mickelberry sausage flavor spurred them on

Up bright and early. To saddle and away. Ah, how the beaux and belles of Georgia did love those "sunrise feasts" at the Mickelberry plantation, when Grandmother Mickelberry herself was not only the hostess but also the lady of the kitchen.

For none but she knew the secret for making such wonderful sausage—little nuggets of deliciousness that fairly melted in the mouth. So she made them with her own hands for the quality folk that gathered 'round her table.

She knew just what tender morsels of sweet young pork to select, and how to blend them exactly with a seasoning of Southern herbs and condiments known to herself alone.

Down the years has come this selfsame recipe to the descendants of its originator. Which means that today you can have sausages just like those Grandmother Mickelberry made in good old plantation days—mild, zestful, nourishing.

Today's Recipe

Mickelberry Stuffed Tomatoes

1 lb. Mickelberry's Sausage Meat
6 uniform sized tomatoes
½ teaspoon salt

Wash tomatoes and hollow out center, leaving at least a half-inch of pulp adhering to outside shell. Chop the removed pulp fine and mix with sausage meat. Sprinkle salt into the hollowed tomato. Fill with the sausage-tomato mixture and bake in moderate oven (375° F.) for 25 to 30 minutes. Serve hot garnished with parsley.

Wherever good things are served you will find Mickelberry's old farm sausage gracing the menu—in clubs, hotels, on the finest trains and in thousands of homes. They are made fresh daily, in links, patties and meat. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Treat your family to a Mickelberry breakfast. Follow the simple, tempting recipe shown here. Hear them tell you how different these sausages are—and how particularly acceptable they are to delicate appetites. They come in the protecting green-and-yellow package.

Don't forget, too, that Mickelberry makes other delicious table foods: Smoked Hams, Sliced Bacon in Cartons, Mayonnaise and Thousand Island Dressings, Sandwich Spread, Spiced Pigs Feet, and many others for daily food occasions.

BUKHARIN GROUP DEMANDS REDS REFORM POLICY

Attacks Methods Used Against Peasants.

MOSCOW, Feb. 23.—(U. P.)—While political attention here has been centered on the energetic fight against the underground Trotskyist organization, a larger conflict has been taking shape behind the scenes.

The "right" tendency within the communist party of the soviet union, whose principal weakness until now has been lack of able and open leadership, seems to have acquired it. Nikolai Bukharin, secretary general of the communist international and heretofore the Marxist theoretician of the Stalin group, apparently is emerging as leader of the moderate "rights."

A "right" program, signed by Bukharin and other prominent communists, has been presented to the party for consideration at its next all-union conference, it was said on good authority.

Seek to Compromise.

The gathering is scheduled for early in March, but may be postponed by the central control committee to permit a settlement in advance of the disputed questions. The document, therefore, may never be brought before the conference. A amicable compromise, or summary action against its signatories, may settle the matter.

Alexei Rykov, president of the council of people's commissars, was reported to be among the signers, but confirmation was not available. He is known to have sided with Bukharin on questions on which there was serious disagreement in the political bureau of the party.

The nature of the program merely can be surmised from Bukharin's public utterances in recent months.

He said some months ago that since the war capitalism not only has been "stabilized" but that it still possesses large "creative forces". That was one of the heresies for which the German communists, Thalheimer and Brandler, were expelled from the party.

Attacks Government.

The fullest statement of Bukharin's views was made recently in a speech at the Bolshoi theater here in commemoration of the fifth anniversary of the death of Nicolai Lenin. While guarding himself against a too direct expression of disagreement with the present regime, he nevertheless made a scathing criticism of official policies, especially as related to the peasant question.

Under the title "Lenin's Political Testament," Bukharin presented an adroitly contrived attack on the government's activities in the last year. In effect he accused Stalin of having been frightened by Trotsky and other "left" pressure into a course in the villages which Lenin had warned against as ruinous.

Trotsky Free to Quit Turkey.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Leon Trotsky, the exile soviet leader, is free to leave Turkey at any time, said an official statement issued by the ministry of foreign affairs at Angora today. The statement said:

"Trotsky came to Turkey with a visa regularly obtained. He is free to go from here to any other country, so far as this government is concerned. During his stay in Turkey he will be under the protection of the same laws as are applied to all foreigners. Beyond that we cannot go and naturally there cannot be any question of special treatment. The duration of his sojourn, which depends upon his own desire, is not known to us."

JAPANESE PEERS VOTE CENSURE OF TANAKA CABINET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 23.—A resolution censuring the government of Premier Giichi Tanaka was passed today in the house of peers by a vote of 173 to 149. The cabinet will not resign. The censure involved Premier Tanaka's appeal to the throne to prevent Minister of Education Rentaro Mizuno from resigning.

The resolution reads: "We regret the steps taken by Premier Tanaka in connection with the resignation of M. Mizuno and regard the action as careless and indiscreet in the extreme, constituting a grave blunder in the discharge of duty."

Aston Schlusser, 61 year old watchman and caretaker, was trapped and suffocated to death in a fire which swept a portion of the vacant Brand brewery building at 2830 Elston avenue yesterday. Radio Revives London Debates on Literature

While Authors Also Give Many Lectures.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON, — [Special Correspondence.]—The new lecture season is now in full swing. London is growing more and more used to lectures and debates. This is possibly owing to the efforts made by those responsible for the radio, as debates and lectures form a much discussed feature of the "educations" side of the British Broadcasting corporation activities.

J. D. BERESFORD.

At any rate, the British Drama league, an institution existing for the encouragement of little theaters, study groups, and amateur dramatic societies, has opened a new clubroom, at the same time inaugurating a series of discussions upon various theatrical questions. The first of these is between Compton Mackenzie and Miss Naomi Royde-Smith and the theme to be debated is "That the broadcast play is no substitute for the acted drama." John Van Druten, the author of "Young Woodley," is to debate the English dramatic censorship with Geoffrey Whitworth, secretary of the British Drama league. As all four of these debaters are excellent speakers [I take Mr. Van Druten by repute, but the others by knowledge], the debates should provide good entertainment.

But this is by no means the end of entertainment which is being offered to Londoners this season. Two parallel courses of lectures are to be given at the City Literary institute, in the course of which J. D. Beresford and R. H. Mottram will speak about "The Novel"; Edmund Blunden and Miss Edith Sitwell on "Poetry"; Ashley Dukes and C. K. Munro on "The Drama," and Miss Rebecca West and T. S. Eliot on "Criticism."

These names are all impressive, and interesting by contrast as well as in themselves. Mr. Beresford belongs to the older school of novelists and he is a very expert practitioner. Some of his books are among the best novels written in England during the second decade of the present century, and while I think he has never received the praise that is his due [except in Monsieur Abel Chevalley's "Le Roman Anglais de Notre Temps"], there is hardly anybody to whom I would listen more gladly upon the subject Mr. Beresford is to discuss.

Mr. Mottram is at the crest of the wave, and has lately been hailed by Arnold Bennett as a "genius; while C. K. Munro is the author of three very original plays, two of them somewhat verbose, and the third a delightful masterpiece in its own line, called "At Mrs. Beam's." Mr. Munro's views of the drama should be vigorous and sound. As for Miss Rebecca West and T. S. Eliot, the contrast is piquant.

Mr. Eliot is a poet and in criticism something of a scholar [though he has lately been getting into trouble over a criticism of Shelley which has brought the astronomical experts down upon him], while Miss West is a law unto herself and a racy and epigrammatic speaker who will certainly amuse her audience to the limit of its capacity.

The whole course sounds most promising, and much as "English people have in the past disliked lectures and debates, I feel sure that they will rally to such appetising fare.

I hear that Mrs. Agatha Christie, who is the author of two of the very best of modern mystery stories and a woman of great humor and spirit, is engaged in writing another tale which she has chosen to finish in—of all places—Persia. It is not known whether the scene of her book will be Bagdad, but if that should prove to be the case, what joy is promised to the lady's numerous admirers!

"Falsehood in War Time," by Arthur Ponsonby [Dutton].

The author of this small volume has, with the aid of several helpers and hard work and research of his own, gathered together most of the favorite bits of propaganda that were rife during the war and tracked them to their lairs. All of the most famous atrocity stories, the story of the corpse factory, the tales of the severed hands of babies, the maimed nurses, which we never knew, of course, he says were never proved, and the most popular of the German tales he also attacks.

MARQUIS TELLS HOW GOOD JEST WARMED 'LE GRAND FRANKLIN'

A new Benjamin Franklin anecdote has been found in a 150 year old diary which was kept by the Marquis de Barbe-Marbois, who was sent to this country during the revolution and who later became secretary of the first French embassy here. The diary is in the form of a series of letters which he wrote to his fiancée, and is amusing and sophisticated. It has just been translated into English. From Baltimore, Md., he wrote:

"It is at the inn where we now are that Dr. Franklin arrived one winter's day, covered with snow and half dead with cold. The family and several guests surrounded the fire, and no one inconvenienced himself for the stranger. He sat down near a window as if to rest, and after several moments addressed the innkeeper and asked him if he had oysters.

"'Yes, excellent ones.'

"'Open them and take a dozen to my horse.'

"'Does he eat them?'

"'Just take them and you will see.'

"Everybody got up to go and see the horse eat oysters. The children, the strangers, the servants went to the stable to witness such a novelty. The doctor, in their absence, established himself near the fire, in the best place. Very soon they came back to tell him that the horse would not even look at the oysters.

"'In that case,' Franklin replied, 'bring them to me and give him some oats.'"

Meetings and Lectures

At the meeting of the Loop Bookfellows tonight at six o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. building, 19 South La Salle street "Whither Mankind," by Charles A. Beard, will be discussed.

John V. A. Weaver will read a few of his poems at the Austin Community Forum tomorrow evening at eight o'clock.

"The Feeling of Inferiority in Childhood and Later Life" is the subject of the lecture given by Dr. Alfred Adler at the Emil G. Hirsch Center on Monday evening at 8:15.

DUFFIELD

THE AMAZON OF THE DESERT

IN A LITTLE VILLAGE IN France the Head of the House of Duffield called upon the grey-haired Russian refugee, General Peter Krassnoff, author of "From Double Eagle to Red Flag" and other epic tragedies of Russia. General Krassnoff did not consider his latest book, "AMAZON OF THE DESERT" (just published at $2.00), on a par with his historical novels. But the General was consoled when we told him that Tolstoi always referred to his most popular novel, "Anna Karenina," as "that silly love story." It is true that in "AMAZON OF THE DESERT" the epic note of the political novels gives place to an idyllic chapter from Russian Outpost life before the war—a thrilling romance of that rugged and barbarous country of Central Asia, the Tien Shan frontier. This adventurous life was eagerly sought after by young cadets of the Imperial Army, but seldom by a girl, and such a girl as the heroine Fedosia, herself the "AMAZON OF THE DESERT."

OUR REVOLUTIONARY FOREFATHERS

DEEP IN THE VAULTS OF A French chateau the authentic letters of Francois, Marquis de Barbe-Marbois have remained hidden for 150 years. They were indited to his fiancee at home during the years 1779-1785, while Marbois was secretary to the French Minister to the United States. Under the title "OUR REVOLUTIONARY FOREFATHERS" (illus. $3.50), these historic letters contain intimate glimpses of Washington, Franklin, Adams, General Putnam, etc. Through a French courtier's sophisticated but friendly eye, you will enjoy the amusing sidelights on American manners. Know you, for example, that Governor Trumbull of Connecticut (soon to be related by marriage to Calvin Coolidge) was preceded by a revolutionary Governor Trumbull who practiced economy at table by blowing his nose on his hands? That a colonist might beat his wife upon paying a fine in advance? That although one did not mention "shirts," "knees," or "garters" yet the practice of "Bundling" was quite "Ritzy"? Part of this fascinating record of "OUR REVOLUTIONARY FOREFATHERS" appeared in the Atlantic Monthly.

THE ROBBERY AT RUDWICK HOUSE

The Rev. Victor Whitechurch, author of "The Crime at Diana's Pool," "A Bishop Out of Residence," etc., is a merry English Dean, who runs miles before breakfast in his "shorts," while solving exciting crimes. In "THE ROBBERY AT RUDWICK HOUSE" the relations of a distinguished British prelate and his stately friends are jeopardised by the cyclonic intrusion of a rich, go-getting, big-hearted American dame. Then the priceless snuff-boxes disappear. And 'round the ragged rock ran the Rugged ROBBER AT RUDWICK HOUSE.

Those snuff-boxes were priceless!—but to discover their mystery will cost you just $2.00 net, and one night's sleep.

FOX FIRE
IS RELIGION ONLY FOX FIRE?

Are the basic beliefs and mechanical formulas of religion but modernised versions of age-old superstitions and fear? Has the doctrine of the Christian Church anything more valid to offer than the creeds of the East, of the tropics, of the primitive tribes? These questions confronted David Carlin, a young Episcopalian clergyman. FOX FIRE is the story of his doubt, revolt, ostracism and spiritual convalescence in an environment where the romance of a modern newspaper office plays no small part. FOX FIRE is also a fervid picture of New Orleans by inhabitants Jeanne de Lavigne and Jacques Rutherford ($2.00).

"From Chicago, and Alive, Too!" Gotham Gasps

Fanny Butcher Tells of Writers' Teas.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Mr. Lo, the poor Indian, who is the gentleman that many British travelers expect to meet them at the shore paddling a canoe out of the mouth of the Hudson, has nothing, as a curiosity, on any voyager from Chicago these days. Being a literary editor, therefore at least literate, is considered merely a transparent cloak for the inherent nature of all natives. For not during one conversation lately has there been lacking the question: "Now tell me the truth; do they really shoot people in the streets in Chicago? I say, that's pretty frontier stuff, what?"

The New Yorkers refuse to talk about books until the subject of bandits and beer runners has been discussed. I am considered merely loyal to the home town when I say I never have met a murderer socially, that the shootings are exclusive affairs, that you can eat dinner in Chicago without finding either a pearl in your oyster or a bullet in your soup, that the larger the mortality among the snipers the lower the taxes, for the killings merely save the state the expense of hanging.

When that matter is disposed of, not until then, can any one get down to literature. But by that time one again is expending one's youth and vigor in pursuance of a taxi to the next literary tea. Those are brewed sometimes at the rate of three an afternoon, and brewed is an excellent word for them, by the way. Tea usually is spelled te-he.

The other day a new Chicago author made his literary debut. His name is A. J. Barr. He lives in Austin and his novel is called "Let Tomorrow Come." That is taken as his extreme optimism by the New Yorkers who believe a sawed-off shotgun takes care of most of the tomorrows of our townsmen.

Mr. Barr is a quiet young man who writes for a living and tells, so they say who have read the manuscript, the Chicago story. Incidentally they are talking here about a book called "Love in Chicago," just being published, and which also gives a pretty picture of our village.

At one of the assortment of teas I heard the saddest literary news that has come my way thus far. It was told me by William Beebe on Tuesday afternoon at a tea which he and his wife, Elswyth Thane, the novelist, gave for Dr. Gregory, who is just publishing a book. "If I ever get rich enough," he said, "I'll never write another line of an essay. I get my lift in life out of the scientific papers that you never even heard of and that require sometimes a year and a half for a paragraph's material.

"Last night I was studying the embryo of a fish and I found something that took me back thousands of years. That will be one line in a scientific treatise. If I get very poor suddenly I may sit down some night and write an essay about it, but it will be a sort of automatic writing, as my lecturing is automatic lecturing. 'My heart's in the laboratory, my heart is not here,' I could sing."

Every one, I know, will join me in prayer that, under those circumstances, Mr. Beebe may suffer severe financial reverses.

Isabel Paterson was there. She is the most popular woman writer on any of the literary departments, as our old fellow citizen, Harry Hansen, wears the laurel wreath for popularity, gentleman's style. He is the same Chicago Harry, without an accent, without affectation, and with his old grand smile.

Another Chicagoan was at another of the assortment of the day's teas, Carl Van Vechten, who used to be a newspaper man in Chicago. He is just back from many months in London. There he did our city, as well as New York, proud. Others at the tea included Witter Bynner, about to visit Chicago, and Ernestine Evans, who used to go to the University of Chicago with us, and now is the head of the editorial department of Coward McCann.

Wednesday was the publication day of "The Bishop Murder Case," and the traffic along 5th avenue and any side streets where book shops blossom was congested by eager buyers. It is just as good as any of the other S. S. Van Dyne murders and has a more amusing idea to it than any of the others, and the cleverest snooper will get a jolt on the last page but one.

Another publisher told me today that every one was watching it with the same bated breath that stock brokers watch Radio and General Motors. If the Bishop Murder goes big, the stocks of mystery detective tales are sure to rise, and, if it doesn't, there is going to be moaning among the lambs.

"On Wandering Wheels," by Jan and Cora Gordon [Dodd Mead].

For years Jan and Cora Gordon have been writing delightful books about wandering about foreign spots, with Mr. Gordon doing delightful illustrations in color and in black and white to give the books a flip. For the first time they have wandered in the United States.

HERE'S BOOK ABOUT FAMED WILD WOMAN OF GOOD OLD DAYS

"The Terrible Siren," by Emanie Sachs. (Harpers.)

There are countless reasons why every one ought to read "The Terrible Siren." Most of them can be summed up in the fact that it is, for sheer entertainment, one of the books of a lifetime. Some of the other reasons have to do with the upro-r about the morals of an age when knees are no treat to any one and a "figger" is what your mother gave you. The moralists think the present day girl is just about to be snapped at by the demnition bow-bows, because she can get along with two layers of silk on a hot day and has had woman's crowning glory shaved off of her head.

EMANIE SACHS.

"The Terrible Siren" is a biography of Victoria Woodhull who flourished in the days when a revealed ankle was a thriller, and when a woman was seen (not too completely or too thoroughly) and never heard. And what that gal Victoria Woodhull got away with hasn't any counterpart even in a Michael Arlen novel. Not only was she a naughty girl, but she was a public character to the extent of being a candidate for the presidency of the United States (at her own suggestion), president of a very large religious group and the editor (in name at least) of a widely read weekly. She lived in a day when sex appeal was taken very seriously.

Nobody in those days gave any one 9 for S. A. or anything like that—because they were far too impressed by it. They mixed it up with all sorts of things, like ideas, and social progress and business. And Victoria Woodhull was the supreme example of the age's attitude toward "purity."

She was the most successful of the propagandists of "free love." In her later life when she became the wife of a very wealthy Englishman and during the years while she was breaking down his family's opposition to the marriage, she denied that she ever had advocated "free love." But the newspapers were full of facts to the contrary. While she was young and very beautiful and extremely magnetic, she made a public virtue of a private characteristic. What amuses us most is the reaction of the strait-laced world of her day to her. Its inhabitants did a lot of talking about her, but they never missed seeing or hearing her. She was a national disgrace, but infinitely better known and more beloved than many a national ornament.

This biography of her—which is written with great skill and in a delightful manner—says to present day readers (though not in so many words) you may think the present generation, with its freedom of word and action, produces some pretty untrammeled ladies, but it took the fifties and the sixties and the seventies to offer to history a Victoria Woodhull.

Emanie Sachs' biography of "The Terrible Siren" is a comment on those times and these times, by inference, as much as it is a biography of an individual. We recommend it as an extremely wholesome volume for those who are always bemoaning "the good old days."

Beebe Confers with Nature and Dignifies Hidden Millions' Lives

"Beneath Tropic Seas," by William Beebe [Putnam's].

There isn't any one, writing about strange places, beasts, birds, fishes and insects, who has the lure in his pen that William Beebe has. The lowliest and least self-assertive of creatures becomes a personality when looked at through his eyes. One of the most fascinating things that was ever written was the article he wrote about the billions of lives that are lived on a tree that has been felled and whose own life has departed. No one who ever read it has ever forgotten it.

His latest volume "Beneath Tropic Seas" is the same sort of scholarly record of his discoveries that all of his books have been, made in the same sort of distinguished and happy writing that has made all of his previous books life members of every well filled private as well as public library. It was in the Gulf of Gonava, Haiti, that he met the thrilling submarine growths that look like flowers, but actually are animal life, the huge jelly fishes which rent rooms and baths on themselves to many little fishes, but provide them with no privacy whatever, for the jelly fish all are transparent.

Ridiculous courtships of fiddler crabs that are human enough to make humans seem comic he saw there, and little creatures called squids, which change their color like chameleons. And he saw and met them all as nearly directly as it lies in man's present power nowadays to see and meet. He went down with a divers helmet over his head, walked on the bottom of the sea and touched hands with the strange wild things of the under water.

Wilhelm Hohenzollern Now Press Agent for Ex-Kaiser

With the story of the book which ex-Kaiser Wilhelm has just published in Germany filling the newspapers (but as yet unavailable to readers whose linguistic talents do not include German) one is reminded of the book published a few months ago called "An Empress in Exile," the story of the romance of the ex-kaiser and his second wife, the Princess Hermine, which was written by her, with an introduction by her husband.

Two Italia Stories Leave Some Queries in the Arctic Silence

"The Krassin," by Maurice Parlade. (Macaulay.)

"The Tragedy of the Italia," by Davide Giudici. (Appleton.)

Now it can be told. But will it ever be told—the real account of the flight of the Italia over the pole in 1928, its subsequent disaster, and the fate of the noted Swedish scientist, Malmgren, who started with the two Italians, Zappi and Mariano, to find help for the marooned crew of the dirigible, but who never was seen again?

The very fact that the Italian government has clamped the lid down on the vital questions clamoring for answer certainly throws a cloud over the whole expedition. And the fact that the soviets, that sent the ice breaker Krassin to the aid of Gen. Nobile's men, also have refused to let the world know what actually occurred looks queer.

Here was a group of men who started out to fly over the pole. Theirs was the most dangerous undertaking in the world, calling for the highest type of courage, sportsmanship and honor. After reading these two books the following points stick in the mind:

1. When help came to the stranded crew of the Italia the captain was the first to leave. He was injured, but so was another member of the expedition.

2. When Zappi and Mariano were found, Mariano was lying on the ice with no covering over his feet and legs, apparently dying, while Zappi was standing beside him clad in three suits of heavy woolen—his own, Mariano's and the dead Malmgren's. On his wrist were his own watch, that of Mariano and that of Malmgren.

3. Written messages intrusted to Malmgren were not given by him to his comrades to carry on. Yet he gave his compass to be taken to his mother, so the Italians say.

4. Nobile, it is charged, refused to allow rescuers to continue the search for his men lost with the airship. No one will ever know what happened to them.

5. Amundsen refused to accompany Nobile on this polar undertaking. He had flown with him once before.

Roses of Yesteryear

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

A volume called "True Stories of Crime," by Arthur Train, brought forth this comment: "Mr. Train in short story style tells a few of the tales of crime, horrible crime, bewildering crime, and jolly almost lovable crime. . . . One regrets Mr. Train's return to private practice, unless it means he intends to tell some more official secrets." Arthur Train was at that time an assistant district attorney of New York. His return to private practice did mean more literature, as the intervening years have shown.

New York Court Holds 'Well of Loneliness' Illegal

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—An American magistrate followed the lead of a British magistrate yesterday by declaring Miss Radclyffe Hall's novel, "The Well of Loneliness," "offensive to public decency."

Magistrate Hyman Bushel thus sent the case on to special sessions, where it will come up for pleading March 1 before three judges. It is expected that Morris Ernst and Newman Levy, counsel for Donald Friede and the publishing firm, Covici-Friede, Inc., will ask for a jury trial. Friede and the corporation were held in bail of $500 each for violating section 114 of the penal code, a misdemeanor. J. S. Sumner, secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, declared he would push the case against the novel vigorously.

EUGENE WRIGHT

This very young man came first to the public attention with the publication of his book, The Great Horn Spoon. We quote two of the many splendid reviews of this book:

A masterpiece of adventure: thrilling, heady, hard-boiled, arrogantly young, with the rare detachment of a sense of beauty. More vivid than any travel book I have read. —Vanity Fair

Wright has a positive genius for living joyously in a world of inexhaustible beauty and wonder. —St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Mr. Wright will give a short talk, and will be glad to autograph copies of his book. He brings with him a number of interesting souvenirs of his trip into far-away parts of the world and these will be on display.

CHICAGO WILL WAIT ITS TIME.

An editorial from the Peoria Transcript, reprinted Friday in THE TRIBUNE, undertook the justification of the unconstitutional limitation of Cook county representation in the legislature and contained the statement that rural Illinois "will not permit Chicago to dominate the general assembly, constitution or no constitution." That's frank enough statement that the constitution be damned. It's not new. It's the doctrine of dry and rural Illinois.

Peoria, however, will find that it is a poor thing to tie to. In time it will be a metropolitan area, if its growth is what its business men hope it will be, and it will find that the question of partial disfranchisement means something to it. If Chicago surrendered and agreed to a limitation in one branch or the other Peoria might both have its cake and eat it, but Chicago does not intend to give up its rights. Without its consent these rights cannot be impaired permanently. Peoria and every other industrial community in the state would be wise to look ahead.

Every session of the legislature gives this city fresh and impressive evidence that it cannot give up one particle of its constitutional rights of representation. The idea that Chicago would try to dominate the rest of the state is either foolish or tricky. There would be no reason for it. Chicago would have no interest in injuring the rest of the state, but there are motives for downstate imposition on the city. The rural districts like to get the city money and spend it on themselves. They like to exercise control in the city for profit. The gas tax bills alone are sufficient evidence of that. The attempt to plaster an income tax on city workers is evidence. State interference with city projects has been meddlesome and damaging. The legislature has tried to dispose of Chicago streets. There have been proposals to take over its police and its sanitary district. As these and other city bodies present problems the city will handle them or take the consequences. It will not take consequences without authority and responsibility, and it will not trust authority to the state, not if it can help it, and if its own representation is not treacherous it can.

The metropolitan district can wait its time and turn. It will grow. That growth within Cook county cannot gain in legislative votes so long as the rural districts nullify the constitution, but the wider spread of the community of interests will gain votes in other counties now hostile politically, although at one with the city otherwise. The senators and representatives from Lake, Will, and Du Page counties some day will be men or women influenced by the realities of the common bond. It will be all part of a metropolitan area with apparent reasons for common action. City areas in other parts of the state will find that Chicago's case is their case. The Chicago districts will not be the only districts not represented according to their population. Chicago will not be the only city which finds rural legislation hurtful. Other cities now are protesting against the proposed division of gas tax money.

This city will wait for its time and opportunity. When it is able it will take its rights. Meanwhile it will not surrender the claim to them.

SOME MORE BIRDS FOR MR. BOK.

Mr. Joe Saltis having done sixty days in the Bridewell at the request of the federal court, obtained his freedom but may have increased his worries. He said that Florida would get his trade as soon as he could get there. Something seems to have detained or deflected him, probably to his regret. It is a freak of climate that, although it is unquestionably warmer in Florida, there are spots in Chicago where it is hotter.

A Miami Beach estimate is that 500 Chicago gentlemen of the beer, alky and Canadian import trade are in and about that place. Comment was made that only representatives of the Saltis family were absent. Mr. Saltis by now may have filled up that gap in the social activities which are described as glowing, genial, and expansive. The notables of the Florida gatherings seem to be Mr. Capone, Frankie Lake and Terry Druggan, several persons identified as being of the old Stubby McGovern mob, Barney Bertsche and "about twenty good pickpockets, besides a number of burglars and diamond thieves."

The Miami region takes the situation placidly, which may prove that Floridans are game guys or that they hope the climate and the diversions will keep our citizens contented with harmless activities and will restrain them from machine gun practice either on each other or on the native sons. This faith may be justified but when so many lovely targets are nicely grouped together it must make an appeal to the sporting sense provided any of the gentlemen have taken their violin cases along with them.

Maybe they will respect the truce but in that case there should be some fitting recognition of it. Possibly Mr. Bok could be persuaded to make another Florida sanctuary with a singing tower where these birds could withdraw from the strife of life when they craved a touch of beauty and a little meditation on the wonders of nature. That would be something Mr. Hoover could dedicate.

MR. BORAH DECLINES.

Senator Borah has declined the appointment offered him by Mr. Hoover to be the new attorney general. He was told that he could have a free hand in the enforcement of the Volstead act, but he decided to remain in the senate. The drys in Washington are disappointed, but Mr. Borah's friends think he was wise even if not courageous.

In the attorney general's office the senator would have been responsible for the administration of law under the amendment, which seems to represent his complete view of the constitution. In the senate he can acclaim its wisdom and condemn its opponents and let some one else take the criticism. He has concluded that it is better to skin an attorney general than to be one; that it is less troublesome to pass laws putting teeth in Volstead than to enforce them.

This dodging of authority and responsibility will not diminish Mr. Borah's ardor as a dry. He will press on legislatively with the noble experiment, but as it continues to fail and to pull the department of justice deeper into the bog of its scandals Mr. Borah will not be trying to extricate himself. He will be sitting pretty on the hill, pure in eloquence.

FOR RICHARD PRENDERGAST

The growing importance of the Forty-second ward, parts of which rival the loop in attracting business settlement, requires more than indifferent representation in the city government. Of the candidates for alderman from this north of the river section the man best qualified to minister for the enterprising constituency and to promote the interests of the entire city is Richard Prendergast. Because he is a forceful man Mr. Prendergast has the ability to make an energetic critic, a useful rôle in the present municipal emergency.

As a former member of the legislature Mr. Prendergast has had experience which equips him for service in the city council. One of his opponents has the support of the Thompson faction in the ward, which acquits Mr. Prendergast of any relation with the administration. He will not compromise with the machine for the exploitation of the citizens and he will be a valuable member of the council group on which the city must rely for protection and advancement during the next two years. That Frank J. Loesch has been an energetic supporter of Mr. Prendergast should influence the choice of the Forty-second ward voters.

THE ANN ARBOR MYSTERY.

The address of Dr. Clarence Little to University of Michigan alumni in New York was intended to explain his resignation as president of the university. The talk appears to have thrown some additional light on the reasons for his retirement but there remain a good many shadows. It is evident that Dr. Little did not share the views of the Michigan regents on a number of questions of policy, and in these differences some of the alumni appear to have sided with the regents, but the policies upon which Dr. Little met opposition remain to be stated explicitly.

Both sides in the controversy have displayed a regard for the sensibilities of the opposition that would be wholly commendable did it not leave the points of issue obscure. After all, the administration of a great state university is a matter of deep concern to all citizens of the state and scarcely less so to citizens of other states which also support universities. The reasons for Dr. Little's resignation constitute a chapter, and perhaps an important chapter, in the current history of higher education and of public education in this country.

It has been intimated that Dr. Little felt the opposition of his alumni body. What did they oppose and how did they make their opposition effective? The answer to these questions would provide important material in determining the proper relations of alumni to university administration, a problem of growing complexity. There have been hints that Dr. Little's attitude toward athletics and toward the organization of student life was also opposed, but again the specifications appear to be lacking.

It is our impression that there has been too tender a regard for personal feelings on both sides. If the regents could not get along with Dr. Little they ought to tell why they found it advisable to accept his resignation; and if Dr. Little was thwarted to the point that he found his continuance in office a waste of time, he, too, owes it to the cause of education to say what the president of a state university may and may not accomplish.

Editorial of the Day

[Rock Island, Ill., Argus.]

Chicago, or at least some organizations there, are taking the customary selfish and provincial attitude toward a gas tax of three cents a gallon, the chief issue being on how the tax should be divided.

Gov. Emmerson advocates the splitting of this tax on the basis of two cents for the state and one cent for the counties, the one cent revenue to be used for the improving of country roads.

Some Illinois municipalities and organizations in Chicago are demanding a cent for the state, a cent for the counties and a cent for the municipalities.

The objection to this is that the revenue accruing to the state from one cent would not enable the state to carry out its program, which is inclusive of widening the arterial roads leading to the larger cities. It must be obvious that those who live in the country not adjacent to hard roads stand in the greatest need of hard roads. The cities should be willing to make it possible for them to get to the larger communities for trading purposes. One cent given to the counties will make this possible. Furthermore, the cities will benefit if all parts of Illinois are made accessible by means of the state-wide road program.

So far as Chicago is concerned millions of dollars have been wasted in road construction. Money has been used extravagantly. Chicago therefore wants the state to come to its aid by the one cent revenue because of its own wastefulness and poor management. The better the country roads are, the better it will be for Chicago, but some Chicago groups seem to be under the impression that it is only benefited by money spent within its own boundaries. This attitude is illuminating, as it shows what the rest of the state could expect if Chicago ever gets complete control of the legislature by a new apportionment.

LAMENT OF THE POETS.

(At the time they were brought to trial in Ulster.)

It is a bad thing now to be a poet,
With all the people closing up their doors
Against the sight of us. It's well we know it,
And we'll be turning our feet toward foreign shores,
Seeking the honor that's denied us here.
'Tis hard for us that have the hearts of kings,
Not to be having praise throughout the year,
Not to have gold upon our wanderings.
The six bright colors of the poet's dress
Are six bright marks of blame. No one would be Wanting a poet's life of loneliness,
And getting scorn for it and poverty.
There's none would want to be a poet for long
In these bad times, excepting maybe one
Born with a cunning skill at making song,

HELENE MULLINS.

Caw! Caw! Caw! Them Guys Have Planted Dynamite All Over the Place!

Yesterday came this story from Boise, Idaho: Out near Boise was a rookery, or crowery, or whatever you want to call it, where upwards of a million crows were wont to roost every night. The crows raided the farms all around that neighborhood and it was decided to blow up the rookery with dynamite after the crows had gone to bed. So the dynamite was placed all around the rookery with connecting wires so that when the crows came back at night and started putting on their pajamas and brushing their teeth for the night they would touch the wires communicating with the dynamite and SONK!!!

The crows came back that night, but suddenly wheeled in the air and flew over and sat down on a mountain near by. Then two scout crows came flying over to the rookery and circled around overhead. Suddenly they saw a big sign, "Dynamite, Keep Off!" which was made to warn prowling motorists away. Immediately the scout crows began cawing madly and flew away and warned the whole flock and none of them has ever returned to the rookery. And yesterday was G. Washington's birthday: MORAL: What's the Use?

And He Never Missed 'Em Till He Got to the Party.

Or, for Heaven's Sake, Cat, Quit Stamping Your Feet!

It happened several years ago; but Frank Behring reminded us of it the other night, and, Deo gratias, good stories in a world of poor ones never die. John Barrymore was playing here and staying at the Sherman. One morning about 9 o'clock Frank was summoned to John's room and found the Great Actor pacing frantically up and down, tearing his hair, and doing his stuff generally. "Listen! For God's sake, listen to that!" shouted John, in tones of unbearable anguish. Frank listened, and from the next room came the thin wail of a violin being earnestly, if ill-advisedly, practiced on. This would never do, so Frank went to the next room, and, knocking on the door, found it occupied by a sedate middle aged couple and their 7 year old child prodigy. Mr. Behring was tact itself. A gentleman who slept in the daytime was occupying the next room, he said softly, and if the youthful violinist would come down to the desk whenever he wanted to practice, a room would be given him in another part of the hotel. An hour later the y. v. appeared at the desk. "Please," said he, "I was told to come down and you would give me a room to practice in. The night watchman has the room next to ours."

Ah, 'Tis Vain for You to Hint. We Never, Never Will Reprint.

R. H. L.: Of course I don't want to do any driving from the back seat or anything like that, but why can't you do as Barney Mullaney says and reprint "Margot"? It was a fine and touching poem—one of the best of that long list of fine war poems you have published. Once I could repeat it from memory, but the years have been many—and now I can only recall just a bit of it:

Margot was a ten year old, as sweet as any rose,
Laughing through the village as our regiment passed by.
Cried "A bas les casques a pique"——

Ah, that's all I remember! Of course, I know your rules—but couldn't you—well—do something about it? T. S. P.

There's much speculation what statesmen will do,
When they leave their jobs and step down;
But Tom Heflin affords us no worry at all,
He'll make such a fine circus clown.

Lagniappe:

OH, WHAT a lovely cold snap! How white and fleecy is the snow, and oh, how deep it is! How fine it is to plow the ice and cold and arrive with bright red cheeks at the cheerful fireside! Ah, winter is the best of all the seasons of the year! (Lykell, lykell, lykell!)

THEY HAVE FOUND the remains of the auto that the St. Valentine's day killers made their getaway in. The auto will be sent to the electric chair and executed as a warning to other automobiles not to engage in crime in Chicago.

NIC. LONGWORTH, in speaking at Philadelphia yesterday, predicted that the administration of Mr. Hoover would bear worthy comparison with that of George Washington. What particular job, Nicholas, have you in mind?

THE PRINCE OF WALES sat down at dinner the other night with all the American correspondents and chatted with each one in the most approved fashion for five minutes. So then the Prince will not fall off his horse any more. Well, it was a good story while it lasted.

THE CELEBRATION of G. Washington's birthday yesterday by not telling a lie was quite successful. There were a few casualties, of course, as a small number of our unaccustomed population choked to death in their efforts to speak only the truth. R. H. L.

VIOLET RAYS AND RICKETS.

ELEVEN minutes a month is enough radiation with ultraviolet rays to prevent babies from developing rickets. If they get this much they do not need cod liver oil, ergosterol, or any other medication. However, the treatment must be started before the baby is one month old and it must be kept up systematically until he is more than eight months old.

Dr. Selkirk and his associates came to this conclusion as the result of treating and watching nearly four hundred babies in Cincinnati. The experiment extended over a twenty month period. To begin with they would expose a baby for two minutes at a time—the front of the body one minute and the back for a similar time. The treatments were gradually extended until the total exposure at a sitting was ten minutes—five of the front and five of the rear of the body. These treatments were given twice a week. The children were watched for clinical symptoms of rickets and their bones were examined with X-rays.

They presently came to the conclusion that this was too much treatment. By experimenting back and forth they finally decided that 11 minutes a month was enough for the average baby. With that amount a few became rickety, but the number was small.

This amount given systematically was enough. More than that was harmful. Reports that the use of rickets preventing procedures can be overdone are coming from many parts of the world. Many warnings against overtreatment are being sent out. Some babies are being left too long in the sunlight. Some are receiving too frequent dosage with ultraviolet rays, or the treatments are too long. Some are being fed too much radiated foods and some are getting too much cod liver oil. All these are powerful remedies and the babies can be overdosed with them.

Exposure to ultraviolet rays for 11 minutes a month should not be a source of too much exposure, nor should it prove inconvenient for the mother. In the discussion of Dr. Selkirk's paper the general trend of opinion expressed was that a short period of exposure was enough and that overdosing was to be guarded against.

ADVICE ON MANY THINGS.

Mrs. O. J. writes: 1. I wonder if you can help me with my problems? Until now I have never had any trouble with my feet. I have always worn good comfortable slippers, but lately a bunion has appeared on each of my feet. My slippers are comfortable and I don't know that has caused them. Before they become more advanced I would like to do something. Could you advise any medicine or exercise for this?

2. I am about 5 feet 2 inches tall and weigh only 100 pounds. About 4 years ago I weighed 120, but have never been able to gain any since then. My appetite seems very good. I sleep well and seem to be healthy in every way, but I can't gain any weight.

3. I swim two to three times a week and I love the exercise, but some one has told me that swimming is injurious to me and that is why I don't gain. I was always under the impression that swimming is a healthful sport.

REPLY

1. If your shoes are wide enough you may escape by wearing rings to keep your toes straight. An X-ray may show bony spurs or exostosis separating the bones of your feet. If so, they may need to be removed.

2. Sleep immediately after eating, a noon nap and early to bed after supper. Eat a bowl of milk and sugared rice or crackers once or twice a day.

3. Keep up your swimming.

CANCER NOT CONTAGIOUS.

Inquirer writes: 1. Do germs live indefinitely?

2. Is cancer contagious and by what means?

REPLY.

1. They do not. However, those which form spores, such as anthrax and lockjaw germs, can live for years. Spores are similar to seed in their properties and seed from the tombs of Egypt can be sprouted, it is said. Germs which do not form spores must get into the bodies of men or other animals, or in some other snug harbor, to live or to keep the tribe alive.

2. It is not.

MOLE AND TREATMENT.

J. L. C. writes: I have a dark brown mole right on my upper lip and hair grows on it. I have had it for about 15 years and it is very unbecoming. I have been advised not to remove it.

REPLY.

It can be removed by electricity or by a more definite operation. Do not try to remove it by any less radical measures.

MORAL: DON'T SIGN.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have signed a note for a party on a salary loan of $150 and after I signed this loan this same party took out another loan on his salary for $100 without a signer and not paying up the balance of the first note which I signed.

The loan I signed is over six years ago and now the loan company wants me to make good the balance. He also owes a balance on the latter loan.

This party is not in the state of Illinois and the loan company tells me it cannot collect from him as long as he is in Indiana, out of Illinois.

DEFINING LAWS.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What is the difference between statute and constitutional law?

2. What is the difference between real estate and personal property? M. W.

1. The constitution is fundamental law under which the legislature and other departments act. Statutes are more temporary legislation adopted by the legislature. We could advise to better advantage if we understood what application you intend to make of our answer.

2. Real estate is land and improvements permanently attached thereto. All other property is personal.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—[Friend of the People.]—Can an alien resident here bring his wife and family into this country at any time clear of the quota, or in a preferred quota class? Thanking you in anticipation of your answer. R. H.

"The wives and unmarried children under 21 years of age of alien residents lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence, are entitled to preference under the quota, and the alien husband or father may make application for same on Form 575 which can be obtained at the U. FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

WASHINGTON.—Baltimore was selected as the place for holding the National Republican Union convention on June 7. On the second ballot it received twelve votes, the remainder being scattered between Philadelphia, Gettysburg, Wheeling, Boston and Cincinnati. No member of the committee from Missouri was admitted. The only slave states represented were Delaware and Maryland. The call for the convention invites qualified electors who are in favor of suppressing the rebellion and its cause by war and all apt and efficient means to send four delegates from each state and two from each congressional district.

LOUISVILLE.—The border state emancipation convention met in the United States Circuit court room at noon. It was called to order by James Speed of Louisville, and William P. Hamasan of Kentucky was named president. Tonight an address of tremendous power was delivered by C. D. Drake of St. Louis. Such bold and manly words were never before heard on Kentucky's soil.

FORTRESS MONROE.—The Richmond Examiner says: "Spencer Dayton has been arrested, tried, condemned and hung as a Yankee spy at Castle Thunder." The paper also says: "A dispatch from the war department, Feb. 18, announces Sherman's arrival at Quinlan, on the Ohio and Mobile railroad, without opposition, but he will not be allowed to take Mobile without a desperate battle. Sherman has from 25,000 to 30,000 men. Their advance was without comparison the boldest movement of the war."

CHICAGO. — The anniversary of Washington's birthday was generally observed throughout the city.

MANILA.—The rebels fired the city last night, applying the torch to many buildings. The greater part of the city is heavily damaged. The attempt to burn the city was followed by an outbreak of rebel sympathizers and severe fighting in the streets followed. The troops suppressed the outbreak by prompt and determined action, losing but few men killed and wounded. The fire was started in three parts of the city. Houses which were previously marked red were first fired. Native sharpshooters lurked behind corner buildings. They shot at every American in sight. Notwithstanding the continued firing of the hidden sharpshooters, the American garrison turned out and fought the flames. Seven members of the Minnesota regiment were wounded while making a rush into the burning Tondo quarter.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — The house today, with only one dissenting vote [that of Mr. Allen], repealed the Alien street railway law and reënacted the horse and dummy law of 1874, amended so as to apply to electric and cable railways. The bill will now go to the senate, and by this time next week it will probably be given into the charge of the governor.

BERLIN.—According to the semi-official Hamburgische Correspondenz, the German foreign office, complying with a petition of Germans in Samoa, has requested the Washington government to supersede Chief Justice Chambers. The German government has taken offense at the statements made by the chief justice in a letter to his brother in New York. In the letter, which was given wide publicity, Chief Justice Chambers commented with great freedom on the action of the German consul at Apia, Herr Raffel, saying he raised troops to support Mataafa.

GENEVA.—The Vienna Fremdenblatt, displaying much anxiety, says that owing to the menacing situation in Germany the allies "must hasten to arrange peace on moderate terms, to preserve calm and order in central Europe." Further disorders and even civil war are feared, as the Munich population is greatly excited over the assassination of Kurt Eisner, who was greatly loved and considered the founder of the German revolution.

BERLIN.—A Munich message says that evidence has been gathered to show the assassination of Kurt Eisner was done in behalf of a secret organization of officers and aristocrats. Bavaria last night was declared a soviet republic by the soldiers and workmen's council in Munich, the Vossische Zeitung says.

MUNICH.—Count Arco Valley, the young student who shot and killed Premier Eisner, was lynched by a crowd.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.—Dr. Mary E. Walker, aged 87 years, died at her home near Oswego after a long illness. She was a surgeon in the civil war and a congressional medal of honor was awarded her. She gained fame by being the only woman allowed to appear in male attire by act of congress. She was a pioneer in the woman suffrage movement. Her usual attire was a black frock coat, trousers, and a high silk hat, and she carried a cane.

MALT SIRUP.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 19.—After reading today's TRIBUNE I can no longer delay writing a letter to you which I have long postponed.

I think it would be wonderful reading for the people if you would find out who controls the companies who make corn sugar and corn sirup. Much of this sirup is sold as the cheaper malt sirup.

If you will look into this you will find that most of it is manufactured by the Corn Products Refining company, controlled by a multi-millionaire who says that prohibition is the best thing that ever happened to this country. He sells the distiller and home brewer the basis of his illicit brew and then howls what a wonderful thing prohibition is, after he makes the profit.

That is another reason why prohibition will be hard to defeat. Too much money is being made by the richer men of our country who are willing to pay the grafter to keep it as it is.

A SUBSCRIBER.

FOR A GANGLAND TOURNEY.

Petersburg, Va., Feb. 13.—Why not put the whole thing on a sporting basis? Every one knows who the leaders and members of the various gangs are. Simply have a sterling silver cup mounted on machine guns and embossed with pistols, knives and sawed-off shotguns to be presented to the outstanding gang of the year, which in this case would be the gang with the highest number of kills during the season.

C. P. ALLEN JR.

EXTERMINATION.

Traverse City, Mich., Feb. 20.—Why all the wailing about a few worthless gangsters, mostly foreigners, shooting themselves? The more of them shot the better. In fact, a bounty might well be paid for their scalps. The same goes for the fools that drink booze and die as a result—every time that happens our country is made safer for us all.

ART MODELS AND SINNERS.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—The contributor who is trying to reform this "sin ridden" world must have a grudge against the whole universe.

It happens that I'm a model for art schools and if I am a sinner for being one more power to the devil. This Anti-Nudity in Arts league is perhaps trying to reform something it doesn't know anything about.

I have a good reputation as a model, but I also go to church, join in all athletics, read and have a home with my parents and brothers. If there is any girl in Chicago that models and calls it a sin, please come and see me. I should like to meet any one with such thought. Sarah Pratt Jurgens had better quit some of those anti-leagues or else try to understand us Chicagoans. We're not all bad because of a few gangsters. Come to our fair city some time; we will be glad to show you our great little town.

ANDREE BOWIE.

EVANSTON BIDS FOR HOOSIER REFORMER.

Evanston, Ill., Feb. 20.—What a paradise Evanston would be for our Indiana reformer, Sarah Pratt Jurgens! We've quite a few public spirited female reverends who'd simply adore meeting her—and just think of the lovely new reform leagues they could organize!

FREDERICK DOUGLASS.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—At a meeting of the women's committee of the Chicago Urban league, it was voted that a note of thanks be sent to THE TRIBUNE for the cartoon which appeared in the Sunday edition featuring Frederick Douglass.

On behalf of that organization I wish to express our appreciation, and at the same time that of our race.

CAVALRY AND MODERN WARFARE

Chicago, Feb. 19.—I am not a professional soldier and yet it seems to me that even a casual observer of modern warfare could not agree with Colmar Hughes' remarks anent your editorial, "The Officer and His Horse." Your correspondent apparently is still living over again the old days of glorious cavalry charges, mounted scouts, and all the old trappings that used to make war more or less thrilling and glamorous.

The last war far exceeded anything known in war in casualties, weapons, tactics, and human endurance, and yet it was readily seen from the start that cavalry, far from being a help to an army, was both a hindrance and a menace. Excessively long range and heavily projectiled artillery, scouting and bombing planes, machine guns, and tanks are sufficient reasons for the impracticability of mounted combat troops. Is there anywhere that a modern tank cannot penetrate on a battlefield, and what could cavalry ever do to stop them? It was heavy concentration of artillery fire that rendered trench warfare an absolute necessity, and what could mounted troops ever hope to do against deeply entrenched infantry armed with hand grenades, trench mortars, and machine guns?

The value of the horse in modern warfare has suffered a natural depreciation, and even horse drawn artillery is gradually being eliminated as motorization substituted. War is not just a question of projectiles and armament, and I venture to state that the next great war will be fought with less men and more ammunition and armament than the recent great conflict.

Mr. Hughes should remember that war is not a game, and tactics still less necessary than in the old days when hand weapons were more powerful than projectile power. War today is just a mighty effort to wipe out a nation as speedily and effectively as possible, and the cavalry saber is about as useful as a carpet tack to a shipbuilder.

EVOLUTION IN TEXAS.

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 19.—Last week THE TRIBUNE carried an account of the disturbance down in Texas caused by the teaching of the ape story—another case similar to Scope's monkey trial.

In Texas, evolution was taught with defiance and openly condemned while it is accepted by students of our state university as a part of higher education in zoology. I dare say there isn't an advanced student zoologist here who doubts or worries over evolution. Through text books and lectures Illinois students accept it as a scientific fact beyond doubt.

I'm not trying to prove anything, but isn't it strange that in our age one belief, evolution, is condemned and persecuted in Texas while taught and made a part of higher education by a state supported institution in Illinois?

Avoca, Ia., Feb. 14.—Why does not "February" remember her famous daughter, Susan B. Anthony when she hangs on her wall portraits of her famous sons? Lincoln only emancipated slaves. At the end of the civil war one-half of the people had no legal right to the money they earned, could own nothing in their own name, if married were refused a trial by a jury of their peers. The husband could will away his unborn child.

Susan B. Anthony is as great as emancipator as Lincoln. Her birthday should be declared a legal holiday. But as the 12th, Lincoln's birthday, the 15th, Susan B. Anthony's, the 22d, Washington's, occur so near together, I suggest that these three be celebrated on one day, or else alternately.

THE BUFFER

By ALICE HEGAN RICE

SYNOPSIS.

Hickory Hill has been the homestead of the Freers for generations. Cynthia Freer, called here by family obligations and a promise to her mother never to leave her, strains at her bonds and longs to be free of the place and all it entails.

Dolly Freer, Cynthia's mother, meets Curtis Benson, the new assistant rector of St. Timothy's church, in town, and invites him to Hickory Hill to meet her family. Aunt Lizzie Freer, Dolly's sister-in-law, has been an invalid for twenty-five years, but she runs the family and its finances from her bed.

Barney, Dolly's oldest son, is delighted at Claire's arrival, and the cousins spend a good deal of time together. Barney is a wild youth, but the most popular of the Freer clan.

Curtis Benson is invited to stay with the Herbert Freers in town for a few weeks, and Mrs. Freer gives a tea for him, to which most of the parishioners are invited. Dorothy Freer goes home early, and Curtis Benson offers to drive Cynthia home to his little car. On the way they come upon two wrecked cars, and are horrified to see Barney sitting by the roadside in a dazed condition. On coming to he tells Cynthia that Claire, who was with him, was rushed to a hospital along with the occupant of the other car, Cynthia and her lover, Court, Uncle Herbert's chauffeur, who had been her childhood playmate, lying unconscious near the car.

When he recovers he is arrested as the driver of the speeding car. He is unable to remember just what preceded the accident. Claire dies in the hospital that night and Barney is put to bed, broken in spirit and ill from exposure. Cynthia is haunted by the thought that it was Barney and not Iser who drove the car at the time of the smash. She tells Benson of her suspicion, but he pays no attention to it.

After several weeks Peter Kelsey arrives from the Philippines, where he has been stationed as a captain in the medical corps. He asks Cynthia to marry him. She agrees to, but asks him to wait a while, as her mother has just become engaged to Curtis Benson.

INSTALLMENT XLVIII.

THE QUARREL.

If only Cynthia could manage to hold Peter in check until she had a chance to see him alone, and to explain all the new complications that had arisen in the last twenty-four hours, surely, surely, she could make him see that no matter how ardently she desired it she could not leave home just yet. After her mother was married and Barney got better, and Ethel had her baby, then she could think of herself and her plans for the future.

But that night when she and Peter got off to themselves, up in the leafy shelter of "Old Hick," she saw that her task was not going to be easy. As gently as she could she explained how her mother's plans had changed the situation. Dolly was already worrying about Barney's relapse, and Ethel's coming ordeal, and at the first hint of Cynthia's leaving home, she would sacrifice her own happiness to the winds and break her engagement. If only she could be kept in ignorance of how matters stood between Peter and Cynthia, until after she was married, then all would be well.

"But I've gotten my orders," cried Peter.

"I know, and you must go and I must stay. We are young, Peter darling, we can wait better than they can."

"Wait the devil!" said Peter, "I'll not wait for anybody or anything!

"Well," he demanded, "I'm waiting for my answer."

You are mine and I intend to have you. They will have to arrange to run things without you."

"But there's no one to arrange them," she argued desperately. "Mother and I have always held the bag together. When she lets go there is no one for me, can't you see?"

"I can't see anything but you, Cynthia. You are the most beautiful thing that has ever happened to me. And I am never going to be separated from you. Tell me you love me, say it, girl."

Her answer was convincing enough to silence further argument for a time. Then she pulled herself together.

"You must help me, Peter," she urged. "It is just as hard for me as it is for you. But we may have to wait only a few months, a year at the longest."

"That's nonsense!" he exploded. "I am not going to have you bearing the brunt of everything here any longer. Your family has got into the way of using you as a buffer. I am not going to have it, do you understand?"

Already Peter's voice had the high note of final authority. Had Cynthia not been so heart sick she would have rallied him on his oft repeated advice about using her own judgment, refusing to be coerced by anybody. As it was she meekly sat there and let the storm break over her head. The more he talked the angrier and more vehement he became.

"You are so darned self-sacrificing that you make everybody around you rather selfish. You have plenty of courage and grit when it comes to standing up for other people's rights, but I must say you are a weak sister when it comes to your own."

"Yes, but demanding my own rights in this case means smashing those of other people."

"What of it? Why is it worse to smash other people's lives than your own? Aren't you a person? And what about me?"

"But Dolly and Curtis Benson did not know about us when they decided to marry. Surely they are as entitled to their happiness as we are to ours."

"Sure they are. It is the others I am talking about. Why can't they shift for themselves? Barney ought to be sent west anyhow. Fred could live with Ethel, and your Aunt Lizzie could go to a sanitarium or to an old ladies' home."

"Peter what are you talking about? Aunt Lizzie would no more leave Hickory Hill, than this tree wouuld leave it. As for the boys, you know Barney will have to be watched and cared for for months to come, and Fred can't go to Ethel's because she has no extra room. And O, dear there is poor little Ethel, who will need me more than any of them."

"And I suppose I am the only one who doesn't need you, who is not to be considered?" Peter's wrath was rising.

"You are the only one I should consider," protested Cynthia, "if it were not for Dolly. At the first hint of my leaving she would break her engagement. You don't know her as I do! She is so horribly conscientious and so neurotic. Why she wouldn't stay in heaven, if she thought the boys were being neglected."

"Damn sentimentalists," said Peter through his teeth, "they do more harm than the criminal classes. They confuse issues, and ball up judgment. They go about weakening knees that should be stiffened and making the strong suffer for the weak."

Peter had mounted a favorite hobby, while Cynthia looked on deeply troubled, but at the same time amused in spite of herself. He looked so absurdly like Jerry when he was mad. All ruffled up and bristling and letting it in every direction. What a terrible man to marry! What an adorable man to love, she thought.

"Peter, darling," she said gently, "listen to me a minute. You would not call me a sentimentalist, would you?"

"I certainly do," he announced aggressively. "A sentimental obligation."

At this Cynthia's amusement turned to anger. Was it possible that Peter meant all he was saying? Did he really attribute her submission, and later won resignation to weakness? Her self-sacrifice to lack of moral courage? If he failed to understand her to that extent then he really did not know her at all. How could he ask her to do what she thought was wrong? How could he know her at all. How could he ask her to do what she thought was wrong? "But you are utterly unreasonable," she told him. "You aren't thinking of anybody but yourself. Surely if a man loves a girl enough to marry her, he is willing to wait a few months for her."

"All right," agreed Cynthia defiantly, "I'll prove my love by marrying you secretly before you go in the morning."

"Good God," cried Peter almost beside himself. "What sort of a man do you take me for? I've stood about as much of that kind of humiliation as I intend to. If you don't love me enough to come with me then it's all over and the sooner the better."

"But Peter, you don't realize what you are saying, you are beside yourself—you must be ill."

"Very well, have it that way if you like. But once and for all you've got to decide between me and your damn family."

He had risen and stood glaring at her, his hands trembling as they clutched the railing. His eyes blazed and his breath came in short jerks. Cynthia, too, rose. No one had ever spoken to her like that before. He had no right to ride over her in that roughshod way. It only confirmed his recent assertion that she was a weak sister, unable to stand up for herself. Well, she would show him.

"Well," he demanded, "I am waiting for my answer. Are you coming with me or not?"

"My answer is that I love you enough to marry you, if you love me enough to wait for me."

With a gesture of despair he turned and flung himself down the wooden ladder and disappeared in the shadows below.

Cynthia dropped limply down on the seat, waiting for him to return. Surely he couldn't leave her like that! She had never dreamed for an instant that they could fail to come to an understanding, that their quarrel would end in each other's arms. But no sound broke the silence below, and all she could hear was the frantic beating of her own heart.

Good Morning!

After a rather discouraging spell of pictures that failed to click, the United Artists Theater has, at last, in "Lady of the Pavements," a film that should fill it from opening till closing time.

"Personally directed" by D. W. Griffith, the picture reflects the brains and polish of that direction. Photography, costumes, sets, staging, acting, form a delightful blend. Your senses are pleased and your interest is not permitted to lag for an instant.

You are told the story of the carefully plotted revenge of a great and wanton lady, whose adoring fiancé, learning of that wantonness, refuses to marry her.

And the Countess Diane decides that marry a woman of the gutter he shall! So she sends an emissary [SO smoothly played by Albert Conti!] scouting, and in the low Paris cabaret called "The Smoking Dog," one to be known later as Nanon del Rayon is discovered.

". . . A rare mud flower . . ." the countess has ordered. Nanon fills the bill. [Of course WE know she really ISN'T muddy—no moving picture heroine must ever REALLY be muddy!] But appearances are all against her. She is a wild, free maiden, and, for a price and a while, agrees to become a little girl from a Spanish convent. She is to win, break and cast aside the heart of the Prussian Karl.

After that, the plot thickens and thickens and thickens!

Miss Lupez gives a fiery and convincing performance. Like Dolores Del Rio, she hails from Mexico. She is very pleasing but has not the suggestion of background, the manner, ecstasy nor abandon of Miss Del Rio. In even her tenderest scenes her eyes are hard. However, she's a whirlwind! She's natural and blazing with talent, and the audience who saw her "in person" yesterday liked her much.

Italians Exhorted Only to Wear Clothing Made in Homeland

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 22.—Italian women must be the most patriotic in the world, for they have just expressed a willingness to give up the prestige of a Paris label on their gowns to give Italian designers a chance to develop national modes.

A group of aristocratic Roman women headed by Princess di Piombito, wife of the governor of Rome, pledged themselves to eschew both foreign fabrics and foreign styles, and set an example for the women of Italy who generally follow the lead of these rulers of society. The action follows an article published in the Limpero, which attacked the "snobbery" attached to Paris fashions, and called on prominent government officials to appear in Italian made clothes by the time of the spring fête to celebrate the founding of Rome.

The Moda Italiana, a fashion paper, goes even further and asks Italy to free itself not only of Paris domination over women's fashion but also of English styles for men.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune. For today's question P. Maurice Van de Velde, 2048 Cleveland avenue, was awarded $5.

The Question.

The Answers.

Tom Maddison, 4356 Berkeley avenue, clerk—The realistic novel, because it is more practical to be realistic. I prefer the drama to moving pictures for similar reasons. The movie, as a rule, is visionary and sentimental entertainment. The drama usually is serious and substantial.

Miss Lillian Hoag, 627 Wrightwood avenue, bank clerk—The realistic novel. We used to read idealistic, imaginative books, "Prince Charming" creations, but they don't come true. People nowadays realize it doesn't pay to live in aircastles that never materialize. Today it is the real things that count.

Henry Clay Duke, 35 North Dearborn street, professor of public speaking—The idealistic novel is to be preferred, because it promotes the imaginative faculties. We need ideals and imagination in this commercial age. I believe in them; I preach them. They solve the moot questions of today—business, political, social.

Miss Ruth Douglass, 1329 East 71st place, secretary—I prefer the realistic novel. There is a greater expression of real life in the realistic novel. It is the real things we really appreciate. The idealistic novel is entertaining, but it does not mean as much as the realistic novel that applies to the problems and situations of real existence.

P. L. Levy, 404 South Ashland avenue, clerk—The realistic novel. I believe in real things rather than the imaginative. I don't believe in day dreams. We get along better if we stay on earth, wide awake. Of course, there's got to be some imagination.

ENGAGED

"Roses in Florida," New Opera, Wins Viennese

VIENNA, Austria, Feb. 22.—Vienna was happy tonight as it was treated to a brand new operetta. It is "Roses in Florida," and American critics predict it will become a hit on Broadway within a couple of months. Leo Fall, who wrote "Madame Pompadour," "Dollar Princess," etc., sketched the piano music. He died three years ago before the work was completed. Erich Wolfgang Korngold, Viennese composer, orchestrated the music and completed the operetta. It took Viennese first nighters by storm tonight.

Christian Endeavor Sessions to Begin This Afternoon

The volunteer convention of the Christian Endeavorers of Chicago will be held at Moody institute, Chicago avenue and La Salle street, this afternoon and evening. Dr. Henry Hepburn, pastor of the Buena Memorial Presbyterian church, will conduct the opening devotional service at 2:30 p. m.

New York, Feb. 22.—For the first time in its half century of existence the Society of Arts and Sciences awarded two gold medals tonight for distinctive work in science. The medals were presented at a dinner at the Biltmore hotel to Dr. Robert Andrews Millikan, professor of physics at the California institute of technology, and to Albert A. Michelson, professor of physics at the University of Chicago. Dr. Millikan devoted most of his talk to the accomplishments of Prof. Michelson. He declared that it was "hard to see" how the "quantitative equation of relationship," which followed inevitably from the Einstein theory of relativity, "could ever have been arrived at without both Michelson's own very exact measurements and others of the kind he has led the way in showing how to make."

Dr. Millikan was born on March 22, 1868, at Morrison, Ill. He was the first to succeed in isolating an electron in 1911. He has won the Nobel prize and the Comstock prize for research in electricity, given by the National Academy of Sciences in 1913.

The distinctive scientific work of the two medal winners stood so high, in the opinion of the jury of award of 1929, that the society's board of governors, acting upon the advice of its scientific members, awarded medals and equal honors to both. The presentations were made by Walter Russell, president of the Society of Arts and Sciences, who said that both Dr. Millikan and Prof. Michelson had "added conspicuously to human knowledge."

Yale to Get Dormitory on Site of Gymnasium

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Announcement that a new undergraduate dormitory in memory of John W. Sterling, '64, soon would be built on the block front now occupied by the old gymnasium, featured the address made by President James Rowland Angell to Yale's graduates, who returned this morning for the annual observance of Alumni university day. A gift to meet the cost of this dormitory, estimated at $2,000,000, has been promised by the trustees of the Sterling estate, Mr. Angell said.

Stenographer Can't Testify Against Boss in Oregon Bill

Salem, Ore., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Designed to "create a further confidential relationship between a stenographer and her employer," the Oregon house of representatives has passed a bill providing that a stenographer cannot be a witness against her employer in matters pertaining to information received in an official capacity.

STOCK'S ORCHESTRA DISPLAYS VARIETY OF ITS MUSICAL TALENTS

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mr. Stock selected four compositions for yesterday afternoon's program of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and they were four about as diverse works as could be assembled on one list. Elly Ney, the soloist, had been assigned to play Brahm's First Concerto, and this almost classifies as a symphony for piano and orchestra, in fact in the first draught of Brahm's revisions of over four years it was a symphony.

Wherefore Mr. Stock decreed no other symphony. He began with Mozart's overture to "Der Schauspieldirektor," a sprightly, lively piece of no great length but much tunefulness. Then the audience extended much applause for the greatly learned, expertly constructed Elegy, Chorale, and Fugue by Thorwald Otterstrom of Chicago.

That concluded, Mr. Stock went on to the three sections of Debussy's "La Mer." This, too, makes pleasant hearing, provided it is done no more frequently than once in so often. Here it was that Debussy displayed all of his mannerisms in their most emphatic form, also where he came about the nearest to writing descriptive music. "La Mer" is a great piece for the Chicago Symphony orchestra to make an exhibition of brilliant virtuosity—perhaps it is the greatest value of the piece—and the orchestra took full advantage of the occasion.

Then came Mme. Ney and Brahms. In referring to the work as a symphony, it can hardly be admitted into the company of the world's greatest symphonies, not even of the Brahms works that he was willing to let go out under that name. In fact it needs an exotic personality like that of Mme. Ney at the piano if it is to be admitted anywhere.

But she and Mr. Stock did more for Brahms yesterday than Brahms was willing or able to do for himself in 1858. They transformed, even transfigured the aged work. The orchestra announced, Mme. Ney answered. They discussed, argued, differed, and agreed, always in terms of high emotion and fine manners. A noted director once said in my hearing in order to make a performance a success it is sometimes necessary for the performance to believe that the work is just a bit better than it really it. This, one can almost suspect, was the general state of mind on the stage of Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon, at least during the second part of the program. For the first part no such intellectual stunt was necessary.

SCHUMANN-HEINK LAUDED

New York, Feb. 22.—(AP)—While New York music critics were proclaiming her still one of the greatest contraltos of all time, Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink told the Associated Press today that she will bring to a close at the end of this season her career of more than half a century on the operatic and concert stages. Her voice ringing with happiness over the ovation she received yesterday, when she sang once again the rôle of Erda, "Mother Earth" in "Das Rheingold" at the Metropolitan Opera house, Mme. Schumann-Heink announced that she will devote the rest of her years to teaching.

Chicago Woman's Club to Hold Political Rally

For perhaps the first time in its history the Chicago Woman's club has called a massmeeting of women where Chicago politics will be discussed. The meeting, called by Mrs. Andrew MacLeish, president, will be held at 10:30 this morning in Curtiss hall of the Fine Arts building. Women will be urged to interest themselves in the "aldermanic situation."

A civic and philanthropic organization for years, the club has held to the tradition of keeping out of partisan politics, it was pointed out by Mrs. MacLeish.

Sigmund Zeisler, president of the Municipal Voters league, and Albert R. Brunker of the Civic Safety commission will speak. The meeting is open to all women interested whether members or not.

"No Date Yet Set" for Coolidge-Trumbull Rites

Plainville, Conn., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. John H. Trumbull, wife of Gov. Trumbull, issued a statement tonight in which she denied that her daughter, Florence, and Maj. John Coolidge, son of the President, would marry in the Trumbull residence here. Mrs. Trumbull said she had read an account in a newspaper in which Maj. Coolidge is quoted as saying the marriage would take place in "the executive mansion at Plainville." "It is not true," Mrs. Trumbull said. "Maj. Coolidge is incorrectly quoted. So far there have been no definite plans for the marriage. Even the date has not been set."

German Pupils Hear Little of Royalty, Wars

School System Is Being Readjusted.

(First of a series, this story presents some difficulties facing the German republic in the matter of public education. The second will deal with what is taught in regard to the world war, the third with the German revolution and the peace.)

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—Ten years after the overthrow of the kaiser, ten years after the proclamation of the German republic, the German school teacher still is at a loss what to tell the school children.

One of his traditional duties is to tell them about their national heroes, but the German post-war, post-revolution teacher cannot make up his mind to whom to point as the ideal German hero to awaken the ambition and enthusiasm of the rising generation.

The German teacher thinks he has found something better and bigger than heroes in "Kultur," which takes the place of most human emotions, from admiration, to love, to patriotism.

Prof. Lampe, a prominent member of the Central Institute for Education and Teaching, said:

"We have no national hero in our German schools, because each of our eighteen states has its own state heroes. Frederick the Great looms biggest in Prussia, but we cannot crystallize him as a national hero.

"One group will praise him as the great civilizer, another will see statesmanship at its best in him, another again admires Frederick, the great military tactician—but there is the other group that will try to use Frederick's name in their propaganda against autocracy.

All teachers, whatever their partisanship, have one point in common; respect for human achievement. It hurts the die hard monarchist to be compelled to tell his pupils that the saddlemaker, Ebert, the first president of the German republic, saved the country from chaos and ruin. It hurts the socialist to admit that Kaiser Wilhelm I., the founder of the German reich, was a remarkable king, but both of them will do a pretty good job when they are instructed to tell their pupils about what these men meant to their time, to the historical development of Germany.

The German school teacher first tells children about the local history of their town, their province, their state—it usually is a colorful history rich in romantic tales dear to the heart of young and old in Germany.

The children are taken out on excursions which last a day, some times a whole week. They hike to the castles and burgs of their district. They see the historical spots and right there they hear about the important events of the past. "We want to teach them to use their imagination, to learn to read life from what they see," an important pedagogue told me.

Once they have grasped their local history, they are taken to the shops, to the railroad stations and shown the goods coming into their town, and they are told about the outlying districts whence the goods come; they are told about the history of these districts.

The German state, social and economic institutions, the wealth of German kultur are brought so close to the pupils that the moral determination to carry it on is awakened. The interrelation of German history and world history is shown.

Official Germany also insists that the young generation be taught all about the league of nations, which is to be shown as one of the great achievements of the twentieth century—but besides this, "strong personalities such as intellectual leaders, statesmen, inventors, discoverers, heroes of faith, social fighters, are to be pointed out as examples of devotion and sacrifice."

Should the teachers find time short, school authorities advise him to cut down on the "history of princes, diplomatic conflicts and the German wars of succession."

Ailment the Ads Din at Us May Have a Number of Causes

These ads about losing the beloved and not knowing the reason to be a tainted breath have done a good deal toward making people conscious of this vital esthetic need.

If in doubt, as many are, about the purity of one's breath, there are a few symptoms which may be recognized and from which warning may be taken for a minuter investigation. For instance, if there is a catarrhal condition of the nose or throat, or if there are diseased tonsils, one can be almost sure that the breath will reflect the condition unpleasantly. The obvious step to take is in the direction of a physician.

If the stomach is out of order, again the remedy is obvious. A couple of days on fruit juices might be the most valuable sort of cleanser. Anyway, the usual meals should be abandoned for lighter foodstuffs.

Then if constipation is chronic, the retention of waste in the body is sure to give a putrid odor to the breath. It is agreed that persons who live on refined and concentrated foods are the worst sufferers from constipation. A change of diet to include fruit juices for breakfast, salads for lunch eon and dinner and several vegetables at dinner time has a beneficial reaction on the bowels.

An item in this regard, overlooked by many, is the value of water drinking to sweeten the breath. And, incidentally, if there is a strong odor of perspiration, this is a splendid corrective. It has been proved that if water is drunk before exercise is taken there is less odor than if exercise is done strenuously without.

The mouth itself is the usual suspect in cases of bad breath, but more often the condition is further reaching. But decayed teeth or even teeth not decayed but in danger from food particles not washed out with a mouth wash after teeth brushings do cause a lot of the trouble. But this is a readily detected condition and therefore inexcusable if allowed to continue. And the tongue, if coated, must be put under suspicion and treated to a scraping while you're looking around to find the internal cause of it.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

MISS OT.: FOR MILD CASES OF dry hair and scalp, greasing the scalp lightly with vaseline, olive oil or sweet almond oil will be found most helpful. Dryness of the hair may result from a health disturbance, in which case the trouble must be remedied before the dryness may be overcome.

C. M.: SOFT CORNS COME BEtween the toes. Absorbent cotton should be placed between the toes to prevent friction and keep the parts dry. Sprinkle sulphur between them.

It's Unwise to Say Disparaging Things About Yourself

BY DORIS BLAKE.

There is a certain John and a real one about whom a nice young woman said: "It's pretty deadly spending an evening trying to bolster a man up the whole time. One ought to appreciate modesty, I suppose, but a man ought to have a better opinion of himself than John has if he wants girls to admire him."

And that's putting the finger on the case, exactly. Being modest and being self-deprecatory are two entirely different things. One may be modest and still hold a thoroughly good opinion of oneself. But one can't hold a good opinion of oneself for long with repetitions of disparaging remarks, because people will react to them as they are presented and the man will be forced eventually to believe them himself. Of course, sometimes it is merely a pose. But it is not a becoming one, nor a healthy one.

Girls simply cannot have a high opinion of a man who holds a low opinion of himself. While conceit and arrogance are not desirable qualities, they will carry a man along further than a complete lack of faith in self.

It doesn't hurt in this particular day of ours, at least, to like yourself quite well. If there is any reason

BY THALIA ——.

Miss Suzette Dewey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, formerly of Chicago, has lived such a short book life of popularity and prominence that news of her engagement to Frederick M. Alger Jr. is exciting.

Miss Dewey's engagement has been suspected and rumored numbers of times, but this is authentic, for Mr. Dewey's cable from Warsaw, Poland, where he is financial adviser to the Polish government, releasing the engagement announcement today reached Chicago yesterday.

Miss Chicago, where she grew up, hasn't been much of Suzette since her parents went to Washington about 5 years ago, when Mr. Dewey was made assistant secretary of the treasury, but she has been here several times since that was when Albert B. Dewey gave a large supper dance about [illegible] year ago] and her activities have been recorded in various parts of the world. She went to Miss Porter's school at Farmington, and made her debut in Washington in the winter of [illegible].

The following spring she was presented at the court of St. James, the same season that Loretta Hines, now Mrs. Russell Howard, Miss Laura Thompson, and Miss Joan Williams donned their white feathers for their court bow. She figured prominently in Junior league, charity, Red Cross, and social activities of all kinds in Washington until the Deweys left for Poland.

Her fiancé, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Alger of Detroit, Mich., is a member of Mr. Dewey's Warsaw office. He is the nephew of Mrs. Charles B. Pike of Chicago, his father's sister. The date and place of the prospective marriage are not revealed. Mr. Dewey was in Chicago several weeks ago for a brief stay, but his family, who were expected by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Dewey, to accompany him, remained in Europe.

Mrs. James Elder of Winnetka has had more thrills on her trip to the West Indies than usually falls to the lot of travelers. She and Mrs. Paul Leonard Roche, also of Winnetka, flew from Miami to Havana recently and met Col. Lindbergh at the landing field in Havana.

Then when Mrs. Elder, whose first name is Ruth, arrived in Colon, Panama, for a visit with a friend, she was mistaken for the aviatrix of the same name. "A crowd of natives" [we are indebted to the weekly Winnetka Talk for the anecdote] "stormed the offices of the International Harvester company in Colon, where Mrs. Elder was visiting the wife of the manager, and insisted on seeing her. She appeared on a balcony of the building and explained that she was not the famous flyer. The crowd, not to be daunted, gave her an ovation anyway."

Mrs. John H. Winterbotham is to open her residence at 40 East Huron street on Monday from 10 in the morning until 7 o'clock in the evening for an exhibition and sale of Persian arts and handicrafts brought to this country by Mme. Zora Khanoum Heidary, who is here under the patronage of his excellency, the Persian Minister Meftah, Dr. M. D. de Redlich, the Persian consul general, and a list of locally prominent persons.

The music committee of the Arts club announces a program of compositions by Arthur Honegger, to be given by that musician himself on Sunday evening, March 3. Andres Vaurabourg, pianist, and Berty Jenny, soprano, are to assist him. Supper is to be served at 7:30 o'clock, and the program is set for 9 o'clock.

Miss Frieda Folts drops a line to say that the committee that annually gives a ball for the benefit of the Lower North Community council plans to give the affair on Friday evening, April 5, this year. Adlai E. Stevenson is to be chairman of the group, with Princess Michael Cantacuzene and Carroll Sudler as co-chairmen. The place hasn't been decided, nor any of the other details as yet.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Shimmin, who have been occupying the Edwin Page apartment at 1209 Astor street, have purchased a duplex at 1320 North State street and plan to move in shortly.

Party Book Is Full of Ideas for Hostess Mother

Mrs. Browne has prepared two booklets, one on "Prayers and Graces for Children" and another called "Books to be Read to the Children or by Them," which will be sent free on receipt of stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mrs. Gladys Huntington Browne

Some communities and some families who have children are addicted to that form of entertainment known as "giving a party." While proverbially, as far as the children are concerned, a party is supposed to be the refreshments, there's much more to it than that. A party really needs to be planned to be successful, and while some mothers take to this planning like a duck to water and revel in it, others are driven to their wits end and tear their hair over it.

"What shall we have them do?" they groan.

For those mothers, "My Book of Parties," by Madeline Snyder, will be full of welcome suggestions, especially at this time of the year—for I do think from now till summer is the party season.

Madeline Snyder has directed the children's bureau of entertainment in New York—a party factory—for five years. This book is the fruit of her experience, and it describes parties and decorations and accessories she has tested. The directions for giving the parties start at the very beginning with the invitation, and go right through games and refreshments.

All kinds of occasions are covered—birthdays, holidays—and a wide range of ages. Outdoor summer parties as well as indoor ones are discussed. The need of a party having a leader is made clear, and what she can do to make a party for children successful.

Miss Snyder and I agree about the inadvisability of giving parties for very small children. In my own experience I have found that parties only serve to excite, tire, and bewilder them—and often to upset their stomachs, if not by the food, then by the state they are in when it is eaten. The parents have a lovely time! But not so the children.

On the point of giving prizes I do not, however, agree with the author. Of course it is a convention to give a prize to the winner of a game or contest of any sort. But I do not believe in it for children. They get a whole lot of "kick" out of just winning alone, as you can see if you watch their faces — and that should be enough. There's enough competition in life, even in their lives, without introducing it full strength at a party.

If you think they may expect them, you could announce at the beginning of the games that there will be no prizes. The aim of a party is, after all, to make every one as happy as possible—and prizes don't do that. Most of the children can't win of course if one wins; and, to follow it further, there are some children who never win—they're slow or they lack something that goes to make a prize winner. Giving prizes is too much like giving marks at school. No party should hold a heartache for any one.

"My Book of Parties" should be an ever present help in time of trouble. It is published by Doubleday, Doran & Co., Garden City, New York. The price is $2.

Lindbergh Mother Returns; Silent on His Betrothal

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Evangeline L. L. Lindbergh, mother of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, returned to Detroit this morning after nearly six months in Turkey, where she was a member of the faculty of Constantinople Women's college.

Following her policy of letting her son speak for himself, Mrs. Lindbergh declined to comment on the colonel's engagement to Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, daughter of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow.

Mrs. Lindbergh said her future plans are uncertain and that she did not know when she would return to Cass Technical High school to resume her duties as instructor of chemistry. She was granted a one year leave of absence last August.

Milwaukee Youth Wins $500 as Best Princeton Student

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The highest general distinction that Princeton university can confer on an undergraduate, the Pyne honor prize, was awarded this morning to Joseph Very Quarles Jr., 1929, of Milwaukee, Wis. President John Grier Hibben made the award of the prize, which was $500 in gold, at the meeting of the National Alumni association in Nassau hall.

Quarles, who prepared at Hotchkiss school, is president of the undergraduate council, a member of the varsity crew, and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in the middle of his junior year at Princeton.

The Pyne honor prize, established in 1923, is annually awarded to that member of the senior class who, in the opinion of the president of the university, the secretary of the university, and the dean of the college, has most clearly manifested the qualifications of excellent scholarship, manly qualities, and effective support of the best interests of Princeton university.

VARIOUS EVENTS

The Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, tent No. 2, will present a patriotic program in honor of Lincoln and Washington this evening at 4039 Madison street.

The Chicago Switzerland society announces a lecture entitled "About the Mississippi," to be given this evening by Mrs. J. Holinger at the Bismarck hotel.

The education and philosophy department of the Chicago Woman's club will have a teachers' day breakfast at 11:45 o'clock this morning. Miss Rose Peata and Mrs. William S. Hefferan of the board of education will give talks on "Women and Education," and a play entitled "From Socrates to Freud" will be presented by members.

The Temple Judea Woman's club will give a dance this evening in the banquet hall of the temple at 1227 Independence boulevard.

Gives Dance Tonight.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar coated, olive colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

SOCIETY NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. West of the Ambassador and the John V. Farwells of 229 Lake Shore drive left together a few days ago for the west. The Wests are sojourning at Palm Springs and the Farwells at Pasadena, Cal.

Mrs. Charles Edward Brown has gone to Aiken, S. C., after a visit with her mother, Mrs. William Deshler, who is wintering at Lake Wales, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil B. Dawes of Winnetka have sailed for Europe to spend two months in travel. They plan to tour Italy with Mrs. Dawes' mother, Mrs. John A. Orb, who has been living for the last year at Lausanne, Switzerland, where her grandson, John A. Orb III., is at school.

Mrs. Lowell M. Chapin, who has been at Aiken, S. C., recently, sailed at midnight last night on the Olympic for Europe.

Maude Radford Warren is in Chicago, staying at the Fortnightly, for one of her infrequent visits. She plans to stay about ten days. Usually when she arrives she reports that she has a book in progress, but this time she says she isn't to begin her next one until summer.

Rockford College Is Giving Washington Party Today

MISS MARION HARDING.

Miss Marion Harding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Lawrence Harding of 5602 Dorchester avenue, and Miss Margaret Emory of Hammond, Ind., are co-chairmen of the Rockford college Washington party to take place this evening in the college gymnasium. The dance is one of the largest events of the college year. Students are requested to dress in colonial costumes and an old fashioned minuet will be one of the features of the evening.

"All right, Johnnie, but you will have to call back tomorrow for your money, as I haven't any change just now," I replied.

"O, I've all ready collected 20 cents since I got home from school, so I guess I can afford to do yours ON TIME," said the boy magnanimously.

Jane became ill with scarlet fever the day after her birthday party, so all the children that attended it were quarantined to their own yards.

Billy, 4, who had attended the party, was in his yard playing when I passed, so I inquired, "How are you today, Billy?"

"O, I'm just dandy, but I expect to be sick with scarlet fever any day now," he replied. V. B. R.

Watchmaker Has No Tools.

"I am an ex-service man confined in a hospital in Texas—a married man with a family. Before the war, I was a watchmaker and I could resume this profession for a short period each day, but I no longer have my tools. If any of your readers had them to give it would help me immensely to receive them. F. B."

Have we a watchmaker among our readers who will send part of his surplus equipment to this ex-service man in Texas so that he may again take up his profession which would prove both lucrative and enjoyable? I shall be happy to give you his address.

KELLOGG TREATY IS APPROVED BY CANADIAN HOUSE

BY GEORGE SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 23.—The Canadian house of commons today unanimously approved the Kellogg-Briand peace pact. As the senate had given prior approval, all that remains to complete the formalities, so far as Canada's adherence is concerned, is the ratification for Canada of the king. There was no recorded vote on the pact. A chorus of ayes from all sides greeted the speaker's submission of the question.

Charles Cahan, Montreal Conservative, and Edward Garland, Progressive of New River, Alberta, as well as Premier MacKenzie King, participated in today's closing discussion. Mr. Cahan had doubts as to the will to peace of the United States, and Mr. Garland had some apprehensions as to the ultimate definition of a war of self-defense.

But the house indorsed the pact as a step in the right direction and one body at least to make signatory nations think twice before resorting to arms.

Fears U. S. May Not Want Peace.

Mr. Cahan quoted Alanson B. Houghton, United States ambassador at the court of St. James, and President Coolidge in his armistice day speech in expressing his fears that there might not be wholehearted will to peace in the states. He recalled a declaration by a United States senator that the United States navy was prepared primarily to combat Great Britain and secondly, Japan.

Mr. Garland said that failure to secure a definite understanding of the meaning of "self-defense" would vitiate the purpose of the treaty. He asked the Canadian government to seek to secure that definition and try to arrange another armament conference, not in Europe but in Ottawa.

Premier King said the so-called reservation as to self-defense made by Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain of Great Britain was no longer of any effect, inasmuch as nearly all nations had signified their intention of signing the pact, and the exceptions were not countries concerning which Sir Austen had any fears.

Consider Relations with Russia.

OTTAWA, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The Canadian government is considering reestablishment of relations with soviet Russia, Premier Mackenzie King disclosed in the house of commons today. The information came from the premier in reply to J. S. Woodsworth, Labor, Winnipeg north center, who had asked whether Canada was taking any steps for resumption of relations in view of the favorable reports about Russia as published from Col. J. H. Mackie of Pembroke. The premier's brief answer was:

"I am unable to say more to my honorable friend than that the government is considering the matter."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Ireland, Feb. 22. — The Kellogg peace pact formally received approval of the Dail Eireann today in spite of the protests of the followers of Eamon de Valera, the Republican leader, and demands for publication of secret documents. The treaty was attacked as an insincere platitude, a three comedy and camouflage. Deputy Mulling said the signing by the Free State was another attempt to work out the idea that it is a sovereign state, although England still held it in subjection.

Evangeline Booth Refused Chance to See Brother

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—It was officially announced tonight that Gen. Bramwell Booth, recently deposed head of the Salvation Army, is "not so well." Commander Evangeline Booth," the official statement says, "has asked to see her brother, but this is not possible at present as the doctors have forbidden any business or interviews which would remind the general of the blow he has recently received." Evangeline, who is commander of the Salvation Army in the United States, will return to America next Wednesday.

"Jose the Humane" Dead; Exiled Bolivian President

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Feb. 22.—Former President José Gutierrez Guerra died today at Antofagasta at the age of sixty. He was called "José the Humane." A sincere, honest statesman and financier, he died in poverty after being an exile for the last nine years. He was ousted from the presidency in the revolution of 1920 headed by Bautista Saavedra.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

Last evening's musical programs failed to maintain the standards set by two speech broadcasts, one by Charles Evans Hughes, through W-G-N, at 6:30, and the other by President Coolidge, through KYW, at 7:15.

The weekly feature, "An Evening in Paris," through W-G-N, 8 to 8:30, usually very light and Parisian, became, in deference to Washington's birthday, a nicely arranged and presented program, suitable for a combined Washington, Franklin, and Lafayette celebration.

The entertainment by Brooks Johns and his cheery theater gang, W-G-N, 8:30 to 9, was typically irresponsibly crazy and certainly quite warm enough to be enjoyed on any winter night. If one wanted to be critical, faults could be found, but it's wholesome, nourishing entertainment of this particular modern type. Mr. Johns and his amusement company soon migrate to the Pacific coast, but their many friends will wish them an early return to Chicago.

UNION PROTESTS APPOINTMENT OF MRS. BLACKLIDGE

Members of the Photographers and Copying Employes' union sent a telegram to Senator Charles S. Deneen in Washington yesterday asking him to reconsider his reported sponsorship of the appointment of Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge as collector of internal revenue here in place of Mrs. Mabel G. Reinecke. The wire was signed by H. G. Rossell, president of the local union.

"We hope you are not contemplating such a change," the telegram read in part. "We wish to inform you that Mrs. Blacklidge formerly held an exacting position in the county recorder's office which she failed to fulfill. We have a volume of exhibits to prove our case."

Student Killed and 8 Hurt in Fire at Washington Fete

HUNTS GAS LEAK; BURNED.

John Kabo, 35 years old, 10637 Calhoun avenue, was burned about the face and hands in a fire at his home yesterday. He was investigating a gas leak in the basement with a match.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

Ohio—Fair, slightly warmer in west portion Saturday; Sunday increasing cloudiness and warmer, followed by snow or rain.

GROVE'S BROMO QUININE LAXATIVE TABLETS

Lace Presents Many Innovations

BY LOLITA.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Any fashion review might properly be called "This Year of Lace." The neck finish of lace, including all sorts of frilly bertha developments, is one of the concommitants of both our afternoon and evening modes and I have so often referred to it that it needs no further elaboration. A fresher inquiry into the lace vogue must concern itself with the new types of lace which have crept into the fashion picture.

First of all, there is a great change in the motivation of lace. Fast, disappearing are the old conventional patterns worn by our mothers and grandmothers. The modernistic spirit has influenced many of our newest textures and especially have lines—wavy, broken and crossed—contributed to novelty.

Next, there must be consideration of the medium. Many, indeed, are the threads which are woven into this mesh of fashion. The rayon laces are of outstanding interest and they are developed now quite as well in the dull as in the ciré effects with which we formerly associated them. Another thread entering largely into our calculations is wool. Wool laces for daytime frocks are promised an extraordinary success for summer. Such wool laces emphasize the present tendency of all lace. This is to make the background as light as possible and to concentrate the bulk in the motif. Such a trend is especially notable in those net or tulle laces that are being featured so widely in the early spring collections.

Beautiful, indeed, are these new net laces with their cobwebby backgrounds throwing into relief embroideries of cotton and perhaps, of beads. Chenille pompons are one of the designs being featured by French houses and equally worthy of note are those dotted in rayon embroidery. These airy backgrounds in combination with highly relieved designs are to be mentioned in the same breath with a tendency toward the lightening of all laces. Ombre effects are constantly seen and they modify both the lace itself and the motif.

SLAYER OF TWO DETROIT POLICE CAPTURED HERE

One of the four robbers who killed two policemen during a pay roll holdup in Detroit last Saturday was captured in Chicago last night. The capture was made in a room at 3538 Monroe street after Detectives Garrett Fleming and Peter Sienkewics of the Fillmore police had been informed that a man with a bullet wound in his hand was hiding there.

The prisoner gave his name as Arthur Gamache, 29 years old. He confessed that he was one of the men who raided the office of a Detroit contracting concern to get a $1,500 pay roll. The robbers encountered Ben Smith and Clarence Stadler of the Detroit police force, and in the gun battle both the policemen and one of the robbers were killed. Two of the fleeing robbers were wounded, but all three escaped. They got no loot.

Gamache's pal, slain in the Detroit robbery, was identified as Fred Bows, a Chicago police character. Gamache has a long Chicago record. In December, 1926, he confessed 17 robberies and was held in $1,800,000 bonds by Municipal Judge John H. Lyle. Later the felony charges against him were waived and he was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell for larceny, the police said. Gamache said the revolver he used in Detroit was taken from a south park policeman who walked in on him while he was holding up a cigar store at 847 East 69th street on Feb. 13. Earlier the same day, Gamache confessed, he shot and wounded Hlammik during the robbery of a drug store at 3000 West 59th street.

During the day your hands accumulate germs. Ordinary washing with soap and water doesn't destroy them. So, carried to the mouth on food, they develop, attacking the mucous membrane. A cold or sore throat or both frequently follows.

Full strength Listerine, is powerful against germs—kills most varieties in 15 seconds. Therefore its use on the hands before each meal is simply another wise precaution against colds and sore throat. Mothers handling children's food should particularly bear this in mind. Write for our great free book, "Personal Hygiene." Address Dept. S. 85, Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

And for SORE THROAT

SEIZE 5 HOLDUP SUSPECTS; 1 FACES MURDER CHARGE

Five men, said to be responsible for a large number of store and taxicab robberies in Chicago within the last few months, were arrested last night. One of them, who also, it was discovered, is wanted on a murder charge in Knox, Ind., confessed to 12 holdups and implicated the others, police said.

Those under arrest are Fred Stella, alias Fred Roberts, 23 years old, 1436 Blanche street; Joseph Cichocki, 26 years old, 1504 West North avenue; Michael Cichocki, 25 years old, a brother of Joseph; Robert Stanko, 23 years old, 1286 Cleaver street, said to be a former henchman of Joe Saltis, and Vincent Smith, 28 years, also of 1426 Blanche street.

Stella, when he was identified as the man sought on the Indiana murder charge, pleaded with detectives to shoot him, saying he would rather die than be taken back to Indiana for trial.

EVANSTON BOY TIES SLED TO AUTO; IS KILLED

Ewald Schmidt, 10 years old, 1323 Dodge avenue, Evanston, was killed yesterday while riding his sled tied to an automobile. He was run over near his home by another car, driven by John J. Fell, 1743 Touhy avenue.

This death and two others during the day raised Cook county's motor toll to 104 since Jan. 1. The other victims:

Mrs. Hedwig Janz, 53 years old, 5622 South Justine street. Struck and killed at 55th street and Ashland avenue by a car driven by Ronald Rommel, 18 years old, 7813 Maryland avenue.

George Paxton, 70 years old, 9209 Woodlawn avenue. Killed while a passenger on a street car that crashed at 93d street and Cregier avenue with a heavy truck driven by Edward Schwartz, 37 years old, 3117 South Union avenue.

Mrs. Harry A. Kahn, 239 Woodlawn avenue, Glencoe, paid two fines of $5 and costs each yesterday in the Evanston police court. One was for driving through a red traffic light. The other was on the policemen's testimony that she stepped on the gas and tried to escape them, putting on her brakes only after they had displayed a revolver.

U. S. WAR FLYERS IN FIRST REUNION SINCE ARMISTICE

BY ROBERT WOOD.

America's "war birds," who fought the Hun in the air over the trenches of France, gathered last night at the Hotel Sherman in their first reunion since the signing of the armistice ten years ago. Included in their number were veterans of the army, navy and marine corps air services.

There was little speech making and no "barracks flying." The war 'n which they fought was mentioned only once, and then incidentally, when Ray Kraut, senior flying officer of the 185th flying squadron, that first flew over the German lines in the Liberty motored ships, addressed his squadron. "We lost 27 during the war, Mr. Toastmaster," he said. "There are 35 of us here tonight. That's all the speech I want to make."

Famous Flyers Attend.

The reunion brought together many famous flyers who since leaving the service have entered civil aviation to pilot planes for commercial air transportation. It is these men who are building the future of aviation, Maj. William P. McCracken, secretary of the department of commerce for aeronautics, who acted as toastmaster, declared.

"Chicago at present is the most important air center in the United States," Maj. McCracken declared. "When we next meet at a reunion the air traffic moving in and out of Chicago will exceed that of any other city in the world. We must work toward this end. We simply can't afford to let the opportunities slip by."

The flyers passed a resolution asking that the national convention of the American Legion at Louisville, Ky., next September, be dedicated to aviation. The resolution was presented by Lieut. Joseph A. Ellison, commandant of Bowman field at Louisville, Ky., who flew here for the reunion.

AVIATION NOTES

Attesting the comforts of flying, a fourteen months old baby yesterday traveled from Chicago to Detroit over the Stout Air lines. The child is Nancy Lou Wilson, a daughter of W. C. Wilson of Dearborn, Mich., an official of the Stout company.

Lester D. Seymour, general manager of the National Air Transport, stated yesterday that a shuttle service had been started between Hadley field, N. J., and the new airport at Newark, N. J. As yet the Newark field is too small to provide safe landing space for heavily loaded ships, he said. Chicago mail is unloaded at Hadley field and transferred to smaller ships, which fly on to Newark, 30 miles closer to New York.

As soon as the runways of the Newark field are extended mail will be flown direct to that airport, cutting about an hour from the schedule between Chicago and New York, Mr. Seymour stated.

Airplanes parading in formation before state dignitaries and mayors of Los Angeles, Glendale, and San Diego, Cal., celebrated the opening of the new grand central air terminal at Glendale yesterday. The field is located six miles from the business center of Los Angeles. Lining the airport are fireproof hangars, airplane salesrooms, mail, express, and passenger depots, and an administration building which houses weather and radio service.

TAKE MEASLES SERIOUSLY, IS WORD TO PARENTS

Parents who expose their children to measles on the theory that it is better for the children to get the disease and have it over with were criticised yesterday by Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel. Measles, he said, is a dangerous disease.

"Never make the mistake of thinking that measles is too mild a disease to need a doctor," Dr. Kegel said. "The prevention of pneumonia and other complications that so often follow measles calls for the best medical and nursing care that the family can afford."

Every other year in Chicago is measles year, he added, and now we are beginning to enter upon a season which past experience teaches will be characterized by a great many cases of this disease. Only 1,600 cases were reported in 1928, but there were 17,000 in 1927, he said.

HOLD GOLDEN GLOVES TITLE BOUTS TONIGHT

SECOND CUBS SQUAD OFF FOR AVALON TODAY

Wilson and All of the Regulars Signed.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Unless Acting Secretary Dan Fire-ball Cahill should lose the tickets, nothing is going to mar the intended departure of the second squad of Cubs at 1:35 o'clock this afternoon for the sunny slopes of William Wrigley's Catalina island empire.

HACK WILSON.

Everybody has been accounted for and everybody has been signed, according to the last bulletin issued yesterday by President William Veeck, and, barring mishaps, there'll be ten registered Cubs and one ex-Cub under Secretary Cahill's dominance when the train leaves the Santa Fe station.

The ex-Cub in the party is Senator Charles Tolson, who is going back to work for the Los Angeles club, which is another portion of Magnate Wrigley's baseball holdings.

Hack Wilson Signs Up.

For several days there were fears that the pudgy Hack Wilson might have mounted the holdout wagon and gone for a gay ride, but this thought was dispelled when he waddled into the club's offices yesterday morning. Nothing had been heard from the home run expert since he received his contract more than a month ago, hence the belief he was not entirely satisfied with the salary offered.

"Just wanted to have a little fun and get my name in the papers," explained Hack to President Veeck.

Then he yanked the somewhat soiled document from his pocket, laid it on the desk and annexed his signature. He first made sure the camera men were in position to get an optical record of the momentous incident.

The winter of discontent has operated favorably in Hack's behalf and he is round enough to roll up hill without effort. There is at least fifteen pounds of excess beef clinging to his frame so he will, of necessity, don the rubber shirt as soon as he encounters the critical gaze of Manager McCarthy next Tuesday afternoon.

Taylor Declines Infield Job.

Another who can be expected to enroll in the fat men's brigade is Dan Taylor, the hard clouting outfielder picked up at Memphis. When he was ushered into the president's office yesterday he admitted he was slightly out of shape, but not alarmingly so. He must relieve himself of about ten pounds.

Taylor also admitted that he wasn't a third base candidate as had been suspected. He has played the infield but only as a matter of necessity and has no intention of trying to nudge Clyde Beck off third base. He started as an outfielder with the Buffalo club in 1926; Washington had him for the same duties a bit later, and he hopes to remain where he started.

Neither Hornsby nor Cuyler, the two gentlemen who will share with Wilson and Stephenson the heavy hitting chores, will require much attention when they climb into uniform. Both are down to about playing weight as the result of an active winter.

WRIGLEY SEES CUB DRILL

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., Feb. 22.—For a gent who seriously is considering junking a $1,000,000 baseball investment, William Wrigley Jr. this morning seemed a mighty gay person as he sat on the bench at the Cubs' training field.

The king of Catalina still was thinking more about the quarrel he is having about his Los Angeles Angels, the club he threatens to junk, but his major thoughts were on his Cubs.

"I should worry about that Coast league when I can listen to the report of Manager McCarthy about the athletes who are going to win the pennant in a real league," Mr. Wrigley said.

Ruth Waits for Rest of Team.

"Look at that Charlie Root, in the right now. Cap Malone may be batting .302 at present but watch him throw that baseball, and what do you think of the way those two boys, Art Nehf and Hal Carlson, are stepping around after only five days' workout?"

Mr. Wrigley went on and on about the Cubs until he finally returned to the subject of his Coast league troubles and his plan to make an invitation training camp of Wrigley field in Los Angeles. Then he resumed:

"Some of the Coast league magnates with $15,000 ball parks persist in trying to dictate my personal affairs. They have $1,500,000 tied up in coast organizations for 11 years and never turned down a nickel in interest.

"Do you blame me for getting annoyed at a time when I want to have my mind free to think about the Cubs?"

Mr. McCarthy modestly is joining in

Stribling and Sharkey Get Crowd; Why?

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—Many customers of various social grades are rolling down to Miami at this time to attend the battle of the two young model husbands, Willie Stribling and Jack [Rin Tin Tin-ear] Sharkey.

Advices in the papers state that a representative group of Chicago's undesirable citizens are on the beach even now, having selected Miami as a sort of rest sector where they may recuperate from the winter campaign along the front at home. It is understood that the boys plan to do no more professional work than will be necessary to keep their hands in and this seems a very sensible way for them to do.

The policemen and deputy sheriffs of Miami are notoriously petulant and jealous of their prerogative to do all the shooting there. They seem to have been given an exclusive franchise to do the shooting under some old Spanish land grant. At any rate, the privilege of shooting people resides exclusively with them and they are very resentful of any invasion of their rights. They may figure that if outsiders were to carry on promiscuous shooting a time would come when there would not be anybody for them to shoot.

The deputy sheriffs had a fine shoot one night a few years ago during the boom. It was almost as picturesque and successful as the one held in the beer truck garage in Chicago a short time ago. It was learned that some of the prisoners in the county jail were dissatisfied with the radio programs and planned to withdraw quietly under cover of the night and go to some other state. The deputies heard about it and organized a shoot.

The hunt supper was served to a gay party of deputies and as the hour of the shoot arrived they took positions commanding the rear exit of the jail. Then, promptly at the appointed time, the prisoners dashed out and the deputies banged away at them, obtaining a wonderful bag. Some of the huntsmen seem to have wavered slightly as the desperadoes, under sentence for such crimes as atrocious nonsupport, petty larceny and vagrancy, dashed across the yard, for not all of the quarry were killed.

The leading citizens took a strange attitude in the circumstances. They appeared to feel humiliated by the poor score and did not wish the incident to be overemphasized in the press of other states. However, considering the range, the night visibility and the fact that they were shooting at moving targets there was nothing to be ashamed of. The gallant officers did almost as well as the Chicago machine gun team, which worked at close range, in a good light, and with the subjects stationary against a wall.

Gene Tunney had an adventure with the law in Miami. He was not champion at the time and one afternoon he was challenged for some offense such as parking his car in the wrong place. Some said he was singled out because he was a Catholic. Others thought the officer simply did not like Gene Tunney, which seems plausible. At any rate, Mr. Tunney out-strategied the officer, for he refused to argue, probably for the first and only time in his life.

He happened to know that under the law he could not be legally shot unless he said, "Do you know who I am?" or "The mayor is a personal friend of mine." This comes under the head of resisting an officer in Miami and justifies stern measures.

Mr. Tunney's acquiescence probably was the means of preserving him to uplift the city of Chicago.

On the whole, in view of the irritable character of the officers there and their tendency to shoot in an offhand manner, Miami seems a great place for a rest sector for the Chicago visitors provided they devote themselves strictly to resting. But if they should forget themselves the Miami officers would be very likely to organize another shoot and solve much of Chicago's present problem.

Just why so many people are going to Miami to see the two young home loving fathers fight one another is a mystery which I would rather not discuss. There is much snow in the north at present and I am content to cover the strange affair without looking a pleasant assignment in the mouth.

STRIBLING TOYS WITH SPARMATES IN SPEEDY DRILL

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 22.—Young Stribling, whom all the south is boosting to become heavyweight champion, took his workout today in a manner called slow and unimpressive by most of the newspaper gentry gathered at the ringside. They criticized lack of aggressiveness and failure to rush in for openings against his sparring partners, Paul Cavalier and Martin Burke, each of whom took on the Georgia schoolboy for two rounds.

With that critical viewpoint this writer did not agree. Young Stribling looked far better to us than in any workout we have seen. He was not punching at all times with the force previously shown nor was he forcing the milling. Instead he was practicing feinting and footwork. It appeared to be defense without using his hands. In his head slipping, in his side stepping, and in body shifting he was showing adeptness.

Pa Stribling Approves.

While this was going on, we watched Manager Pa Stribling who was nodding his head approvingly. Possibly this preliminary work indicated the tactics to be adopted by the Georgian against Sharkey. It is the consensus among Stribling's admirers that if the bout goes the limit of ten rounds that he will be the winner on points. Again, they do not think Sharkey can get to the elusive Macon boy for a knockout. Therefore, they say, Stribling will win.

Nearly all critics from the New York and Boston sectors think the Lithuanian-American is a sure winner. They give little credit to Stribling for having anything that Sharkey has not. It is this opinion which makes Sharkey 6 to 5 and 7 to 5 in the wagering, with probability that odds by Wednesday night will be 8 to 5.

At Hardie's casino, where Young Stribling performed before a capacity and appreciative house which cheered Promoter Jack Dempsey cordially as he appeared for a few minutes, the Stribling troupe put on a good show. It is their policy to give spectators their four bits' worth and to leave a friendship for the young man of 24 years whom they hope to see rise to title heights.

Kid Does His Stuff.

Many women are in the crowd, and for them W. L. Stribling III., 2 years old, is the main attraction. He was in wonderful form this afternoon, putting on the gloves and attacking his father. When the latter gave a push rather than a punch which sent the youngster tumbling to the canvas, the kid arose with a smile and fairly tore after his dad with fists flying.

Then Pa Stribling, the kid's grandfather, posed him after the manner of the baby member of an acrobatic troupe and tossed him around as Japanese jugglers do. After his rolling in the air the baby was dizzy and unsteady on his feet, but still smiling. It was good stuff for those women not so keen for the boxing, except to gratify curiosity.

Jack Sharkey did not make a public appearance today, but will work again tomorrow. Instead he did a bit of road work and played eighteen holes of golf. His weight this morning was given as 191½, an overnight gain of four pounds. Young Stribling weighed 184½ before his work, which probably cost several pounds, although the day was not as warm as usual. Managers of both fighters wish their charges had about five pounds more of good, hard muscle. Fear of staleness in this climate, where it is so easy to work, is one of their worries.

Illinois Tankers Hand 42-29 Beating to Badgers

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The University of Illinois swimming team tonight defeated Wisconsin, 42 to 29. Meyer and Lang of Wisconsin took first place in the 200 yard breast stroke and the 50 yard free style, with Illinois taking the other firsts. The Illinois water polo won a 10 to 0 victory.

ALONG THE GOLDEN GLOVES TRAIL

Paulino Weathers Christner's First Flurry; Wins Decision

New York, Feb. 22.—[Special.]—Paulino Uzcudun, wood chopper from the Spanish Basque country, survived a tumultuous first round to come back and gain a decisive victory over K. O. Christner, 24 year old Akron heavyweight in the main bout of ten rounds at Madison Square Garden tonight. Before a crowd of 20,000 spectators who paid $82,000 to witness the contest the sturdy Spaniard after sampling the right that laid Knute Hansen low, remained on his feet to carry ruthlessly on and gain the decision.

Christner Takes First Round.

The Akron boy's best round was the first. In this session he landed his right squarely on Paulino's jaw four times. The Spaniard tottered, but remained on his feet. He came back to fight on even terms in the second and went ahead thereafter with his flailing advances and spurted desperately in the last two sessions, reaching his rival again and again with his right, but Paulino's great stamina enabled him to absorb Christner's best without losing his feet.

Christner failed to hear the bell signaling the start of the bout and before he knew it Paulino was right upon him. However, the Spanish boxer waited for his rival to get set and then proceeded to bore in with his short body punches. Christner stepped away and landed a crushing right on Paulino's jaw, but the latter continued to advance.

Paulino Gets into Action.

Christner boxed capably in the second, forcing Paulino to miss several wild swings. The Akron heavyweight countered well and landed frequently with lefts and rights on his rival's chin.

Paulino pummeled Christner heavily with rights to the body in the third round and forced his rival to hold. Christner attempted to stand off Paulino but could not find a suitable defense for the latter's ever boring tactics.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

BY DON MAXWELL.

Brig. Gen. Conrad from Fort Sheridan sat on the Golden Gloves battle-front and asked:

I think it's important that you learn the answer.

Years ago when Walter Eckersall began promotional work on the first Silver Skates Derby he realized that no one man, no matter how hard he worked, could possibly attend to all of the details incident to such an undertaking. He began recruiting assistants. Mr. Eckersall had no money to pay. Those he might have hired wouldn't have been the right sort anyhow. He had to find fellows who took enough interest in amateur sport to be willing to give liberally of their time just for the fun of service.

And Walter found those men. Some of them come from the west side; some live far north of the loop; some live south. Some of them are young; some of them are middle aged. All of them have to make a living.

Yet to put on the Silver Skates Derby they stand out on ice with the temperature flirting with zero and the wind whipping from the north. They give up evening after evening to the work of copying lists of entries for a Golden Gloves tournament, making up schedules for track meets, or any one of a score of intricate, difficult tasks.

While you were seated comfortably at the ringside last night, clapping at decisions or shouting encouragement to your favorites, the wrecking crew was working in a basement room on routine jobs which, when coördinated with a whole, sent hundreds of strong hearted young buckos to the ring in an orderly, uninterrupted march.

When eighty bouts were run off in less than four hours on the opening night, it wasn't just good luck. It was system and hard work.

First every boy must be weighed in and placed in the proper class. Next he must be examined by competent physicians and these experts just as their laymen comrades, serve without pay. Then come the drawings, in which the boys are matched. A poor boxer may draw the potential champion in the first bout or he may draw an opponent of almost equal ability. That is the luck of the draw.

And I might add that whether lucky or unlucky no boy ever yet has found a member of the wrecking crew who would alter the draw a jot. Having drawn, the boys are seated to await the announcer's call into action. Four pairs of boys are at the ringside constantly. This removes chance of delay.

Members of the wrecking crew know rules, and keep them as unalterable as the law of the Medes and Persians.

Last night one of the ablest boxers in the meet was late for the drawings. He, with all the others, had been warned against tardiness. But he overslept or tarried too long at dinner or for some other such trivial reason was delayed. After the drawings were over he and his manager bounced in. (Why an amateur wants a manager is a puzzle.)

Anyway, this boxer and his manager attempted to get the wrecking crew to overlook the tardiness and slip him into the program. They argued, they stormed, they pleaded. If time is golden they wasted a fortune. But the tardy boxer didn't box.

And that was right. For these aids of Walter Eckersall are giving you a great show because they have a system, a code, a plan evolved by skill, tested and tried by experience, and they use it.

You and I think that it is fine that the young folks of Chicago get opportunities to develop strong bodies and clean minds through athletic conflict. We are glad that the Silver Skates Derbies have made Chicago a famous skating center and that the Golden Gloves tournaments are giving hundreds of young fellows a chance to work off steam and put on muscle.

But most of us are content to look on, applaud and accept such events as accomplishments of chance.

Tonight when you pick up your Golden Gloves program send the names listed on the second page. They are names of fellows making your show possible. They are the names of fellows doing something worthwhile for the young folk of Chicago.

32 FIGHTS ON LAST CARD OF AMATEUR MEET

3,500 Tickets Are for Sale Today.

Plenty of Seats

SIXTY-FIVE hundred tickets for the finals of the Golden Gloves tournament at the Coliseum tonight have been sold. But thirty-five hundred seats will be on sale today. After 12 o'clock they may be purchased at the box office at the Coliseum. There are tickets left in all classes—$1, $2, and $3. Doors of the Coliseum open tonight at 7 o'clock and the bouts start at 8:15.

There will be thirty-two bouts tonight, four boys having come through in each of the eight classes. Tonight's fights will be held in one ring. The eight winners and their opponents in the final contests will compose the Chicago team which invades New York next month.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Chicago will be represented by a strong team in the inter-city matches with New York next month in Madison Square Garden. This became certain last night at the semi-finals where fighters qualified for the finals of THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves amateur boxing tourney to be held tonight in the Coliseum. The finalists have worked their way up by meeting the best boys in the middle west.

More than 6,000 spectators witnessed the semi-final rounds last night. The receipts were estimated at $13,000.

Lots of Action.

The crowd saw knockouts and knockdowns, a feature of boxing which has been preëminent in the entire tourney. It saw Jimmy Chase of the Belle Plaine A. C., winner of the 112 pound class a year ago, battle his way into the finals. It saw Joe Bosak of Blue Island, Ill., victor in the bantamweight division a year ago, earn the right to compete for the 118 pound class title.

The fans also cheered as Jackie Davis of Springfield, Ill., won the honor to compete in the finals of the 126 pound class. Nick Fosco of the Barry gymnasium, victor of the welterweight title a year ago, will be among the finalists in his class. Johnny Ross of the Southern A. C., the present Central A. A. U. middleweight champion, will meet O. E. Robinson of the University of Illinois, and Al Keegan of the Chicago Stadium club and Charley Kerr of the same club. The same is true of the light heavyweight class, in which Ed Wills of the Hippodrome and Buck Everett of the Gary Y. M. C. A. appear to be the best. Charley Retzlaff of Duluth, Minn., and Bill Maddux of the Barry gymnasium are among the qualifiers in the heavyweight division.

Four have qualified in each division. If all go through their first rounds tonight thirty-two bouts will take place. The show will open at 8:15 o'clock. The Golden Gloves will be presented to the winners immediately after the contests. The cup which goes to the team scoring the greatest number of points will be presented as the great show ends.

Twelve Knockouts Scored.

Qualifying bouts must report as soon after 5 o'clock tonight as possible. Drawings will take place at 8:30. It will not be necessary for the fighters to weigh again.

Last night thirty-five fights were staged. Most of them kept the large crowd excited. Spectators cheered the winners lustily and the decisions met with general approval. There were twelve knockouts and plenty of knockdowns. There was no pulling of punches.

Fans who witness tonight's fights are assured plenty of action. In the middleweight class, Al Keegan of the Chicago Stadium club has won his three fights by knockouts. He has disposed of his opponents in less than four rounds. He will meet Johnny Ross of the Southtown A. C. in either the first or final round, depending upon the draw. This class attracted a banner entry and Keegan and Ross have shown to the best advantage. O. E. Robinson of the University of Illinois who is competing unattached and Charley Kerr of the Chicago Stadium club are the others who will compete.

Stiff Competition for Chase.

Jimmy Chase of the Belle Plaine A. C. is showing his old time form and generally is picked to win the title in the 112 pound class. Joe Bosak of Blue Island is favored to win the bantamweight title, although he will meet with stiff competition from Robert Wilcox of Ottawa, Ill., and Harry Garbell of the Edmille Health club.

Jackie Davis of Springfield, Ill., is picked by the sharps to win the featherweight title and Roosevelt Haines of the Chicago Stadium club is favored in the lightweight division. Charley Retzlaff of Duluth, Minn., a smart boxer, is the most promising of the heavyweights.

All indications point to a great night of fighting. The finalists are ready for the bell. They have survived some grueling contests. They hands are in excellent shape and they have no cuts or bruises about the face or body.

De Paul Lights Beat St. Philip, 31-14, for Lead

De Paul's lights defeated St. Philip's 31 to 14, last night at De Paul, and went into first place in the north section of the Catholic league. De Paul held St. Philip scoreless for the first 12 minutes of play. Bandy, De Paul right guard, scored nine points. The De Paul heavies moved to within a half game of the leading St. Mel team by winning, 24 to 16. Lightweight lineup:

ST. MEL NIPS DE PAUL FROSH.

St. Mel heavyweights defeated De Paul university freshmen team, 26 to 22, in an overtime game on the winners' floor last night. Bramhall, who scored five baskets and three free throws, saved the game for St. Mel with a free throw in the last minute of the regulation time. His baskets in the overtime periods decided the contest. B. O'Connor led the losers with four points.

Percy Williams Takes Buffalo Sprint Race

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Showing his Olympic speed, Percy Williams, Canadian sprinter, tonight outran all opposition in the 100 yard dash at the indoor meet at the 106th artillery armory. Williams ran impressively both in his heat and the final, winning the latter with five yards to spare. His time was 10 1-5 seconds.

East Aurora High Beats Elgin Quintet, 27 to 13

Aurora, Ill., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—East Aurora high advanced another notch nearer the Big Seven conference basketball title by swamping Elgin high here tonight, 27 to 13. Watson was the star of the battle and the high point scorer. The Elgin lightweights won the curtain raiser, 32 to 15.

SMITTY—NO SIGN OF ANYBODY

New Orleans, La., Feb. 22.—[Special.]—In a six furlong dash at Jefferson park today J. Broad's filly Red Iris broke in a tangle, went up on the outside, came very wide on the turn and still won by three lengths from Fraha while seven others trailed. Red Iris paid $56.80 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels, the longest price of the afternoon and the winning ride was one of two turned in by Jockey Elmo Shropshire.

In the fifth race Shropshire brought Coppershine home in front of five others scoring an easy victory by five lengths over Tempter. The form players were handed a blow when Villager, the heavily backed favorite just managed to finish third.

The track was again heavy but full fields were the order despite the poor going and the only mishap was the falling of Good Shepherd at the three furlongs pole. Jockey McDermott was in the saddle but escaped injury.

Red's Surprising Run.

Red Iris' victory was the more surprising as she had not won since coming south for the winter racing and her earlier efforts in Canada and Maryland were also barren of, victories. Shouldering 110 pounds she was away last in the field of nine.

Wentz was the first to take the lead but at the half mile mark he was supplanted by Fraha which locked the winner after the turn had been made. Red Iris was running very wide and didn't appear near enough to get the leader but she had left a turn of speed which none suspected and went to the front with surprising ease to win in hand. Her time for the 6 furlongs was 1:23 3-5.

Villager's Dull Race.

With Coppershine Shropshire had an easier time for the horse broke well close to the top and was in front shortly after the first two furlongs had been run. Thereafter he opened up a wide lead and won galloping with five lengths advantage over Tempter. Villager was the big disappointment as he never could get going, passing a lot of tired horses to get the show. Coppershine's price was $6.90 for a ticket.

PURPLE MATMEN TIE HOOSIERS BEFORE 3,000

Alexander Signs One Year Contract with Cardinals

Seppala Wins Second Lap of Eastern Dogsled Race

QUEBEC, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Leonard H. Seppala of Nome won the second lap of the 120 mile eastern international dog Derby here today. His time was 3:53:50. Frank Dupuis, who placed first in the initial lap yesterday, was second. He covered the distance in 4:07:30. Emil St. Goddard of The Pas, Man., ran third. Yesterday Seppala placed second and St. Goddard third.

Bloom Township High Wins Double Cage Bill

Bloom won a doubleheader yesterday from Thornton Fractional at Chicago Heights. The heavies broke a 13 to 13 tie at half time to win, 22 to 17. Sokolowski led his teammates with seven points. The lights piled up a 41 to 13 score. Ignelzi, forward, scored 19 points.

Forty-eight to Compete in Medinah Ski Meet Tomorrow

Forty-eight will compete in the ski meet to be held at the Medinah Country club tomorrow at 1:30. The riders, all from the Chicago district, will strive for fifteen silver cups which are to be awarded as prizes.

Fight Decisions

MISS VAN WIE IS BEATEN IN FINAL FLORIDA MATCH

Miss Hicks' victory, bringing her second title within ten days, was the greatest upset of the winter season, the veteran tournament player, Miss Van Wie, having been favored.

About ten days ago Miss Hicks won the Miami women's tournament, accomplishing the feat on her eighteenth birthday.

LAKE VIEW HIGH GOLFERS TAKE INDOOR CROWN

Lake View's golf team yesterday won the annual public high school indoor golf championship, held on Bob MacDonald's indoor course. The Lake View team took a total of 175 strokes to beat the Lindblom quartet, which had 178. Senn, champion for the last three years, took third place with 179.

Carl Aster of Lane became individual champion after winning the playoff of a tie between himself, Marshall Hanno of Lindblom, and Joseph Ensminger of Lake View. The three went around the course in 38, two above par.

SOUTH SECTION K. OF C. CAGERS CLASH TONIGHT

McHale will play Dowling tonight in the feature game of the south division of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league at the Eighth regiment armory, 35th street and Giles avenue. This division's games will be played tonight instead of tomorrow afternoon.

Other games on the card tonight are Aquinas vs. Loyola-Hyde Park, Auburn Park vs. La Rabida, and Calumet vs. Englewood.

Taylor Trunk Girls Play for Title Tomorrow Night

The Cleveland Allerton Aces, who will seek to regain their national girls' basketball title from the Taylor Trunks tomorrow night at Broadway armory, will arrive in Chicago tonight. The Ohio team, which has won 210 of 220 games played since its organization ten years ago while scoring 4,853 points, is reported in perfect condition to retrieve the ground lost in the opening encounter of the championship series, which was won by the Trunks, 14-8.

Notre Dame Wins from Michigan State, 28 to 27

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 22.—[U.P.]—Notre Dame nosed out Michigan State in a hotly contested basketball game here tonight that took two extra periods to decide, 28 to 27. The lead changed throughout the contest, neither team having at no time an advantage of more than four points.

High School Coaches to Arrange Semi-Finals Today

Ray Umbright, chairman of the basketball committee of the Public High School league, has called a meeting this morning at 10 o'clock in E. C. Delaporte's office of all coaches whose teams will play in the semi-finals. The meeting will decide on officials and arrangements for the series.

Idaho Musher Triumphs in American Dog Derby

Detroiters Aim Blow at Harmon's Fistic Opening

Scotty Monteith, matchmaker for the Olympia Sporting club of Detroit, was in town to find out why Mr. Harmon had announced that Tony Canzoneri and Ray Miller would battle in one of the all star bouts on the card.

Canzoneri has signed a blanket contract, Monteith claims, to fight for the Detroit club on March 8. The boxing laws of Michigan and Illinois require six days to intervene between a fighter's bouts.

Mr. Monteith reported that he had been informed on reliable authority that the opening of the stadium would be postponed until March 20. He also plans to block a Canzoneri-Miller match in the stadium for that date, as he has Miller under contract to fight in his arena March 22.

Harmon, who attended the Golden Gloves bout at the Coliseum with Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion, last night admitted there was a possibility that the opening of the west side sports arena would be postponed. He said a decision would be reached today.

Harmon will try to obtain Loughran's signature today to defend his title against Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, in the windup of the stadium inaugural. Walker and his manager, Jack Kearns, will be here next week to iron out their difficulties with the National Boxing association, which demands a $25,000 guarantee that Walker will defend his title in Las Vegas, N. M., next July.

YALE QUINTET SCORES 29-19 WIN OVER PRINCETON

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Yale's basketball team scored a 29-19 victory over Princeton in the annual alumni day game today. It was Yale's second victory of the season over Princeton and gives the Elis a tie for second place in the eastern intercollegiate league.

Yale has won four games and lost four this season. Dartmouth is tied for second place with three victories and three defeats. The defeat pushed the Tigers farther down into the league cellar. They have won only one of six games.

Scientists Stage Showup to Nab Bob White's Foes

BY BOB BECKER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Thomasville, Ga., Feb. 22.—Ordinarily you would not think of a wild animal menagerie in connection with a study of the habits of quail, but the coöperative quail investigation, which for the last three years has been delving into the life history of the Bob Whites in this section, had to establish a small zoo in order to do a lot of "detective work" in connection with their quail studies.

Becker Misses It.

Visiting the headquarters of the quail investigation, which is located on the estate of L. S. Thompson, 12 miles southeast of Thomasville, we found that we were too late to see the zoo. The animals have been "dismissed." But before the zoo was discontinued it answered these questions for the scientists:

Which animals or reptiles are the worst destroyers of the eggs, nests and young of the quail? How can one recognize destruction in the field? What evidence does a crow leave when he eats quail eggs? How can one tell the difference between destruction by a civet cat [small skunk] and by a skunk?

Finding that 45 per cent of all nesting attempts by quail are destroyed by the birds' natural enemies, the scientists had to separate the evidence left by the egg eaters in order to learn which one did the most damage. There was only one way to do it: Establish a zoo, put in it every animal or reptile under suspicion and then watch them while they were given a quail nest with a clutch of eggs.

Zoo for Quail Foes.

So the zoo was started. Wire pens were erected and the ground within them made as natural as possible with vegetation and cover. In one pen Herbert L. Stoddart, head of the quail investigation, placed several live skunks. In another he had civet cats. Several species of snakes and cotton rats were added.

Above the pens a lookout was constructed so that the observer could remain hidden while the animal or reptile was given a nest of quail eggs and allowed to eat them. Through this method the scientists were able to determine the characteristic signs left by skunks, civet cat, house cat, cotton rat, crow and other vermin which prey upon the nesting quail.

DAWSON REACHES SEMI-FINALS OF HOUSTON GOLF

Houston, Tex., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Johnny Dawson, Chicago amateur and medalist, won his way into the semi-final round of the championship flight of the Houston Country club invitation tournament today when he eliminated Clarence Hubby of Waco, five and four, ending the match on the thirty-second green.

Hubby staged a rally in the afternoon, but it was of insufficient proportions to overcome the nine up lead held by Dawson when the pair went to lunch. Dawson's sparkling 67, four under par for the morning round, was the best exhibition of golf during the tournament.

Maroon Matmen Triumph Over Syracuse, 24 to 15

Syracuse, N. Y., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Chicago university's wrestling team defeated Syracuse here today, 24 to 15, in the first of three intersectional meets the Maroons have carded for today and tomorrow. Chicago won four bouts by falls. The Orange took two on falls and one on a time decision.

Crane Manager Hurls Challenge at Loyola Team

Crane Junior college tossed a wide open challenge into the basketball camp of the undefeated Loyola university team yesterday. It came in a letter addressed to the Sporting Editor of THE TRIBUNE.

"It was interesting to read," says the letter signed by Harold Clamage, manager of the Crane team, "the sad lament of Coach Sachs in THE TRIBUNE in regards to the woeful lack of competition for his basketball team and the probable necessity of his challenging some first class eastern team. He has a most enviable record of fifteen straight victories. However, we have a similar record [sixteen straight and no defeats] and we feel confident our team could more than handle its own in a game with his team.

"In the past Loyola and Crane have met on the gridiron and on the baseball diamond. At this time the entire student body is aching to meet Loyola on the basketball floor."

Taylor Hurts Wrist, Can't Battle Shea

Bud Taylor, who was scheduled to fight Eddie Shea at the Coliseum Tuesday night, will not be able to go through with the bout. Taylor injured the metacarpal bone in his right hand yesterday and Dr. Clifford Bergin of the Illinois athletic commission would not allow him to appear on Tuesday's card.

Promoter Mullen is angling with a leading featherweight to oppose Shea in place of Taylor, and stated that any fan not satisfied with the new alignment of the card could have his money back.

Sheldon Jolts Mortimer in Racquets Meet

New York, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The upset of Stanley G. Mortimer of New York, who shares with Clarence C. Pell the distinction of being the only players who have won the national amateur racquets championship in 15 years, marked the third round of the title event today. Mortimer went down in a hard fought match before H. D. Sheldon of New York by scores of 2-15, 9-15, 15-12, 17-14, 15-12.

Pell, the defending champion, reached the semi-final round with a straight set victory over Alan L. Corey of New York. The scores were 15-6, 15-7, 15-11.

Charles J. Coulter of Tuxedo and Stanley W. Pearson of Philadelphia staged another close battle, with Coulter coming out ahead after trailing two sets to one. The scores were 15-8, 13-15, 7-15, 15-10, 17-5.

After the practice today the Cubs' manager relaxed enough to discuss the National league schedule for the first time since it was released on the day the squad left Chicago.

Joe opines the schedule is made to order for the Cubs in the closing weeks of the season. The team opens and closes the season at home. On the last eastern trip the weak clubs will falter. The club will be at home from Sept. 6 to Oct. 2.

ILLINI RESERVE FIVE LOSES, 35-33, TO LAKE FOREST

Lake Forest college turned back the University of Illinois Reserve basketball team, 35 to 33, in a thrilling game at Lake Forest last night. The winners took an early lead to lead 26-14 at the halfway mark.

Throughout the final period the Illini gradually cut down the Foresters' lead until a two point difference remained for the final three minutes of play. Lineup:

PIONEER FARM MACHINE FIRMS IN BIG MERGER

BY O. A. MATHER.

Consolidation of three of the largest and oldest farm implement manufacturing concerns and formation of a new $50,000,000 concern were announced last night. A merger of the Oliver Chilled Plow works, South Bend, Ind.; the Nichols & Shepard company, Battle Creek, Mich., and the Hart-Parr company, Charles City, Ia., was agreed on at a meeting of officials of the companies in Chicago.

Details of the terms of the merger were not announced pending the calling of stockholders' meetings in the near future to ratify the agreement. It was stated, however, that the new company will do some financing which will provide a substantial amount of additional working capital.

"The products coördinated by this merger are well established, standard and complementary both from the standpoint of distribution and utilization," the announcement said. "The new company will be in a position to compete successfully in both domestic and foreign fields."

Were Pioneers.

The Oliver Chilled Plow works was founded in 1855 by James Oliver, who was the inventor and pioneer manufacturer of chilled plows. The Nichols & Shepard company was founded in 1848 by John Nichols and is the oldest incorporated company in Michigan. It was a pioneer in the manufacture of threshing machines. It also makes combine harvesters. The Hart-Parr company was organized in 1901 and was the first concern to manufacture farm tractors.

Despite uncertain credit conditions, business is satisfactory throughout the country in a large variety of lines, according to the Union Trust company of Cleveland, O.

"Retail sales, car loadings, railroad earnings and farm buying give promise of fair business in most lines throughout 1929," the bank says in its current review. "Production of steel and automobiles continues at high levels. Freight movements are running well ahead of this time in 1928. The high rate of industrial activity also is indicated by the consumption of electricity, which is reported at 15 per cent ahead of a year ago. The credit situation presents a serious problem, but one which it is to be hoped may be solved in such a way as not to hamper trade and industry."

Prospects Bright.

Prosperity in the steel industry resulted in more than doubling the profits of the Interstate Iron and Steel company. Furthermore, conditions immediately ahead promise heavy operating schedules and prospects, for the first quarter operations are very bright, according to President Paul Llewellyn.

The annual report, issued yesterday, shows net profits of $1,023,868 for last year, equivalent after preferred dividends to $23.58 a share on the 40,000 shares of common stock. The regular 4 per cent and 1¼ per cent extra were paid on the common stock, and thereafter surplus, after adjustments, was increased by $784,077 to a total of $5,-270,684. Net income for 1927 was $499,784, equivalent to $8 a share on the common stock.

While gross earnings of the Illinois Northern Utilities company increased last year, net income was slightly lower because of larger expenses and writeoffs. Gross earnings for 1928 were $3,497,473 and net income was $388,900, equivalent after preferred dividends to $11.45 a share on the 33,-500 shares of common stock outstanding. The balance after dividends was $232,835, bringing surplus up to $1,-267,902. Gross earnings in 1927 were $3,302,800 and net income was $906,-813, equivalent to $11.86 a share on the common stock.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Great Britain's net trade credit balance for last year totals $750,000,000. These figures are the estimate of Sir Philip Cunliffe Lister, president of the board of trade, in a speech at the chamber shipping banquet tonight.

The invisible exports amounted to more than $2,540,000,000, against a debit balance of visible exports and imports of $1,797,500,000. Included in the invisible exports are the items of shipping, overseas investments, short interests and commissions, etc.

For the first time the board of trade had at their disposal details of overseas investments. The profits from these are estimated at $1,425,000,000.

Wise Investors Hesitate to Take Profits

BY SCRUTATOR.

The stock market has made thousands of millionaires in the last year or two. But it is a safe guess that many achieved that goal by declining to take their profits. And the reason they didn't take them is that profit taking is too costly and too risky.

Regardless of what the senators who want speculation cut down may think of it, the truth apparently is that nearly all the winnings go to the investors who pay for their stocks and lay them away in their safe deposit boxes. The men and women who are trying to guess the jumps in the market from day to day or week to week are working for the more conservative classes.

The best estimates place the number of shares in the safety class at about three-quarters of the whole. United States Steel publishes figures showing the amount of its floating stock—that held in the names of brokers—on the New York stock exchange. In January the amount was about 23 per cent. Significantly, this was slightly less than the amount brokers had held a year ago. The assumption is that some more steel stock must have gone to the investing class.

Always a Leader.

Steel is always a market leader and one of the most active issues. To say that approximately 25 per cent of all listed shares are traded in is possibly an exaggeration. It is this active 25 per cent which must absorb the interest charges of a half billion or more on brokers' loans and the several hundreds of millions in commissions annually.

The stock exchange, with more than 500 million shares listed on Feb. 1, traded more than that number last year. The average value of each share at last reports was $87.96. It is probable, if only one-quarter of these shares were actually bought or sold during the year, that each share had to absorb $4 or $5 in charges. The shares in safety boxes escaped.

What happens, then, to the investor who bought his stocks in past years? The market value of his investment has gone up. In some cases, with stocks like Radio, Montgomery Ward and du Pont, it has doubled, trebled or quadrupled in a short time. The dividend return on the market value is low, perhaps only 2 per cent and perhaps nothing. The companies are plowing back their earnings and following a conservative policy.

Two Reasons for Holding.

A large investor, and there are plenty of them with the same view, can't afford to take his market profit. There are two reasons. One is that the income tax, 20 per cent on incomes over $100,000, would be charged to him if he sold. The other is that the amount received would have to be reinvested. To get equivalent safety, generally speaking, he would have to put his money back into stocks with no larger return or into bonds.

The bonds would have a larger fixed rate of return, but no little appreciation in future. And income tax is charged on dividends. The big, conservative investor prefers to let his stock holding be a savings account for the money he would have paid Uncle Sam as well as what he put in. Such men and women—the fair sex owns large proportions of the stock of many corporations—keep the market steady by their refusal to sell out and reinvest. They realize that the way to be rich is to refuse to take today's profit at the expense of the future.

Gold Imports of Week Are $1,195,000; Exp'ts $251,000

New York, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Gold imports in the week ended yesterday totaled $1,195,000 compared with exports of $251,000. Of the imports, $1,000,000 came from Canada and the rest chiefly from Latin America, the New York federal reserve bank reports.

Mathieson Alkali.

D. N. L. — Even with somewhat lower average prices for most of the industrial chemicals which it makes, Mathieson Alkali works reports for last year the best monthly earnings in its history, after the first quarter.

Profits of $13.32 a share on the common stock compare with $11.27 a share in 1927.

The earnings per share on the 7 per cent preferred stock were $24.50 in 1928, against $74.06 in 1927.

After payment of preferred and common dividends and preferred stock sinking fund, there was a surplus of $989,435 for 1928, comparing with $1,020,820 for 1927.

Brisk competition for the dwindling supply of hogs throughout the west carried prices to new high levels for the season. Numerous loads at Chicago reached $10.90, with general average 20c higher at $10.75, against a top of $10.35, and average of $10.20 last Saturday. A small lot of fancy 200 lb. hogs at $11.00 yesterday was no criterion, the top for full carload lots being $10.90.

Close Is Highest.

Arrivals at 24,000 were smallest since the middle of November for Friday and compare with 49,408 a week ago and 38,123 a year ago. Larger packers were among best buyers late, the Armour and Swift houses taking about 5,000 at $10.70@10.80. Local packers bought 13,900, and shippers 8,000, leaving 4,000 at the close, the high point of the day. Several loads arrived on a late train after orders were filled and were carried over for today's trade. Far eastern points reported top hogs at $11.60@11.70, with tops at lowest western markets at $10.50. St. Paul sold hogs at $10.80, against $9.75 early last week.

Yesterday's supply of 3,500 cattle proved excessive for Friday and further uneven losses were recorded with sales 50c under the high time in midweek. Prices are still 40@50c above the low spot early last week.

Butcher stock shared in the setback noted since middle of the week, heifers showing 50c or more loss. Calves, however, advanced further in sympathy with lambs, with gains for the week amounting to $3.00 in most cases. Best steers available yesterday averaged 835 lbs., and sold at $13.50, with 1,430 lb. fairly good steers at $13.10.

Lambs Near High Point.

Lamb prices soared close to the highest marks of the season on yesterday's bulge of the market. Top advanced 25c at $17.60, against $17.35 at the high time last week, being within 25c of the highest paid for lambs since last June.

Bulk of best grades sold at $16.75@17.25. Yearlings shared in the general upturn, best at $16.00 equaling the highest since June, 1928. Compared with last week's close, fat lambs are 25@50c higher; yearlings, 25@50c higher; aged sheep, 15@25c higher, and feeders strong.

BRITISH WHEAT MARTS DEVELOP WEAKNESS; PRICES SHOW DECLINE

All American markets observed Washington's birthday anniversary by remaining closed yesterday. Winnipeg and Liverpool were the only grain markets open.

Liverpool was weak and ⅝@¾d lower, when it was expected to show no change at the opening. Argentine wheat is being pressed on foreign markets, particularly the British, and buyers are backing away. The close was on a rally, however, with a net loss of ⅝@½d. Argentine shipments are expected to show more than 6,000,-000 bu for the week.

Heavy liquidation of long wheat by weak holders in Winnipeg, due to the sharp decline in Liverpool, which carried prices down nearly 1 cent, with the close around the low point at net losses of ⅝@¾c, October leading.

There was a fair class of buying by a few of the large shipping and export houses, and by commission houses, although the latter were on both sides of the market throughout the day.

The Winnipeg cash market was dull and there was no export business reported over night. Prospects for the new crop are not bright at present, due to unfavorable weather, but whether any serious damage has taken place in Europe or in the United States, traders say it remains to be seen. There is a feeling, however, of much apprehension and there is a bearish tone in the Winnipeg market, with expectations that prices may work lower, while liquidation continues, especially on the sharp breaks.

NORTH AMERICAN SHOWS INCREASE IN NET INCOME

New York, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The North American company, one of the largest public utility holding companies in the country, and its subsidiaries, in a preliminary consolidated income statement for 1928, shows increased net income totaling $24,402,753, compared with $19,254,647 in 1927.

After dividends on preferred stock the balance on common stock was $22,582,721, an increase of $5,148,095 over 1927. Earnings are equal to $4.68 a common share, against $4.06 the previous year.

Gross revenues were $135,551,839, contrasted with $122,166,534, an increase of 10.96 per cent. Net operating income was $64,399,252, an increase of 13.26 per cent.

Electric output of subsidiaries for the year approximated 6,000,000,000 kilowatt hours, a new high record.

Railroads to Air Question of Uneconomic Duplication

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 22.—The vexed question of when competition between railroads becomes "uneconomic duplication" bids fair to have another airing in the plans of the Great Northern to enter California, it was remarked in railroad circles today. It was said the Southern Pacific would oppose the extension on the ground that it would be duplication, but Ralph Budd, head of the Great Northern, has denied that plans for such diplication were involved.

Liberty Mutual Resources Increase During 1928

All directors and officers of the Liberty Mutual Insurance company have been reelected for the coming year. The report of the president, S. Bruce Black, to the directors shows that resources of the company increased $3,-102,276 during 1928. Total resources are now $19,451,318. Premium writing for the year amounted to $15,-047,604.

'NOBODY CARES' WHAT LONDON STOCKS MAY DO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 22.—All markets in the United States were closed for business today and stocks were quoted only at London. In older days, before New York and London had changed places as the "money center," an American holiday was often punctuated by sudden upward or downward movement of American shares on the London Stock exchange. That was particularly apt to be the case when things were happening.

On such occasions Wall street brokers and speculators often spent the play day at their offices, whence they would cable buying or selling orders to London for execution on that market in advance of the next morning's resumption of business at New York.

Times Have Changed.

Those days are now long past. Restoration of sterling to the old time par has for nearly four years made the old time "arbitrage transactions" practicable, but nobody scans the daily London price list of "Americans." The "Wall Street Topic" columns do not carry, as they used to do in pre-war markets, the record of London buying or London selling at the New York opening, based on the action of our stocks at London in the two or three hours when London was doing business before 10 o'clock New York time.

Nowadays when Wall street keeps holiday our stocks come to a halt in Europe. On the morning after election day in November, 1912, the early London prices were read with the greatest eagerness, but nobody asked for them on the 7th of last November. No one was interested in them today or will be tomorrow.

Chance to Rest.

The additional holiday decreed for the New York Stock exchange tomorrow will perhaps be taken to mark a growing disposition of that institution to give its members time to rest. It is true, the conceding of that privilege on a Saturday after a legal Friday holiday, or on the Monday before a similar Tuesday holiday, was not unusual in older times.

But the very numerous "Saturday closings" of 1928, because stock exchange houses had been swamped with excessive business, have made the expedient so familiar that it attracts no comment. Whether the country at large, which in its present appetite for uninterrupted speculation resents even the interference of Sundays, is taking kindly to the "extra holidays" cannot so easily be judged.

Most conductors of New York newspapers columns have grown used to angry letters from out of town readers, penned on the morning after such suspended business, and serving notice that if the newspaper again omits the table of stock exchange quotations the undersigned will buy some other paper.

Stocks Advance.

Wall street has plenty of questions to turn over in its mind during the three day outing. The last week's more or less conflicting incidents on the money markets have not made the financial situation clearer, or provided any safe indication of coming developments. Stocks have advanced nearly 10 points in the "averages"; but this occurred with the smallest total transactions of the year and nobody knows how much of the advance resulted from "covering of shorts" and how much from "buying for the rise." Call money has grown easier, but time money firmer. Local and out of town banks have reduced their brokers' loans $147,000,000 in the week, but other lenders, mostly industrial companies with an idle surplus, have increased them $56,000,000.

The precise purpose and attitude of the "speculative leaders," of the outside public or of the private banks are as uncertain as they were a week ago.

Northwestern Changes Color; Paint Coaches Green

To rest the eyes of weary commuters, the Chicago and North Western railroad will paint all of its coaches green. All coaches in the suburban service will be repainted before the end of the summer, according to an announcement by officials of the road yesterday. So as not to offend the esthetic taste of any of its passengers the work will be done a train at a time, preventing any possibility of a train made up of green and yellow coaches. Yellow has been the traditional color of the North Western.

RECOMMEND CONGRESS PERMIT FINAL ACTION IN R. R. LAND GRANTS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Reporting its findings in a four year investigation of the Northern Pacific railway land grants, the special congressional committee has recommended to congress yesterday that the attorney general be authorized to institute proceedings to procure a final settlement.

The investigation was instituted by President Coolidge in 1924, after the railway laid claim to valuable tracts of lands in national forests in the northwest from Lake Superior to Puget Sound. The company contends it is entitled to these lands under grants in 1864 and one a few years later.

The committee found that "a vast area of the public domain" was granted the railroad to aid in its construction, under certain conditions. "The record shows that these obligations," the report said, "have not been fully complied with by the company; that the company has received upwards of 35,000,000 acres of land under the grants concerning part of which controversies have arisen; that questions of fact and of law have arisen from time to time in the administration of the grants."

The Northern Pacific claims a large deficiency in the grants still exists, and further claims the right to satisfy the deficiency by the selection of lands within the national forests.

SHEAFFER PEN CO. DECLARES EXTRA 50 CENT DIVIDEND

Directors of the W. A. Sheaffer Pen company have declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share and the annual dividend of $2 a share, payable semi-annually. The company announced that its fiscal year ended Feb. 28 will show the biggest year in its history.

A stock dividend of 12½ per cent was voted by directors of Weber & Heilbroner, Inc., clothing store chain operators. Trans-America corporation voted a one per cent stock disbursement. An extra payment of 50 cents was voted by the Chesebrough Manufacturing company. Hall Lamp directors increased the annual rate from $1 to $1.50 a share with the declaration of 37½ cents quarterly.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 22.—The Baltimore and Ohio and Van Sweringen interests are awaiting word from the New York Central on what attitude it will take in their allied projects to create systems of about 15,000 miles each in the east. The attitude of the Pennsylvania is expected to be hostile to their plans. However, they are still counting on the support of the New York Central, although that road continued silent on its plans.

It was considered significant in railroad circles today that neither the B. & O. nor the C. & O. petition mentioned the Lehigh Valley in their merger plans. This road is the most important among those included in a petition which it is known the New York Central has considered filing with the interstate commerce commission. Other roads which the New York Central included in this tentative petition were the Allegheny and Western division of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh, the New York, Ontario and Western, and the Ulster and Delaware.

Last Minute Bargain.

In return the New York Central would be asked to insist that the Reading and its controlled road, the Jersey Central, be declared a neutral line in a general consolidation. This would be in opposition to the desires of the B. & O. this week for allocation of the Reading and Jersey Central to its proposed system.

The Reading was believed in some quarters to be the crux of the situation. Some railroad men believed that the Reading and the Jersey Central are too important to the New York Central for the latter road to relinquish the joint control of the two short lines in new shares with the B. & O.

Others said that the realization of its old aim to acquire the Lehigh Valley would compensate the New York Central for relinquishing the Reading and Jersey Central control.

Neutral Position.

Two years ago the Reading applied to the interstate commerce commission for permission to lease the Lehigh and New England, a road in which the C. & O. asks joint control. The commission disapproved the demand of the Reading and its decision in this case has been interpreted as meaning that the commission is a general consolidation would keep roads like the Reading in the position of neutral lines.

The unsuccessful 1925 four party plan would have given the Pennsylvania the Norfolk and Western, the Grand Trunk Western, the Chicago and Alton east of the Mississippi, and the Toledo, Peoria and Western east of Peoria. Any petition the Pennsylvania would now file in the eastern merger situation would go far beyond such provisions. Should the New York Central throw in its lot with the B. & O. and Van Swaringens, the Pennsylvania would be isolated.

Standard Oil Co. of Ohio Invades Eastern Territory

New York, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The Standard Oil Company of Ohio, the latest of the old Standard group to expand its marketing territory beyond what generally has been regarded as its sphere of influence, is expected to start shipping gasoline into West Virginia as a result of its purchase of the Spears & Fiddle stations in Wheeling and the construction of a 5,000 barrel refinery at Latonia, Ky., across the Ohio line from Cincinnati. West Virginia under the old Standard regime was considered Standard of New Jersey territory.

DESCENDANT OF POET BUYS SEAT ON N.Y. EXCHANGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 22.—Thomas F. Kelly, a page on the floor of the New York Stock exchange for fourteen years, has purchased a seat on that institution and will become a partner in the firm of Joseph & Co., He has become a member by acquiring four "rights" under the recently announced plan by which the membership of the exchange is increased from 1,100 to 1,375. The price paid was not revealed, but it is understood that he paid not more than $110,000 a "right," or $450,000 for the full seat.

Announcement also was made by the exchange today that James Russell Lowell, a great-grandson of the poet, had bought "rights," entitling him to a seat. He will be a member of the firm of Wrenn Brothers & Co. The price paid for each "right" was not disclosed.

Saturday morning, Feb. 23d, at 10:30, in Curtiss Hall Fine Arts Bldg., there will be a massmeeting of women under the auspices of the Chicago Woman's Aid. The object of this meeting will be to inform women of the importance of the abnormalcy election on Tuesday, April 2d, and to urge that women take an intelligent interest in the city election. The principal speaker will be Mr. Raymond Ecker, president of the Municipal Voters' League, an organization that has been working for 22 years to secure the election of honest and capable men for our city council. All women are cordially invited to be present.
MARION DRUMMEY, Secretary.

STUDEBAKER OFFERS

LATE MODELS

THAT WILL GIVE NEW CAR SATISFACTION

We have a number of '28s, '27s, and '26s that can be obtained at a substantial reduction. Many of these cars have only been driven a few hundred miles and are not even broken in yet.

OLDSMOBILE SEDAN, 1929 that was only used a few weeks. It's as close to 100% new car can be. 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, spare tire, bumpers, etc. Offered at $400 discount.

CHEVROLET COACH, 1929 driven less than 1,000 miles. We believe this is the best Chev. value in Chicago; 4 whl. brakes, bumper, spare tire, etc. Today, $495.

WILLYS-KNIGHT VICTORIA, 1929, with 4 whl. brakes, winter panel, spare tire, bumpers, snubbers, etc. Trade after only 30 days use. Owner wanted a larger car. Chance to save almost $500.

NASH BROUGHAM, 1929 Adv. Six Ambassador. One of the handsomest buys today. Brand new in every respect. 4 whl. brakes, Houdaille shk. absorbers, trunk, spare tire, etc. Offered at a big reduction.

STUDEBAKER DICTATOR. Late 5 pass. Sedan that is in storage for about a year. Will give new car satisfaction today. 4 whl. brakes and wealth of equipment. Only $785.

WHIPPET SEDAN. This late model never left Chicago block. It's a mat looking car with snappy performance. 4 whel. brakes, snubbers, spare tire, seat covers, etc. Reduced to $495.

BUICK SEDAN. Master 6 with low mileage. Very clean throughout, tires are practically brand new. 4 whl. brakes, heater, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Only $695.

LOCOMOBILE ROADSTER. St. 8 that will give new car satisfaction. It's a beauty. Motor has a world of pep. Rumble seat, 4 whl. brakes, driving light, spare tire, snubbers, bumpers, etc. Today, $695.

LINCOLN SEDAN. Was chauffeur driven and looks it. It will please you in every respect. It's a 7 pass. with shutter front, shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $945.

HUPMOBILE BROUGHAM, 1927 Eight that looks as though direct from factory. Motor is smooth and powerful. 4 whl. brakes, 5 tires like new, heater, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Special, $645.

CHRYSLER SPORT COUPE. Model "72" with rumble seat. A handsome car with plenty of dash. You could never tell it was used. 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, spare tire, spotlight, etc. Just $595.
